SENATE SAYS WHISKEY MUST GO, BUT WINE AND BEER TO REMAIN ON DRAUGHT

MILLION WOMEN IN PROMISE OF CONSERVATION

THEY WILL AID UNCLE SAM IN THEIR KITCHENS IN WAR ON GERMANY.

FOOD HEADS SEND RULES FOR HOUSEWIVES TO FOLLOW

BUY LESS, SERVE SMALLER PORTIONS—IS NATION'S REQUEST OF WOMEN.

By the Associated Press.

Washington, July 7.—A million American women, it was announced today have signed pledges to follow the food conservation directions of the fod administration. All will be enrolled as actual members of the food administration and will be sent instructions on household economics.

The first list of directions sent out to be posted in the kitchens of women who have joined the administration are:

One wheatless meal a day. Use corn, oatmeal, rye or barley-bread and non-wheat breakfast foods. Cut the loaf on the table and only as required.

Eat less cake and pastry.

Beef, mutton or pork not more than once daily. Use freely vegetables and fish. At the meat meal serve smaller portions and stew instead of steaks. Make made over dishes of all leftovers.

Use little milk. The children must have milk. Use buttermilk and sour milk for cooking and making cottage cheese. Use less cream. Save the fats. Use the butter on the table but not in cooking. Reduce use of fried foods.

Use less candy and sweet drinks, but do not stint sugar in putting up fruits and jams, they will save butter.

Save the fuel. Use wood when you can get it.

Fruits and vegetables we have in abundance. As a nation, we eat too little green stuffs. Double their use and improve your health. Store potatoes and other roots properly and they will keep. Begin now to can or dry all surplus garden products.

General rules:

Buy less, serve smaller portions, preach the clean plate; don't eat a fourth meal. Don't limit the plain food of growing children; watchout for the wastes in the community. Full garbage pails in America, mean empty dinner pails in America and Europe.

SEARCH VERMONT HILLS FOR GIRL KILLED BECAUSE SHE WAS SO TROUBLESOME

By Associated Press.

Saint Johnsbury, Vt., July 7.—A day's search of the hills in the outskirts of the city for the body of little Olive Bradshaw, who is believed to have been murdered, was without result today. Meanwhile Etta May Macks, the child's caretaker and Mrs. Alvin Kenniston, who are alleged to have confessed they killed the girl by beating and choking her because she was a cripple and troublesome continued silence as to what was done with the body.

H. M. BAINE SENDS WACO $1,000 TO AID ARMY CAMP

H. M. Baine, former president of the Chamber of Commerce in Waco, but now of Des Moines, Ia., has contributed $1000 toward financing the citizens' part of the army training camp at Waco. Mr. Baine was the first contributor to give money from a point outside of Waco. His donation came in the form of a telegram to the Chamber of Commerce, authorizing that organization to draw on him for one thousand dollars.

Did Willie Porter Kill or Did He Gamble With Silence and Lose When Defense Failed?

ANNE AUSTIN PUTS OWN THEORY OF EMMA STALEY'S MURDER BEFORE BELL COUNTY AUTHORITIES AND HOPES THEY MAY MAKE USE OF IT.

BY ANNE AUSTIN.

The case of the State versus Willie Porter at Belton is closed. The verdict has been rendered.

This is in no way a criticism of the case, or of any person concerned in the case. It is merely an expression of a view, of a theory, or of a belief, gained from hearing all the evidence in the case and from talking confidentially with nearly all the principals in the case.

The counsel for the defense, as well as the counsel for the prosecution, gave me bits of information, which pieced together as an old lady does her scraps for a crazy quilt, have given me my theory.

I could not sit through it all without thinking. They should not have let me hear the case if they did not expect me to think. And who could think and not ask himself questions?

The state had a case of circumstantial evidence. With that evidence in hand and a grand jury indictment, District Attorney White could do nothing else than use all his efforts toward securing a conviction.

The defendant chose alibi as his defense, and no matter what was brought forward by the state, he denied everything. With the initial step taken—denying that he had anything at all to do with Emma Staley's death, denying that he was with her on the fatal night of March 12—he had to deny all that would point to his having been with her. He had to deny knowledge of her condition; he had to deny talking with her in front of the Methodist church. He had to deny, deny, deny.

And he did deny.

He denied consistently and in the face of three or four witnesses who testified to the same fact.

As far as the present court is concerned, the case is a matter of history.

District Attorney White said:

"We did not have to prove how she met her death, but that she met her death through the defendant."

Willie Porter made a big error in choosing his defense.

He took what appeared to be the easiest way, or what was perhaps the only way that he could see. What would have happended if he had said,

What Might Be Said.

"It was I who met Emma Staley on the night of March 12. I walked toward the hay stack, saw her rise from the laundry bag on which she was sitting. I put my hands on her shoulders and kissed her. Then we walked away. But I did not kill Emma Staley. I had arranged with her on Saturday to relieve her of her of her delicate condition. As the witnesses have testified, I saw her on the north side of the Methodist church. She had told me of her condition, and a month and a half before that I tried to obtain medicine to relieve her, as she had been relieved before. We had planned to take her to a doctor that night, then for her to stay in a place I had arranged for, until she was well enough to go back to her home. I never said that I would relieve her of her condition. I was doing my best to help her out. She did not want the child to be born. I did not either, for that would have brought disgrace on all of us, my wife, Emma and myself, as well as on our family for generations.

Was There a Doctor?

"Her father and mother had planned to send her to the Baraca rescue home, but she did not want to do that. I would not have had to pay for her caring during that time. But she insisted that I help her out of her trouble as I had helped her before.

"The doctor that I had persuaded to come out there in an automobile tried and failed. She died under the chloroform that we gave her. I had not intention of killing her. She left with the consent of her parents. The letter in her pocket will show you that. She died through mishandling or through weakness of heart.

"We had intended to carry her to Temple (or Belton) and there let her recover from the operation. But she died on our hands. We could not foresee that she would.

"We did not know what to do with the body. The doctor was not willing that he should take his share of the blame. It was up to me. So together we tried to find a place to dispose of her. I knew that I could not get back to the family and tell them what had happended. I could not go far for fear of being missed at home. The doctor wanted to get back to town. We tried to dig a place to bury her. You have talked about the digging in the fields. The ground was too hard, so the only thing left was the river. We put rocks in her skirts, tied her skirts down with baling wire and threw her into the river. We had to conceal the bag and suit case, too, so they were disposed of in the same manner. We had left the buggy in the little open space where the road turns off, and had taken her in the automobile, where the doctor had placed her when she died. That was the automobile that Mrs. Stephens saw on the bridge that night. We lowered the body into the river and then left the bridge as fast as possible.

His Trip to the River.

"I could not help wondering if the body had come to the surface. It haunted me. While I was not guilty of murder, I could not sleep for fear of being accused of being one. Ollie Moore is right; she saw me on the river bank that day."

"Why were no inquiries made when the girl was not heard from?"

What would the verdict have been?

Certainly not ninety-nine years.

I believe there is in Belton or Tem-

KANSAS CITY POLICE STOP MEN ON STREET ASK FOR DRAFT CARDS

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, July 7.—Police squads tonight made a raid of the pool halls and congested street corners of the city and all young men loiterers found without registration cards were taken to city hold-over. At 11 o'clock 150 had been booked at police headquarters and more were being brought in.

Some were released after their cases were investigated while others whose answers did not satisfy the authorities were held for federal authorities.

Police headquarters presented an animated scene shortly after the police squads began bringing in their arrests. Persons with whom the arrested youths were allowed to communicate swarmed the station bringing with them registration cards which inadvertantly had been left at home.

REVISE OF FOOD BILL EXPECTED TO PASS HOUSE

NOT AFTER FIGHT, HOWEVER, ON ORIGINAL BONE DRY DRAFT.

PRESIDENT TO BUY ALL STOCKS NOW ON HAND?

SUCH IS ROBINSON'S COMPROMISE AS AMENDED BY SMOOT IN FOOD CONTROL.

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 7.—The senate went on record today in favor of national "bone dry" prohibition during the war so far as whiskey and other distilled beverages are concerned.

Liquor legislation was written into the food bill in one of the senate's bitterest contests which would strike at consumption of distilled intoxicants by commandeering stocks in bond in addition to absolutely prohibiting their manufacture or importation. The beer and wine industries would be left undisturbed.

In lieu of the section of the house bill to prohibit the manufacture of foodstuffs into beverages of any description, the senate substituted, by a vote of 45 to 37, a provision prohibiting manufacture and importation of distilled beverages during the war and added, 65 to 12, a further clause directing the president to take over all distilled spirits in government bonded warehouses and pay for it on the basis of cost plus 10 per cent.

While the final prohibition legislation will be evolved in conferences between the two houses, it is generally regarded as possible that the house will accept the senate's change after a fight in behalf of the original section.

DRAFT MACHINERY WILL NOT BE READY TO DRAW ARMY NAMES BY MONDAY

By the Associated Press.

Washington, July 7.—Prospects for setting in motion the draft machinery for the next national army by Monday as planned by Provost Marshal General Crowder were regarded today as remote, since organization is complete in only eight states. Delinquent states probably will make it necessary to defer the first drawing time till the middle of the coming week.

"BLACK TRAITOR" IS CALLED AT WILSON BY MAN IN ANTI-WAR MASS MEETING

By Associated Press.

Chicago, July 7.—The self-styled "Second American Conference for Democracy" began here today. Secret service men were present and made note of one speaker who said President Wilson was a "black traitor." Opposition to the war was the keynote of the meeting.

GERMANS PLANNED ATTACK ON ENGLAND IN 1913 AND U. S. SCENE OF INTRIGUE

By the Associated Press.

GENERAL Brusiloff is pushing his offensive on the Russian front with energy and rapidly extending its scope. He has begun an attack in the region of Pinsk, 150 miles north of Galicia, and is attacking with success northwest of Stanislau, southeast of Lemberg.

At Pinsk, semi-official advices announce German defenses yielding to Russian fire. The town is reported in flames.

The Galician campaign is meeting with vigorous Austro-German defense and admittedly the Russians have been held up in further attempts to advance in the Konetchy region. The sweeping claim of Berlin of a signal victory against the Russians, however, conflicts sharply with the Russian announcements of substantial gains in several sectors.

The big guns are roaring all along the Franco-Belgian front. Infantry movements developed in Belgium where a sharp thrust by the British carried their line forward slightly near Wytschaete. Berlin reports two attacks by the French from Mont Carnillet to the Hochberg. The French penetrated the German lines on each occasion, but both times were driven out by counter attacks, it is asserted.

By the Associated Press.

London, July 7.—The second descent on London by a squadron of German airplanes was made this morning between 9 and 10 o'clock a. m., when the business sections of the metropolis were most crowded. Although the German contingent was larger, more daring, more deliberate and descended much lower than on the visit of June 13, the killed and wounded were only about one-third the previous casualty list. Property damage cannot at this time be estimated.

The flight of the Germans over London lasted about twenty minutes. British airmen engaged them for several minutes and anti-aircraft guns were firing briskly but without success so far as concerned the destruction of any of the twenty or more invading machines.

Chase Seaward Brings Down Three.

The admiralty was able to report tonight, however, that naval airmen who followed them to sea, brought down three machines. A British squadron sent up from Dunkirk to intercept the returning raiders did not encounter them because they had taken a more northerly route, but the British airmen met and destroyed seven other German machines.

On their former visit, made in hazy weather like today's, the Germans kept high in the mists, but today when they neared their objectives most of them descended. Most of their formation was like a flock of wild geese and neither the British pursuers nor the guns were able to scatter them until they spread out before letting loose bombs.

Workmen's Homes First to Suffer.

The Germans steered across London, northwest to southeast. They dropped the last of their bombs on workmen's dwellings and crossed the Thames. Some observers say a giant airplane piloted the squadron and that the bomb carriers were in the center flanked by scouts for fighting off the British airmen.

The low altitude and slow pace at which the Germans crossed London and the daredevil way they circled over their objectives has caused great surprise. They completed the maneuver over the Thames and as the British machines came up the raiders quickened their pace.

A fierce running fight ensued between a strong force of British machines and the raiders toward the mouth of the river. None of the Germans had been brought down when the combatants disappeared from view, but the British squadron continued the pursuit and engaged him heavily.

Know City's Layoue.

Today's attack was plainly directed gainst the civilian population and residence and financial districts. The Germans plainly knew where they were. Why many more persons were not killed is hard to explain. Thousands of persons were in the streets in hte area bombed.

The upper story of one building where several hundred men and girls are employed was partly destroyed.

First reports were that great loss of life had occurred in this building, but it later developed no one was injured.

In the places attacked was one of the most extensive metropolitan hospitals on which the Red Cross flag was flying conspicuously and the location of which must have been known. Early rumors were abroad that the hospital had been badly damaged, but investigation showed it had escaped entirely.

Interrupt Business Confab.

In one building a number of prominent business men had gathered for a conference. Above their heads was only plate glass. A bomb exploded in the lavatory, but did not even break the glass. Not one of the men was hurt.

The fate of the humble dwellers in workmen's houses was different. They had no chance for life. The sight of the distracted, sobbing mothers rushing about the ruins of tenements fearing to find and sometimes finding the mangled bodies of their children was the most moving incident of the German victory. A thorough investigation by staff correspondents of the Associated Press showed that no military bases or supply establishments was touched.

U. S. TROOPS ABROAD READY FOR THE FRONT AFTER TRAINING PERIOD

By the Associated Press.

A French Port, July 7.—The American troops today ended on the final mobilization that shall prepare them to leave within a few days for a permanent training camp somewhere behind the firing lines.

The unloading of supplies is almost finished and rolling stock is being concentrated here preparatory to the departure of the troops.

The days have been used profitably for a double purpose. The more important one was to put the majority of the soldiers through a vigorous grind of eight full hours each day. French officers who had seen service at the front took part in these exercises in order to give the benefit of their experience to the American soldiers. The drills included a daily plunge in the sea, this phase of the sanitation problem being made easy by the proximity of the camp to the ocean.

EMPRESS ZITA OF AUSTRIA SAID TO BE PRO-FRENCH; WANTS SEPARATE PEACE

By the Associated Press.

London, July 7.—According to the Daily Express, a personal friend of the Empress Zita of Austria has informed certain members of the house of commons that the empress is exerting herself strongly in the interests of France. She is credited with sufficient influence over Emperor Charles to induce him to try to withdraw from the Austro-Hungarian alliance with Germany as soon as Austria-Hungary is enabled to take such action.

Woman War Battalion of Russia Departs for Active Service on East Battle Front

By Associated Press.

Petrograd, July 7.—Under command of Lieut. Mademoiselle Vera Buchkreff, the woman war battalion, fully armed and equipped as infantry, today left for the front. Before their departure the women soldiers appeared in military formation before the Kazan cathedral, where a religious service was held. The American ambassador, David R. Francis, was among the officials present.

An officer representing the commander of the Petrograd military district wished the women soldiers glory in their struggle with the foes of Russian freedom. Large crowds of citizens gave ovations to the battalion as it marched to the railway station and the committee of the League for Equal Rights for Women bade farewell to their sisters under arms.

7,000 ESCAPE FIRE.

By Associated Press.

St. Louis, Mo., July 7.—Fire tonight broke out on the scenic railway at Del Margarden, a large park, and quickly spread to the theatre, which was empty at the time. A crowd estimated at 7,000 is at the garden, but thus far there has been no loss of life.

CALIFORNIA PLOT BARED BY U. S.

HINDUS WERE REGISTERED ON PACIFIC COAST TO PLAN UPRISING IN INDIA—139 INDICTMENTS ARE RETURNED.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Cal., July 7.—Preparations for war with England were being made in the United States by German agents and Hindu agitators more than a year prior to the outbreak of the European war, according to a statement made here today by United States District Attorney John W. Preston.

This assertion was in connection of filing of 139 indictments in the United States court here today for alleged violation of American neutrality. Two sets of indictments were returned—ninety-eight bearing on a world-wide plot to foment revolution in India and forty-one on the so-called steamship Sacramento case in which it is charged an effort was made to provision German warships at sea. Several of the defendants are mentioned in each set of indictments.

125 Men Involved.

The so-called Hindu revolution plot was summarized today in a statement today by Preston, in which he said:

"One hundred and five men are involved. Ninety-five have been indicted and seven named as co-conspirators. About one-half of this number are at present outside the jurisdiction of the United States.

"For more than a year prior to the outbreak of the European war certain Hindus in San Francisco and German agents were preparing openly for war with England. At the outbreak of the war Hindu leaders, members of the German consulate here, and attaches of the German government began to form plans to carry out a conspiracy to incite revolution in India for the two-fold purpose of attempting to free India and aid the Germans in their military operations.

"Hindus on the Pacific coast were canvassed and those wanting to take part in the revolution were registered. Emissaries were announced by German agents here and immediately dispatched to Germany. Shortly thereafter what is known as the India committee, and adjunct of the revolutionary office was created in Berlin. This committee had the personal attention of Alfred Zimmerman (now German foreign secretary.)

"Shortly afterwards the operation of the plotters in the United States were directed from Berlin and the finances were sent from the same source. The conspiracy took the form of various military enterprises. Arms and ammunition in large quantities were purchased with German money. Men

MILLER-CROSS CO.

CORNER FOURTH AND AUSTIN.

DAVISON, THE MAN WITH THE PUNCH, IS DRIVING AMERICAN RED CROSS TO ACTION

PARTNER IN J. P. MORGAN AND COMPANY "MAKING THINGS JINGLE" IN HIS MANAGEMENT OF CHARITABLE ORGANIZATION IN WASHINGTON—HE INSISTS ON IMMEDIATE DECISION. THERE IS NO TOMORROW FOR THIS MAN.

BY HERBERT COREY.

Washington, July 7.—Ever see a herd of steers milling?

There's a heap of circular motion and perspiration and dust and bawling. But the steers do not get anywhere.

Then by and by a cow-puncher forces his pony into the stewing herd and cuts out a bunch of the milling ones and starts them down the trail. Other steers follow. Almost before you know it the milling is over and the steers are going somewhere. All that is needed is the man who knows what he wants to do and how to do it.

Something the same sort of thing is beginning to appear here at Washington. The committees and commissions and advisory bodies and consultants have been milling. No doubt that sort of thing is inevitable when a democracy gets ready for war—unless the democracy is France, which remained reasonably ready. It may even be a good thing. That prefatory milling gives time for the plans to be prepared and for folly to be checked and for the men on horseback to appear.

This is a sort of an introduction to a hint at what Chairman Henry P. Davison is doing with the American Red Cross. To use garden language, he is making things jingle. A lot of refined people are being surprised at the activity they are developing. Davison used to be the favorite of the late J. P. Morgan, because he was able to think of a lot of things and then get the things done on time. Most of the time, too, he was right.

The American Red Cross has done a noble work during this war. Some criticism has been directed at it because here and there those prominent in it have been thought to measure the value of individuals to the organization by a social inch-rule. Most of this criticism was uninformed.

Immediate Decision.

But the Red Cross did not develop its full powers of punch until Davison took hold. The other day one of the employes put a proposition before Davison.

"There is no hurry about this, Mr. Davison," said the employe. "It need not be decided now. Any time will do."

There is no such time as "any time" on Davison's calendar.

"When you have been with me a little while you will know that I always decide at once," said he.

Then he decided. That employe humorously reports himself as being in a state of mental indigestion. He had not been used to rapid action. But he likes it. Things are beginning to get done. He has developed enthusiasm under this forced draught of which he had not believed himself capable.

"I can get this done immediately," another employe reported. Davison objects to anything that savors of vagueness in statement.

"Just what do you mean by 'immediately?'" he asked.

"Tomorrow noon," said the employe.

This story came to the ears of a New York business man who has served with Davison on committees in the Morgan office in New York. He laughed all over.

"He'll raise thunder if that thing isn't done by tomorrow noon, too," said he. "Davison has sort of an automatic memory. At noon tomorrow that thing will pop up in his mind and he will ask about it. The man who promised it had best be ready with a mighty good excuse if it isn't done."

Action Follows His Speech.

The war council met the other day. One of the matters under consideration was the raising of a fund for Red Cross purposes. The council rather felt that $100,000,000 would be a nice little sum to start the Red Cross off with. But there was no enthusiasm about getting that $10,000,000 right away. It was felt that a campaign for this sum might interfere with the sale of the liberty bonds. Davison listened in silence for a time. Then he got up.

"I had rather have $100,000,000 now than $200,000,000 next fall," he said.

No one had even thought of that much money. It had not occurred to any one that Red Cross money is needed now instead of next fall. The war council sort of reared back on its haunches and looked at Davison. Then it looked again. Then it said that Brother Davison was about right and that we would raise $100,000,000 for the Red Cross and the council would now take up the next order of business.

Here is another sample of Davison's punch. The other day a list of the American prisoners of war now held in German prisons came in, to be made public at a date to be fixed on. Once that would have been a good story for the Red Cross. It is not a 100 per cent good story to Davison. He has the ideas of a world beating press agent.

"We shall not give it out until we have found out what we can do for them," said he. "That will interest people."

Under his management finding out what can be done for the prisoners of war will be equivalent to doing that thing. It was Davison who more than any other man was responsible for the success of the Anglo-French 5 per cent loan. The Morgan office was floating it, but it was floating after the fashion of a flatiron. Davison got on the job. He began to call New York financiers on the telephone.

"I am holding some of these bonds for you," he said to them, "but I cannot hold the list open after 3 o'clock this afternoon. Let me know by that time how much you want."

So the list was filled. Yet Davison is not the sort of a man who has developed "personal punch" by the hand gripping and jaw-setting methods featured by the correspondence schools. He is simple and human and approachable. He is the only one of the Morgan partners who likes to shake hands—really likes to shake hands. If any one has business with Davison he can get in to see him. The office boy does not sift his callers for him.

"If Davison were to meet me on the street and tell me I must start for Shanghai this afternoon," said one man, "I would not even wait to telephone my wife. That's the sort of a man he is."

The chances are that under Davison, backed by the government's powers as he is, the regrettable diffusion of American efforts will be put an end to. All sorts of committees and individuals have been raising money and doing things for the sufferers abroad. Much of that money and effort has been wasted. I know personally of one consignment of American goods that rotted on the docks at Salonica for more than a year until an American Red Cross nurse—Miss Emily Simmonds—found out about it. She violated a number of rules and perhaps broke a number of laws. But she got the goods and distributed them where they were most needed. That is merely an instance of a prevailing condition.

American efforts will now be centralized. The Red Cross will run things, and run them well. Davison's record is a guarantee.

15-PIECE ORCHESTRA FOR SPECIAL SERVICES

TWO TICK ERADICATION MEETINGS THIS WEEK

Dr. L. R. Fauteck, in charge of tick eradication work in this county and section, has two meetings staged for this week. He is booked for a meeting in Leroy on July 12, at 5 o'clock, and at West next Saturday, July 15, about 2:30.

WILSON IN TIP TOP SHAPE AND WORKING HARD

WAR WITH GERMANY HAS NOT JARRED WOODROW DESPITE ITS MANY TERRORS.

Special to The News.

Washington, July 7.—President Wilson has not been jarred by the war. In health he never was better. He is up to date on his mail and appears less worried than at any time since he assumed the presidence. He gets up at 5 every morning and goes for a horseback ride with Mrs. Wilson. They go by motor to the old mill in Rock Creek park, where the horses are waiting, and after an hour or two of exercise, return to the machine and ride back to the city for a bath and breakfast. By 8:30 he is ready for his mail.

The president has adopted a new system in handling his personal mail. He goes to the office section of the white house only twice a week then to attend cabinet meetings. At other times he does his work in the old or residence part. He has set a tier of filing cases behind his desk and indexes and files everything himself.

Perhaps during wartime this insures keeping of important information until such time as it should be communicated. He has his typewriter in front of him on his desk and pecks away at it like a professor writing a history. His Flag day speech was written on this machine and the original copy treasured by Secretary Tumulty in leather binding might be sent out as an advertisement by a typewriting firm.

Appointments are made for both morning and afternoon, but most of the personal business occurs in the afternoon. Interviews at the white house are followed by frequent trips to the capitol, and it is not unusual for Mr. Wilson to run over to the war department or the federal trade commission's offices to see some man on business he wishes to straighten out at once. His visits to the capitol have become so frequent they no longer create surprise.

The president has not given up golf. About every third day he goes to the Washington club and plays 11 holes. By reducing the number he cuts out a couple of miles of the course and saves an hour or so of time. Dr. Grayson is still his riding and golfing "buddie," and the long-suffering secret service men have had to add the equestrian art to that of riding motorcycles, driving automobiles and long distance hiking and running.

About three evenings in the week the president goes out. One of these is sure to find him at the local vaudeville theater, and another at some other theater where there is a non-serious attraction.

Whenever Washington has had a stock company putting on the old favorites, as it has for a number of years, the president was sure to be there. He knows all the stock favorites and has had them as guests at the white house.

BONILLA, MEXICAN NEWS WRITER, IS EXECUTED BY ZAPATA IS REPORT

By the Associated Press.

Mexico City, July 7.—News of the execution of Enrique Bonilla, by order of Gen. Emiliano Zapata, the bandit chief operating in the state of Morelos, for whom he was an unsuccessful emissary to the federal government, has been received here.

Bonilla, a well known newspaperman who espoused Zapata's cause at the time of the Aguas Calientes convention and who has been with the bandit since that time, recently presented himself to the government military commander at Puebla and declared he came with instructions to treat for the surrender of the Zapata forces. He was given safe conduct to Mexico City, where he had a brief interview with General Pablo Gonzalez, who had been in charge of the government campaign in Morelos.

Bonilla asked audience with President Carranza, but it was discovered that he bore no credentials which would enable him to act for the rebel chieftain in the matter of a surrender. He did not see General Carranza, but was told the only terms which could be granted Zapata were unconditional surrender. He was under close surveillance for a number of days and finally was sent back to Morelos and given safe conduct through the government lines.

Reports which have just arrived here declare that Zapata, convinced that Bonilla had not been faithful on his mission, had ordered his execution. Many chiefs of the Zapata forces, it is said, interceded for Bonilla, but without convincing Zapata that he had not been betrayed. Bonilla, according to the dispatches, was stood before a wall near Cuatla and shot within a few days after his return.

BELLS AND FRENCH CHIMES ARE FINDING THEIR WAY TO GERMAN MUNITION MAKERS

By the Associated Press.

Noyon, France, July 7.—Inhabitants of this region no longer have any doubt as to the fate of the bells and chimes of Northern France. Following those of Belgium, they have taken the road to German munitions factories.

All the churches of the region of the Oise and the Somme were stripped of everything they contained in the form of copper and brass before the occupying troops retired. There is no reason to suppose that those still inside the German lines have been spared.

These depredations are acutely felt in this region which has been the country of bells and chimes since Charlemagne generalized their use throughout the empire.

Inhabitants of this region who were deported to Germany before the retreat and have since been repatriated bring news that the Germans have now attempted to "regularize" their rape of the bells by issuing a general "requisition" of all bells not dating as far back as the Middle Ages. Bells cast between 1400 and 1800 are spared only when they bear historical inscriptions or have otherwise an exceptional value historically or artistically. Since few of the bells of Northern France have the necessary antiquity to escape this regulation, it is assumed that all, or nearly all of them have already been fired back upon French soil in the form of projectiles.

Most of the really ancient bells of France were destroyed during the revolution.

WACO MAN QUALIFIED IN INSURANCE CONTEST

L. B. McCulloch, district agent for the Union Central Life Insurance company of Cincinnati, has been advised that he was the first man in the North Texas agency of the company to qualify for the agency convention to be held next January in the City of Washington, D. were recruited and sent to India. Military expeditions were organized to be carried on from America and Siam.

Arms and ammunition were smuggled through China and Japan. The whole conspiracy was a well defined effort to create a revolution in India for the purpose of forcing England to maintain large bodies of troops in India that otherwise would have been for use against Germany on the battle front. The evidence presents an amazing display of intrigue at the expense of the laws and hospitality of the United States."

Enemy agents were sent to China and Japan to attempt to bribe the press of those nations and to procure secret treaties between the German empire and those governments in aid of the Hindu revolutionary plot in connection with which 139 indictments were returned today, according to a statement made tonight by John W. The Brown Auto company report the sale of a Nash-Jeffery Six Saturday to Mr. Kerr of Corsicana.

Lexington prospects are plentiful, but the cars are scarce, the demand being so much greater right from the start than was anticipated, has caused a slight delay in deliveries, however, in the future, Mr. Brown says, he hopes to have these cars coming in fast enough to take care of the demand.

MUSICIANS WILL LAUNCH PLANS TO AID IN WAR

By Associated Press.

New York, July 7.—A concerted movement by American composers and dramatists and leaders of national civic and musical organizations, for the production of American opera and other native music in the English tongue, will be formally launched here tomorrow.

While the offices of the organization directing the movement will be in New York, its incorporators represent all sections of the country. Reginald de Koven, the composer, is chairman of the national committee of organization, its other members being Mrs. David Allen Campbell, Chicago; Charles W. Cadman, San Francisco; John Alden Carpenter, Chicago; George W. Chadwick, Boston; Frederick S. Converse, Boston; Arthur Farwell, New York; Henry Hadley, Boston; Mrs. W. A. Hinckle, Peoria, Ill.; Percy MacKaye, New York; Douglas Malloch, Chicago; W. J. McCoy, San Francisco; Max Rabinoff, New York; Joseph Redding, San Francisco; Mrs. Frank A. Seiberling, Akron, Ohio; Lee Shubert, New York; John Philip Sousa, New York; Mrs. William D. Steele, Sedalia, Mo., and David Stevens, New York.

Announced Policy.

The announced policy of the organization is to produce throughout the United States operatic works by American composers and dramatists only, acted and sung by an all-American company, with an all-American orchestra, chorus and ballet.

"It is evident," said Mr. de Koven today, "that American music never will be definitely developed by the employment of the foreign artist and the performance of foreign works. Italy, with less than a third the population of the United States, possesses sixty-three producing opera houses. The music of Germany and France has been made familiar to the world by its indorsement at home. Russian opera, similarly encouraged, now is being sung internationally in increasing measure year by year.

"Of all the great music loving and music supporting nations of the earth, America alone, until now, has made no material effort for the encouragement of her native and natural musical genius.

"We have spent millions to hear foreign singers and declined to hear our own.

Different Interests.

"The different interests which have been working separately to correct this condition now have been brought together in one organization. They are all inspired by the same ideals, the one essential hitherto lacking being co-ordination in one definite, practical plan.

"This union of forces constitutes the most forward step in the development of American native music in the history of the country. The American composer and dramatist of a really notable work are now assured proper presentation, and an adequate number of performances. The American singer is to be given an opportunity and an audience. The American people will be permitted to enjoy music in their native tongue and to contribute to its development.

"It is a patriotic and historic movement, deserving universal American support at a time when, as never before, our national consciousness is awakening, and when we realize that in art, as in all things, America must take her high place among the nations of the world."

MART FAIR WAS BIG SUCCESS, SAY HEADS

Special to The News.

Mart, July 7.—The Mart fair and stock show for 1917 has closed and the one word, success, spells it all.

The attendance on each of the four days was greater than on any previous year. People came from a longer distance than ever before.

The largest day was July 4, when an estimated crowd of 7,000 attended. The races were the big feature of the fair and the best events were conducted on Friday, which was probably the second largest day.

The News interviewed the officers of the fair association and their statement follows:

"In my estimation the Mart fair broke all records. Thousands of people were here and financially it could not be beaten. Plans are already on foot to make next year's fair a state event. H. S. EARLE,

"President of Mart Fair."

"Never before in the history of the Mart fair have we achieved such wonderful success. The dry weather did not keep the crowds away. They wanted to come to the best fair and the results show they did come.

"R. W. BASS, Secretary."

"I believe the widespread publicity and the splendid attractions and premiums were largely responsible for the big success of this year's fair, which was the greatest success from every standpoint of any previous year. All records were shattered and Mart has accomplished much in placing this city on the map.

"E. M. PARKS, Vice President."

COAST ARTILLERY PLANS BIG RECRUITING DRIVE

Hal V. Hays and F. J. Herbelin, recruiting officers here for the Texas coast artillery, have received dispatches from Washington stating that drafting for men will begin about Aug. first and after that date no more volunteers will be accepted. Men are coming in very rapidly and any who care to enter this branch will act wisely by enlisting at once, as this company will soon have reached war strength, after which no one can be accepted. Mr. Hays states that all that have enlisted or that come in the first of the week will be examined some time this coming week by government physicians here in Waco, and that they will be mustered into federal service about August 1, after which they will go direct to Galveston.

Mr. Hays states that many of those enlisted are much pleased with the many interesting features obtained in this branch that cannot be had in other branches of the army.

General Hulen, head of the Texas national guard, is advising every one who wishes to enter any particular branch of service to enlist at once, as it may possibly be just a day or so before all recruiting offices will be closed. Recruiting offices for the Texas coast artillery are located corner Eighth and Franklin streets, Hays Tire company building.

REICHSTAG IS TOLD THAT ENGLAND NEARS STARVATION

By Associated Press.

Amsterdam, Thursday, July 5.—(Delayed)—In the main committee of the Reichstag, according to a Berlin dispatch, a progressive speaker declared the food difficulties of England were clearly becoming daily greater because of the U-boat war. It was technically impossible for the United States to increase its shipbuilding industry in a short time he said, and the program to build a thousand wooden ships had proved an "American bluff."

The lack of iron was being felt in Great Britain, continued the member, and would be increasingly felt the more America increased her construction of steel ships. The world's new construction for the current year he assumed would be two million tons and therefore he held the continued U-boat warfare would necessarily fatally reduce the total tonnage.

BRITISH NAVY IS WIDE AWAKE

By Associated Press.

London, July 7.—The attitude of the British navy towards its critics among press and public was for a long time one of amused tolerance. Of late it has grown more restive, and many naval leaders now believe that the time has come when the navy must present a really belligerant front towards its detachers.

"It would take me a long time to answer the criticism which are being passed upon the work of the Admiralty and the British navy," said Sir Edward Carson, First Lord of the Admiralty, the other day. "I can divide the critics into several categories. There are my political critics. I despise them in the middle of the war. Then there are critics who have been disappointed in the past. There are many of them. When you read criticisms of Sir John Jellicoe, try to find out what is the origin of them.

"But after all it does not really matter; there will always be grumblings and growlings. Let them grumble and growl; let us get on with our work. The work of the Admiralty, the work of the great British navy, is done silently and courageously. It is done in the day, it is done in the night. It is done every hour and every minute and I tell you with all confidence, that I believe in the whole history of the British navy there never was a time at which our men displayed greater heroism and courage than they do at the present moment."

A group of naval men the same afternoon were discussing some of the recent utterances of one of the most acid of the navy's critics. "The navy has failed us," was one of his remarks which they quoted, "there has been lack of energy in tackling the U-boat menace. New men are wanted, and changes in the higher command."

"Now what does he mean by the 'old group?' Does he mean the group who left the Admiralty six months ago, or does he mean the group who took their places? If he means the former, they have been got rid of already; if he means the latter, he might convey more to his readers if he called them the 'new group.' But it is an open secret that among this new group are several men who at an earlier period refused point blank to be slaves to manufacturers and designers.

"Another naval critic presents an extraordinary scheme for mining outside German harbors so that U-boats could not pass and repass. He suggests that the carrying out of this scheme will lead to a meeting between the battle-fleets. As this is presumably the height of our naval ambition, and as it is apparently so very simple the reader is naturally surprised that no one has thought of it before. I suppose the critic has an equally simple method for dealing with the minefields, coast defense batteries, and submarines which would certainly be encountered. If he has not, then his statement amounts to nothing. If he has, I am glad the censor did not let him write about it, because of course it will be acted upon.

"If criticism cannot be logical, instructive, constructive and single-purposed, the navy rightly resents it as impertient and michevous. In times likes the present, to scare a public somewhat ignorant of this special subject by a mere meaningless melange of words, is an abuse of the privilege of free publication."

PRELIMINARY PLANS OF NEW CHURCH ACCEPTED

Preliminary plans for the new Central Presbyterian church at Thirteenth and Washington streets, have been accepted, and work is to begin this week on final plans for the new edifice. Work will be started as soon as the plans are finally completed and the contract can be let. The new church will be built of semifire proof material, either of brick or reinforced concrete. Plans are being made by Ross and Cason, architects.

BARACA-PHILATHEA.

The following is the program for the Baraca-Philathea City union which will meet with Central Christian church Monday, July 9, 8:15 p. m.:

Reading, Miss Wilma Williams.

Piano solo, Miss Edith Fields.

Round table discussion, "How to Keep a Good Class Attendance During Summer Months," led by Robert McCullough.

Talk, "Proper Way to Prepare a Bible Lesson," Mrs. C. H. Carringer.

UNIQUE PLAN TO AID CIRCLES NOW AIDING RED CROSS

Something decidedly new in the way of entertainment is the high cost of living lawn party, which will be held on the lawn of the Alex Sanger residence, Eighteenth and Washington, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

A number of surprises, significant of the name have been prepared and the entire program to be given will be distinctly different.

The proceeds of this fete, at which there will be no admission charged, are to go to the Red Cross fund for the purchase of material with which to supply the various neighborhood sewing circles, which have sprung up in the city in such a surprisingly large number. The shortage of funds has resulted in a scarcity of material. Therefore, this opportunity of the public at large to give its mite to keep the circles busy has been planned.

STRIKE OF COAL PASSERS IN KANSAS CITY TIES TRAFFIC

By Associated Press.

Kansas City, Mo., July 7.—Street car service was at a standstill here two hours tonight, the result of a strike of firemen and coal passers in one of the main power plants. About 100 men went out after their demand for additional pay was refused.

An emergency crew was marshalled from employes of the company and the service resumed.

POLICE FORCE IN E. ST. LOUIS WILL NOW BE DOUBLED

By Associated Press.

East St. Louis, Ill., July 7.—Plans for the reorganization of the East St. Louis police force, which has been demanded by business men as a result of the race rioting last Monday, began to take definite form today.

Banks of this city, it is announced, will advance the funds for a doubling of the police force. The banks will make a long term loan to the city.

COTTON FUTURES RULES MAY SOON BE REDRAFTED

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 7.—Redrafting of the rules governing cotton futures transactions to eliminate undue fluctuations in price was discussed at a conference today between department of agriculture officials and officers of the New York Cotton exchange. The conference took up also suggestions made by Lord Northcliffe for a coordination of dealings on American and British exchanges to stabilize international prices.

AUTHORITY ON DAIRYING SPENDS SUNDAY HERE

George F. Littler of San Antonio, one of the best known authorities in Texas on dairying matters, reached Waco Saturday afternoon. He is at the State House and will be here today. Mr. Littler is an ardent advocate of the plan of dairymen raising their own feed, especially at this time when there is such a demand on the resources of the country.

WORK ON COLISEUM TO START THIS WEEK

Active preparations for beginning work on the new coliseum at the Cotton Palace have been made by Contractor Homer J. Ainsworth, and this week will see the beginning of actual construction. The work of excavating will begin Monday or Tuesday. The new coliseum will be ready for the exposition next fall. A building permit for the coliseum has been issued by Building Inspector S. P. Herbert.

To the People:

Having had since my ninth trial, a couple of days ago, so many inquiries as to why I did not get a record of my license as a Doctor of Chiropractic, I desire to say there is no law in this state providing for the granting of license to a chiropractor, and no provision made for the recording of such.

There are more than 100 chiropractors in Texas, and none of them have a license to practice for the simple reason there is no board to grant license to practitioners of our profession.

Some seventeen states have provided for the granting and recording of license to practice chiropractic, but not Texas.

I have a diploma from a chartered college of chiropractic, but Texas does not provide for the recording of it. The last jury that tried me asked for this information, but the court would not permit the jury to know why I had no license recorded.

As I have not been permitted under the ruling of the court to testify anything about my training or my work as a chiropractor, would say I have taken a three years' course in college as a student of chiropractic, have been practicing my profession in this country two years, have had more than 700 patients and there has not been a single complaint made against me either in or out of the court, except by and at the request of the medical men of this county. I have offered to prove at each trial the result of my work, and that I have and am curing a large number of people that the medical doctor has failed to cure, but I have been denied this right.

As one of the pioneer chiropractors in this state, I am not afraid for my patients to let the juries that try me know what my science is, what I have done and what I am doing to those who are afflicted with disease.

I hope at some future time (as I presume the medical men will continue to prosecute me) I may be permitted to give the juries before whom I am tried at least enough testimony that they may know something about me, my qualification and what I am able to do before they are instructed to send me to jail for helping people to get well.

Yours for all the good I can do,

CHARLES C. LEMLY,

"The Chiropractor."

News From Baylor

The chief events of the coming week at Baylor will be the recital by Miss Eschol Taylor and Mrs. Jaques Rousseau and a series of demonstrations of war-time cookery by Mrs. Frederick Eby of Austin.

Many Waco people know Miss Eschol Taylor as one of the teachers of piano at the university, and her splendid interpretations in several recent recitals have brought her many compliments from Waco music lovers. Miss Taylor is a Baylor-trained musician who has completed her education abroad, and she is a favorite with all who know her. Mrs. Rousseau has been for some years one of Waco's best church soloists and has sung leading parts in the musical events of the city, both at the university and in two or three of the largest churches in Waco. She has a very rich pleasing voice, and many will recognize selections on the program which she renders with exceptional ability. The recital will doubtless be attended by a large number, as have the previous ones of the season.

The program is as follows:

A. D., 1620

Will o' the Wisp (Czandas) .McDowell

Miss Taylor.

Song of Joy ... .Woodman

Mrs. Rousseau.

Nina ... ...Pergolesi-Joseffy

Capriccio .... Brahms

Lita (Caprice Espagnol).....Pavina

Miss Taylor.

From the land of sky blue water

....Cadman

My Baby .....Eggert

Open thou, my love, thy blue eyes

... .Massenet

Mrs. Rousseau.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Strecker left yesterday for Atlanta, where he will attend the W. O. W. convention. They will be gone for several weeks.

Among the members of Dr. Paul Murphey's ambulance company which is now being organized there will be several Baylor men. Lexa B. Morris, ex-16, and J. Homer Caskey, '15, of the faculty have already been accepted, and Vivian Lawson, '15, and James Collins, '20, have applied for enlistment and will be examined soon.

A large number of women from the city are taking advantage of the opportunities offered by the Baylor gymnasium and are playing volley ball there several evenings each week.

Mrs. A. E. Wells is still detained in New York City by the very serious illness of her mother.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Collier returned from Cloudcroft during the last week to be present at the marriage of their son.

The story hour of the coming week will be devoted to the presentation of the opera, Carmen, on the Victrola. These Friday evening presentations of opera by means of the Victrola have proved quite popular with Baylor people and a good crowd is expected at 7:30 Friday evening when Miss Martin gives this one of the series.

Beginning Monday a series of partical demonstrations of economical methods of cooking will be given at Baylor at five o'clock every afternoon. These demonstrations are in line with the warnings of high officials that our food supply must be conserved. New methods of cooking and new uses for various cereals and vegetables will be shown by actual cooking on a stove. Mrs. Eby has made a special study of home economics at the university of Texas, where her husband, Dr. Frederick Eby is a professor of education. Those in Waco who know Mrs. Eby's thorough methods as a student and her practical ability will be very glad of this oportunity to learn from her how the women may help Uncle Sam in keeping down war prices. The lectures will last for two weeks and the program will be as follows:

War bread—(a) Cotton seed flour breads; (b) Oatmeal bread.

Quick Bread—(a) Spoon corn bread; (b) Rice flour biscuits.

Peanuts—(a) Peanut Loaf; (b) Peanut and oatmeal cookies.

Beans and Peas—(a) Bean stew with dumplings; (b) bean loaf.

TAKES THE PLACE OF DANGEROUS CALOMEL

New Discovery! Dodson's Liver Tone Acts Like Calomel But Doesn't Gripe, Salivate or Make You Sick—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Harmless Liver Medicine for Men, Women, Children—Read Guarantee!

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated, or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine, entirely vegetable. therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

DID WILLIE PORTER KILL OR DID HE GAMBLE WITH SILENCE AND LOSE WHEN DEFENSE FAILED?

ple today a man who could have taken his place on the witness stand and have cleared Willie Porter of cold-blooded murder.

But, he would have slipped his own neck into the noose, or locked himself in a felon's cell. He is still sitting in his office. In his instrument closet there is without doubt the instrument which was used, and which the testimony of reputable physicians show was used before Emma Staley died. He will continue his practice, will continue to be allowed to learn how to relieve mothers to save their own lives and to use that knowledge on such nights as March 12.

Of course, this is but a theory, but look at the testimony:

The Theory Advanced.

One of the first things that we heard when we learned that Emma Staley's dead body had been found in the Leon river was that a laundry bag had been found containing her clothes, identified as such by the family.

According to the testimony, the girl had been on her way to San Angelo, a distance of more than 100 miles from Belton. Every one of the family wore good clothes. The sister just two years older than Emma is as dainty and as prettily dressed as any girl in Belton. Her clothes are not fine, yet they show the utmost good taste and refinement. The clothes found in the laundry bag were of good quality. One dollar and fifty cents for a suitcase would not have been difficult for Emma to obtain. The family connections are large. Her chum knew that she was going away. Surely somehow or from some one she could have secured a suitcase in which to carry those clothes. I have traveled a good many miles, but I have never yet seen a 22-year-old girl, pretty, refined, get on the train with a laundry bag full of clothes. SHE DID NOT EXPECT TO GO TO SAN ANGELO. SHE DID NOT EXPECT TO BE OUT OF WILLIE PORTER'S BUGGY OR A DOCTOR'S AUTOMOBILE BEFORE SHE HAD REACHED A HOUSE.

Why should Willie Porter take her to Nolanville? It would be all right for a brother to take her in the dead of night through lonely lanes, but what about a married man? Do most mothers trust their girls to married men when it is only a matter of taking a girl to a train? Why Willie Porter as escort? Is it reasonable, could any of her family think it reasonable, that Willie Porter was willing to assist her to a train at Nolanville where he would be recognized almost inevitably?

The girl had prepared to go to a maternity home. Her parents were not driving her away from home. They were willing to pay her expenses in one home. Why should she decline their offer and wait for two more dangerous months, when exposure thru her appearance alone was becoming imminent? She expected Willie Porter to relieve her as he had relieved her before. She did not want a child to be born for obvious reasons. Suicide to most girls would be preferable. In some way she communicated with Willie Porter and opportuned him to relieve her. Perhaps that was what they were discussing at the barn that day. Perhaps that was what was in the letter that Ida Staley thought she saw Emma hand to him that day when he went after corn.

What the Letter Said.

If she were not going on a railroad journey—and what woman can look at the family and believe that a daughter of that family would take a journey with a blue-and-pink laundry bag?—where was she going? Relatives of one family or the other lived thick all through the country. What is easier than for the girl to be taken to the house of a close-mouthed relative until she had convalesced from the operation?

The state did not try to prove complicity. Nearly everywhere a buggy track was found, there, too, was an automobile track. The tracks were apparently of the same age, according to witnesses, who, of course, could not qualify as experts. What man driving a car could have accompanied Willie Porter on that night? Nearly every doctor owns an automobile. After Willie Porter had seen the operation performed, the doctor had planned to take the girl alone to town, letting Willie Porter return to his home.

After he had looked at the instruments and inquired after medicines in the drug store, he concluded that their use at that stake might be accompanied with too much danger. Every one knows that there are doctors in many towns who can be bought to perform that operation.

The Auto and Buggy.

And so the automobile and the buggy the automobile carrying the dead girl's body, no doubt, passed old Mr. Hughes' home that night as he lay sick near his window. And the buggy and the automobile were going slowly, as if the automobile were trying to keep pace with the slower gait of the horse.

And Mrs. Stephens, who testified that on the night of March 12, the date fixed in her mind by the unwonted presence of her brother-in-law, she saw an automobile run up on the bridge at Miller Springs, turn off its lights, stay for a few minutes, and then go "hell bent" as the attorney said, for Belton.

The automobile tracks were ignored, practically, in the search for tracks made by a rubber tired buggy, because Willie Porter was known to have one in his possession. The state had its mind made up and its theory formed, on account of the testimony furnished by Mrs. Staley and Miss Ida Staley, so the tracks made by an automobile were ignored. The abrasion of the scantling or stringer of the bridge could have been made by an automobile just as well as by a rubber-tired buggy, or so it was testified to in court.

Facts Are Granted.

My theory grants that every fact proved by the state was correct. It requires that every fact be true, else the theory would be untenable.

There are two other questions that it answers in part:

Why did he kiss her?

What was in that letter that was found on the dead girl's body?

That kiss has been called the kiss of Judas. It was nothing of the kind. It was the kiss of a man who still felt a tenderness for the girl who had meant a great deal to him for two years. He was doing as she had asked him to. He was taking her to relieve her of her condition. He had not known that she was in this condition when he married, perhaps. That is immaterial.

He did not know that he was being watched.

There was no need for him to kiss her unless his feeling really prompted him to do so.

What Letter Said.

One of the attorneys for the prosecution said to me:

"The letter found on the body of Emma Staley did not mention Willie Porter's name. It talked about the girl 'going into the hands of murderers.' The writer evidently feared for her life."

If any one had dreamed that Emma Staley would have been murdered by Willie Porter, could any power have induced them to part with her? Does a maternity home murder its inmates? What is safer than such a place?

Who, then, could murder her?

Isn't it probable that the letter referred to a doctor that was going to perform the operation?

All witnesses agree that the time at the automobile was seen was around midnight. The doctor and Willie Porter were afraid of being seen in Belton or Temple, where they were well known. An automobile driving up to a doctor's office at midnight might attract attention, especially if a girl was helped out of it. Doctors of that sort have to guard their reputation zealously.

In the strong light of the automobile, or in light some other way provided, the deed was done, and either the operation itself was the cause of her death or heart failure resulted from the use of chloroform unskillfully administered. The court ruled out the testimony concerning chloroform, as the body was too much decomposed for any opinion to be absolutely indisputable.

The only irreconcilable piece of testimony is that of Ennis Moore, who heard the scream of a woman on Wednesday night after Emma Staley had disappeared on Monday. The time that the body had been in the water was not established beyond the shadow of a doubt, and only the two men know whether the girl was taken somewhere and concealed for those two days. It is possible. The condition of the hands did not prove that she was strangled, but the congested condition of the arteries in the neck could have been due to either strangulation or chloroform.

Willie Porter may have another chance to convince a jury that he is not guilty of first degree murder, that he should not have his neck broken, or that he should not be sentenced to ninety-nine years. I hope that he will confess to every step taken by him on the night of March 12. He can hardly hope for exoneration. But he may prove that he was only accessory after the fact in an accidental killing; that everything was done with the full consent of the girl herself.

Knot in the Theory.

Of course the knot in this theory is the doctor himself. It stands to reason that no doctor who makes a practice of that kind of thing will come forward and confess. But pressure can be brought to bear, once Porter's complete story is in the hands of the court. Five years or twenty years would be an easier verdict than 99 years. There was a pertinent comment made often on the streets of Belton:

"WHAT PORTER NEEDS IS A DETECTIVE AND NOT SO MANY LAWYERS."

WARNS NATIONS HUN INFLUENCE GRIPS JAPANESE

JAPANESE EXCHANGE PROFESSOR OUTLINES EVILS OF GERMAN KULTUR.

By the Associated Press.

Tokio, July 7.—Frankly discussing what he calls the Japanese sympathy with Germany, Professor M. Anesaki, Japanese exchange professor to Harvard University in 1913-1915, declares in a magazine article that although technically Japan is at war with Germany, a feeling of admiration for Germany is quite general among the Japanese people. This, he declares, is a significant contrast with the situation in the United States where anti-German feeling is almost universal. How did German influence gain such an ascendency in Japan, he asks. First of all through Germany's victory in 1870 which induced the Japanese military authorities to adopt German models in place of the French which had been followed previously, and, secondly, through the adaptation of German constitution and jurisprudence found by the late Prince Ito to be more congenial to Japanese needs.

Enter Hun Philosophy.

After German jurisprudence, came German philosophy and science whose influence Germanized the Japanese Imperial university to the extent that in the nineties "going abroad" among students meant "going to Germany," Professor Anesaki continued:

"Japanese pro-Germanism is also due to other reasons. The German desire or need to have a 'place in the sun' is shared by many Japanese leaders in politics and industry. According to these men the claims of Germany as to expansion in various directions are legitimate or urgently necessary. Some Japanese are unfortunately inclined to look askance at the pleas of the Entente powers regarding German atrocities and fail to be impressed by them because 'Germany has done pretty much the same as some other powers did once toward us,' they say."

Admire Their Enemies.

The professor remarked that too ignorant of the real situation, even geographically, the average Japanese has a great, if vague, admiration of Germany's tenacity in the war, and this is a strong point in his pro-German sentiment. Of course the brilliant defense of Verdun by the French the growing strength of the British army, and the signs of German desperation have worked a change in current opinions. Even the military men, the avowed pro-Germans, are beginning to recognize some points of opinion adverse to theirs, but it should be remembered that their pro-German expressions were and are not for the sake of the Germans but for the sake of their own prestige in Japan. Having identified their own interests and principles with those of the German militarists they have impressed the public with the strength and necessity of that militarism and will not abandon their own plea for the necessity of militarism in Japan. Professor Anesaki concluded:

"Therein lies the danger for Japan in politics, education and social life. Pro-Germanism is a disease in Japan and the only remedy lies in convincing the Japanese people of the futility of the German methods. The only way to do this is for the allies to be finally successful not only in military and naval engagements but in social, moral, educational reconstruction to be achieved brilliantly after the war."

IMPERSONATES CATHOLIC PRIEST IN SWINDLE OF SOLDIERS ON WEST FRONT

By the Associated Press.

Orleans, France, July 7.—A soldier, named Taillebois, has been sentenced by courtmartial to a year's imprisonment and 250 francs fine for impersonating a Catholic priest and swindling Catholics. Taillebois is not a Catholic himself. He assumed the name of Father Henry, gained the confidence of a number of priests and parishioners of Orleans and the surrounding country, officiated in several churches and chapels, heard confessions, administered communion in many communes, all the while receiving money for masses and for charitable objects. His downfall came from an attempt to preach in a church at St. Jean le Blanc. The cure of the commune found his doctrine was not altogether Catholic and asked for information regarding the wandering priest from Monsigneur Gibier, Bishop of Versailles, who exposed the swindle.

SHORT ONES.

Bill Hohenzollern knows now Uncle Sam isn't bluffing.

Billions of dollars raised for Liberty bonds, millions for Red Cross and thousands of troops landed in France, is only the first show-down.

"Go tell your king you want peace," says the U-boat captain, as he shoots off another torpedo.

AMERICAN TROOPS IN FRANCE.

It is with a thrill of indescribable pride and joy that the people of this country have learned that some of their matchless regular soldiers and marines have landed on French soil to constitute the first elements of what eventually is to be an immense American army under General Pershing.

The "contemptible little American army" thus begins to follow in the footsteps of "the contemptible little British army" which the corseted martinets of the Prussian war machine so affected to despise. Just as the British gave a wonderful account of themselves, so it is expected will our own regulars, who have never failed to do their duty and carry the flag on to fresh triumphs and glories.

At last the wooden sword which the Prussians told their people was all Uncle Sam would be able to wield turns out to be a steel sword with a sharp edge and a sharper point.

Our cruisers, our fast destroyers, our hospital corps, our engineers, our practical woodsmen, our ambulance men and part of our regular army are already working against Germany.

As the weeks go by, more and more of our troops will find their way to the front. The truth will slowly penetrate the military-mad German mind. Leaders and men will both learn from actual contact that this country has drawn its sword never to return it to the scabbard until a victorious peace has been won.

America has decreed that the awful menace of ruthless German militarism must be driven from the world, and America will stay on the job until it is finished.

Our boundless resources, our food, our money, our munitions, our ships, our men will all be poured into the scale against the kaiser.

The Teutons have reached the peak of their power and from now on are a diminishing quantity. With America in the field, the allies have not yet reached the acme of their power. With us in the war, the anti-kaiserist forces become an increasing quantity. It becomes a simple problem of mathematics. In a war of attrition that side wins which has the most men, the most supplies and the most money. The United States gives the overwhelming preponderance to the side of democracy.

Viewed in this light, autocracy is doomed. Liberty and freedom and popular enlightenment are going to win the greatest fight ever waged for the cause of the plain people.

CUPID'S RECRUITS.

SPEAKING of famous generals, there's Cupid.

Probably you are mobilized in his army. Maybe you volunteered, maybe you were conscripted. "No exemptions," is Cupid's order.

Very few enlist for a short campaign. However, only the married regiments are in for the duration of the war.

But no matter where you are enrolled, nor for how long, you must have discovered that the weakest spot in love's regulations has to do with his training camps. Cupid takes care that his recruits are always handsomely uniformed and splendidly drilled for review, but he forgets to give them sufficient practice in trench digging.

Love sets up his training camps at every summer vacation resort and amusement park. He makes a drill ground of every ball room floor. And his rookies experiment recklessly with the ammunition of flirtation—smiles and sighs, blushes and kisses.

But after the real battle of life has commenced, too many of love's legions prove themselves lacking in the morale by which soldiers survive to become veterans.

No man has entrenched himself properly for the battle of life, if he cannot pay the rent on the bungalow. No domestic trench is safe if its occupants forget to use those small endearments which made pre-nuptial drill so captivating.

Wake up, Cupid!

Put your training camps in kitchens as well as in ball rooms, at the wash tub as well as at the bathing beach. Desertions from your ranks will decrease, the courtmartial known as divorce will disgrace your records less, when you drill your troops more for defense than for the parade.

THIS IS YOUR WAR.

GERMAN spies are not necessarily the most dangerous enemies of the United States. They may blow up a bridge or factory here and there. They may send valuable information to Berlin. But the harm they can do—all of them together—isn't to be compared with the harm done by some American citizens who would poison the public mind in the interest of the Prussian kaiser.

Some of this poisoning is shrewdly done. That is necessary. Openly lending aid and comfort to the enemy isn't safe. In wartime that's treason.

But it isn't open treason to seem patriotically to support a liberty bond issue and to advocate a large army, yet at the same time clearly convey the impression to you that Uncle Sam is fighting John Bull's battle and not yours.

All the same it helps the kaiser's cause in this country—for it makes naturally patriotic American citizens of Irish descent or sympathy lukewarm to the cause of us and our allies. And that's its real purpose.

This isn't England's war. It isn't France's war. We are fighting just as much to defend liberty in America as we are to defend liberty anywhere else on earth from the aggression of Prussianism. So it's our war—your war.

And French, British, Belgian, Italian, Russian, Serbian and other soldiers were fighting our war before the kaiser's outrages on American rights pushed us into it.

It isn't a war for dollars. It isn't a war for trade. It isn't a war for territorial expansion. And it's more than a war to make the world safe for democracy. It's a war for human liberty, a war to save for men, women and children here in our own America the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

It isn't Wilson's war. It isn't Wall street's war. It isn't a capitalistic or a labor war. It's our war, your war, every right-thinking American's war. And your liberty and the liberty of your children and your children's children won't be safe until this war is won and kaiserism is licked for all time to come all over the world.

TEACHING AMERICANISM TO RUSSIANS.

THE official mission from the new revolutionary government of Russia has arrived in Washington and was received at the capital with a simplicity and absence of display and pomp that must have impressed the guests with the fact that this is truly a democracy and not the capitalistic empire some of their wild-eyed fellow countrymen have pictured it to be.

The longer the Russians remain in this country the more illuminating will be the report they will take back with them. Happily there never was a time in recent years when the money power had less influence in Washington than at the present time and happily also, even in wartime, every effort is being made to preserve the basic principles of real democracy.

Aside from all this, the Russians should be able to look at America with eyes prepossessed in our favor. During the long years of their bitter struggle toward freedom, their compatriots, who were forced to flee, found no haven of refuge in autocratic Germany, but in free France, Switzerland, England and the United States. Only in those countries were political refugees safe from the clutches of the minions of the czar. Only in those countries were they sure of sympathy and support and financial aid.

So that the Russian mission comes to America from the Russian democracy finding here not only a present ally, but an old-time friend of the Russian people, as opposed to their brutal masters.

CONGRESSMAN LANGLEY TALKS GOSPEL.

IT is refreshing occasionally to see a congressman display 24-karat horse sense. The other day during a dreary series of speeches, John W. Langley of Kentucky, a staunch republican, uttered this gem:

"Democrat tho he is, I would rather have President Wilson tell me when and what to eat than to have the kaiser do it. As between Wilson and Wilhelm I am for Wilson."

That comes pretty near being straight United States.

Without any mincing of words it shows that in this crisis in the nation's affairs, he who opposes reasonable food regulation as advocated by President Wilson is rendering a great aid and comfort to the German enemy.

American Hero of the Foreign Legion Tells Story of His Fight for France

BY CAPTAIN CHARLES SWEENY, Of the Foreign Legion.

NO. 9—TRAINING FOR THE ATTACK.

Soldiers are trained for the "attack" just as athletes are. I do not mean that they undergo the same sort of training that a pugilist does. As the end is different, so the means are different. The aim is to supply them, physically and mentally, so that when the supreme moment comes and they "go over the top" they will be literally "fit to fight for their lives."

"Tomorrow we start for the rear," we were told in August, 1915. "We are to be made ready for an offensive."

The weeks that followed rest in my memory as among the happiest of my life as a soldier. We had been undergoing the usual gruelling at the front. Suddenly we were transplanted from this life of mud and discomfort and danger to the region north of Belfort. The Boche had never occupied this territory. The little towns were as peaceful in the sunlight as though war was not raging a few miles farther on. The quaint cobbled streets between the stone walls which are a feature of the villages of France rang with the laughter of children. Men and women went quietly about their business. A little time before soldiering had seemed the normal manner of life. Now the horizon blue of the uniform seemed out of place in these charming streets.

Fed Up to Kill.

Six weeks we spent there. A cynic might say that we were being fed up for killing. So we were, in a way, but we were also being given a glimpse of happiness. We bathed when we would. Our meals were perhaps no better than they had been, but we were in the midst of a civilian population and were able to add to the daily menu. Pretty girls went by. Dogs wagged about us and birds sang in the rose bushes and we slept in real beds. After a time at the front a fragrant hayloft seems a luxury.

There were cows everywhere. Did it ever occur to you that the cow is the emblem of true peace? Cows in the countryside means that war is afar off.

All this time we worked hard. We rose at 5 o'clock every morning to drill until 10 or 11 o'clock. It was a pleasure, this drill, our limbs springy and our sinews elastic after the repose of the night before, our nerves freed from the constant strain of the front. For an hour or so each afternoon we likewise drilled, but each day we had many hours to ourselves. The usual tasks of soldiering were made light to us. We were a "corps de shoc," and the efforts of the officers were directed to making us 100 per cent perfect physically. In the trenches we had grown stale.

They Don't Know Defeat.

A "corps de shoe" is a military institution that, if not peculiar to France, is at least an integral part of the French military system. It is a body of the best troops obtainable, who are retained for that moment when the enemy's position is to be carried by assault. Age does not matter. Even physical condition sometimes does not matter, in the individual. The corps de shoc is built upon spirit—elan—the esprit de corps. Such men are irresistible. They do not know defeat. They tear through an enemy's lines without recognizing the cost.

It was the famous Twentieth corps that saved the day on the Couronne de Nancy. The Germans had been hammering the French troops back until the Twentieth corps came up and were hurled against their lines. No statement of their losses has ever been published, but the German rush stopped. They saved that part of France. It was the same corps, under General Petain, that was hurled into the breach at Verdun, when it seemed the Germans were about to break thru. It has been publicly stated that some regiments of the Twentieth corps have had 16,000 names on their rolls since the war began. That means the regiment has been replaced four times over.

When we marched out of the region of Belfort to enter the battle of Champagne we were in the pink of condition. It was a pleasure to see the men march. They were on their toes, like dancing masters. They sang the marching songs of the army as they took the route. Their eyes were bright and they played like children—or like young animals—when the regiments halted for rest. The French theory of physical training had been proven out again. When our corps went forward in the battle of the Champagne no men we could reach stood against us.

Pointed Paragraphs.

QUEER TIMES.

"Vice, long intrenched in Newport town,
Has given up the ghost."
So say the headlines up and down
The famed Atlantic coast.
The roulette wheels are quiet now,
The poker chips interned,
A thousand decks of cards they vow
Have been torn up or burned.
The millionaires' resort is not
More wicked or possessed
By imps of evil than some spot
Out in the tame midwest.
War rules have changed to beat the band
This hectic burg of late.
Millennium is sure at hand

NEW-YORK-DAY-BY-DAY.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, July 7.—Now the St. Denis hotel, another of Broadway's gastronomic landmarks, is doomed. The high death rate of New York hotels would be a matter for concern if it were not for the appreciably higher birth-rate. The St. Denis in the early fifties was the most popular hotel in town.

It stands at the corner of Eleventh street and Broadway opposite Grace church. For many years it has struggled against the sweep of business uptown but like the old Astor, the Continental, Ashland and Morton it could not stand the strain.

Eleventh street at Broadway after the sun goes down is like a deserted street in a small town. There are rows and rows of buildings that are not occupied. Very few lights can be seen until the pedestrian reaches Fourteenth street.

Old Jim, the negro doorman, famous among St. Denis patrons all over the world, will also retire when the St. Denis closes. He has seen the business center move from Canal street far below to Fourteenth street.

For twenty years he has refused to see the glories that are beyond—the theatrical district, the Lobster Belt, and the new and splendid homes on Fifth avenue and the ever increasing commercial center of upper Broadway.

The St. Denis has 400 rooms, large and airy, but it is devoid of hot or cold water and other conveniences—but despite this the old patrons continued to patronize it.

William Dack was making hard going in the Harlem court. All he had to do was to explain the disappearance of a quantity of copper wire from an apartment house, but he was merely floundering. Finally he pointed an accusing finger at Herbert Kelsey, his ragged companion, also charged with petit larceny.

"Your honor," said Dack, "there's the guy. Until I knowed him me life was a clean slate, but ever since he came on the horizon I been in Dutch. Now everyt'ing is wrong wit' me, but before this guy came on the horizon everyt'ing was right wit' me."

"What do you say to that?" asked the court, addressing the somewhat wobbly Kelsey.

"There ain't nothin' much to say, judge," was the answer, "except that if it'll do any good, I'll get off the horizon."

Willie Collier has a negro servant on his Long Island estate who had just registered when Collier dropped in on him.

"What branch of the service doy you prefer—the infantry or cavalry?" asked Collier.

"I dunno, Mister Willie," was the reply, "just what is the difference?"

"Well, in the infantry we go afoot and in the cavalry you ride on a horse."

The negro scratched his head. "Well I guess I better go in the infantry. In case dey orders a retreat I doan' want no horses gettin' in my road."

In one of the cheaper vaudeville houses a song and dance team arrived for their first performance. They looked over their dressing room and the man strolled out to inspect the stake leaving the girl to dress.

Suddenly a voice issued from the dressing room: "Say, Al, how shall I wash tonight, for a low or high neck gown?"

Around the hotel lobbies! At the Brevoort, the Claridge, the Majestic and the Astor I saw women knitting socks for soldiers. Some wag has called it "Doing their knit." In one lobby a good-looking young girl was watching an elderly woman knit. Finally she brust into rippling peals of laughter. "I can't help it," she said. "It seems foolish. A woman will put $5 worth of time on a pair of socks that she can buy for 25c. And many of the socks they make can't be worn because they are not well made. "It sounds like sense, but on the other hand the soldiers may get a touch of sentiment by the fact that his socks were knit by the women at home. And sentiment means a lot in the trenches.

Seen around the town: A sign in front of a wig shop reading: "Save the waste and win the war." A French actress leading a bull dog that had a glass eye. A morbid crowd in front of the shop where the Cruger girl was killed. Charles M. Schwab laughing at a burlesque of Nijinsky's dancing on the Majestic roof. A tenor of the adnoid school trying to sing "The Star-Spangled Banner" in a movie and frightened a lady's dog so that it howled. A gray haired man tangoing at the Astor with a professional dancer while his wife scowled. William S. Hart, the western bad man of the movies, coming out of an ice cream parlor where he had consumed a strawberry fluff. A kid in khaki showing a liberty bond at a theater box office and getting a choice seat free. A rouged woman buoyantly bunned riding alone and laughing to herself in a Fifth avenue Victoria.

The past June has brought more brides than ever in New York hotels. I counted six newlyweds at the Astor, four at the Majestic and three at the Claridge. Other hotels too have their quota. Hotel clerks can spot them at once.

"These brides and what is with them are the toughest guests we have to handle," said a veteran room clerk in a Broadway hotel. "Some of them think they can get away with it and pretend they are old timers by putting on a big front and acting as if they knew all about things. They growl at each other and hold hands under the table at the same time.

"They insist on having things just so and they boss us around a lot, or think they do, but we can spot them and just let them think they are getting away with it. They there's the other kind. They are scared to death and make all sorts of breaks as a result."

Justice isn't the easiest thing in the world to understand and so there may be an excuse for Andrew Buckley in the Jefferson Market court. He was charged with disorderly conduct. He became angry at the plaguing of a group of boys and threw a brick with great inaccuracy through the window of a neutral laundry.

"I've got me temper and I don't propose to let no kids shoot putty blowers at me without defendin' meself," explained Mr. Buckley. "I'm sorry I busted the 'windy,' but I ain't sorry I slammed the brick, now."

"You shouldn't take the law into your own hands, my man," said the court, "when there are policemen to protect you. Now you have your choice of $10 or ten days."

Mr. Buckley looked somewhat surprised, but gave a momentary imitation of deep thought.

"Well," he said finally, "I'll take the money."

The public has been invited to visit McDougal alley for the first time in history. They are giving a fiesta down there, which means a festival. Macdougal alley is the aristocrat of the Washington square streets. It is a blind alley with only stables and ramshackle houses, but many of the most famous studios are there. Rich women who like to dabble in the arts have studies there and the alley is generally filled with limousines—a striking contrast from the rest of the life of the street.

DAVIS-APPLEWHITE WEDDING SATURDAY.

On Saturday, June 30, at 1 o'clock, the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Davis, 1609 Washington street, was the scene of a pretty home wedding, when their daughter, Ruth Seroyen, became the bride of Dr. C. C. Applewhite, of Mississippi.

The mantel had been banked with daisies and ferns, and from it was suspended a unique wedding bell, under which the ceremony took place.

Shortly before the hour for the wedding, Miss Ruby Sessions and Mrs. W. A. Wood met the guests, some of them from Waco but the majority from Hillsboro, the former home of the bride.

Congratulations to the family were hushed by the opening bars of Massenet's "Thais," placed by Misses Alma and Alta Sattenfield of Hillsboro. Blending into this at the close, was Mendelssohn's wedding march, which indicated the coming of the bride. Preceding the bride and groom came Rev. J. M. Dawson, the bride's pastor.

After the ceremony, punch was served in the library by Miss Causen of Hillsboro, assisted by Misses Mary and Harriet Davis, sisters of the bride. The cutting of the bride's cake and the shower of good wishes enlivened the time before the moment of parting.

The bride was reared in Hillsboro, and has for years been an universal favorite in both church and society circles. For some months Dr. Applewhite has been stationed in Hill county, with the national Health survey corps. While there he has gained the esteem and appreciation of the entire county as well as of the people of Hillsboro.

Dr. and Mrs. Applewhite are now visiting relatives in Mississippi and Tennessee, but they wil soon return to Waco and to Hillsboro, until called by the government.

PICNIC FOR MISS PETIT.

The members of the Evangelia board held their monthly meeting at the Fish Pond, making a picnic of the occasion in honor of Miss Bird Petit, the popular resident director of Evangelia House. As she was soon to leave on her vacation, the members brought gifts useful for traveling and attractively arranged in a basket, they were presented by Mrs. T. J. Strain.

A lunch was cooked and served at noon and was enjoyed by all the board members and several outside visitors. Miss Petit will be missed from the city for about six weeks, her vacation trip taking her to Colorado.

WEDNESDAY BRIDGE WITH MRS. S. D. JONES.

Mrs. S. D. Jones was Wednesday's hostess for her bridge club. Mrs. Montgomery scored high and was presented with a crystal bud vase. Consolation was cut by Mrs. John Pluto, who received two novelty handkerchiefs. A refreshing plate of sandwiches and iced tea were served before the club adjourned to meet next Wednesday with Mrs. J. E. Bauer of South Fourth street. Guests other than club members were Mesdames N. S. Clifton, Joe Kirby and George Skaggs.

JONES-LEDFORD WEDDING.

Mr. Lee R. Jones and Miss Lena Ledford were married at 1901 Franklin, on Thursday evening. The porch had been decorated with palms and ferns and vines for the occasion. The guests were seated on the lawn. Miss Gussie Oscar opened the service by playing the wedding march, and then the groom and his bride stepped out on the porch, the lights were switched on, and Rev. R. S. Brown met them to perform the Methodist ring service.

After the ceremony punch and cake were served to about sixty people, the relatives and intimate friends of the couple. Mrs. Ella Lovelace presided at the punch bowl. Miss Sallie Cartwright, a cousin of the bride, whisked them away before they could be observed by the crowd, and no use could be found for the little bags of rice that had been prepared.

The bride was very dainty and attractive in a gown of white Georgette. She carried a shower banquet of daisies and ferns and wore a large white picture hat.

Mr. Jones is connected with the Consumers' Cotton Oil company, and is the son of Mr. Ruby Jones, a distinguished Confederate veteran of Waco. The bride is well known here, where she has been reared and educated. Upon their return from San Antonio they will reside at 1901 Franklin street.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Percy Jones of Dallas, Mr. and Mrs. E. Burns of Dallas, Mrs. Lem K. Preston of Beaumont, and Mrs. J. McGlasson of Elgin.

BROWN-COBB WEDDING.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cobb, Miss Vera Cobb and Mr. Elmo Brown of Normangee were married Monday evening at 9 o'clock. Mr. Clarence Wallace sang, "Oh, Promise Me," accompanied by Mrs. C. H. Wallace. Miss Estelle Cobb, maid of honor, was gowned in grey Georgette and taffeta. Miss Annie Crippen, bridesmaid, was dressed in white net and lace. Each attendant carried an arm bunch of pink carnations.

The groom was attended by Mr. Earl Brown of Madisonville, best man, and Mr. Ed Eubanks. The bride, who entered with the groom, was charming in sand Georgette and taffeta, with blue trimmings. She carried a bride's bouquet of white carnations. The Rev. Turner performed the ceremony. A large collection of handsome gifts will go toward adorning the home, which will be waiting for them on their return to Normangee from Houston and Galveston, where they will spend their honeymoon.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were: Mr. Earl Brown of Madisonville, Miss Benizna Brown of Madisonville, Mrs. Marion Parker of Normangee, Mr. Travis Parker of Normangee, Miss Fay Pynes and Miss Marion Moorehead of Franklin; Messrs. Earl Maris and Scott of Franklin. After a reception in the home which had been prettily decorated with ferns, palms and cut flowers, Mr. and Mrs. Brown departed on their bridal trip to Houston and Galveston.

HAPPY FOURTH FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

A crowd of youngsters gathered on the lawn of Mrs. Frank Reiplinger Thursday evening for a Fourth of July celebration.

It was the idea of Misses Laurine, Dorothy and Nelle Reiplinger to have each guest to appear in costumes of their choice. Promptly at 5 o'clock the guests were present and all formed an interesting parade on the lawn, to which the Victrola did due justice with a patriotic air.

Virginia Brown and Laurine Reiplinger led the parade dressed as Liberty, wearing dark blue, spangled in silver stars, a lone star on their crown and carrying silk American flags.

Next came Valorie Shaw, as Columbia, then Mamie Brame in black velvet suit as eGorge Washington, with his mother (Sarah Brame) with powdered hair, silk brocaded satin dress—her mother's first party dress.

The next in line were the flag boys and girls with their white dresses draped in colors and carrying flags. They were Margaret, Kathlyn, Helen and Alice Lyle, Virginia and Spencer Gardner, Dorothy Reiplinger, petit Josephine Johnson, Harry Wrench, Marie Dawson, Gladys Goodgoin, Maurice Huff, Raymond, Ralph Maurine and Myrtle Lowe.

The red cross nurses were Nellie Reiplinger, Alyne Jaynes, Ruth Gardner and Frances Wrench, with Garland Simpson and William Zahm as the army surgeons, carrying medicine cases filled with bandages, pills, pliers a saw and hammer; and Luke Johnson, in soldier's suit, as the drummer boy.

After the parade a huge flag was hoisted on the lawn and the children circled around old glory and sang such songs as "America," "Star Spangled Banner," and "Texas." The children again fell in line and marched around the block and back to the shaded lawn where Mr. Frank Reiplinger appeared with a big bowl of delicious punch followed by Mrs. Reiplinger carrying a mountain of sandwiches on a huge waiter. A merry chatter followed and refreshment time was enjoyed by each little celebrant.

THE MISSES FOSTER FOR MISS ELIZABETH DOSSETT.

HONORING MISS DOROTHY ROSENTHAL OF WACO.

Honoring their attractive and popular house guest, Miss Dorothy Rosenthal of Waco, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Marks opened their home on Wednesday evening to forty or more young people. Dancing to the Victrola and piano was enjoyed. The house was decorated with United States flags, the lights were colored red, white and blue, carrying out the fourth of July motif. The decorative, embossed programs bore the name of the honoree, and were tied with red, white and blue ribbons. At the conclusion of the dance, refreshments were served, consisting of angel food and ice cream, the cream being frozen in pink and white. The merry party danced until the wee small hours of the morning, when each guest expressed appreciation and enjoyment of one of the prettiest affairs ever given in Hillsboro.

Chalmers Hubby, Clarence Hubby, Ben Sleeper and James Edmond.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES OF THE PAST WEEK.

The girls' work committee is planning an outing at Kamp Kumback Friday, July 13. All junior members are invited. Everything is being done to make this a real treat to the girls and the biggest day at the camp.

Transportation will be provided for the girls. Each girl must register in the office and pay a small fee of ten cents before Thursday night. The girls will meet at the Y. W. C. A. and the cars will leave at 1:30 and 2 o'clock.

If any one thinks the children are not doing their part in the war relief work just come in the Y. W. C. A. on Thursday morning and see the twenty-five little girls making bandages. At their next meeting they will make badges of the allies' colors to see that they might have a fund to buy their own material.

The Y. W. C. A. camp, which is now known as Kamp Kumback, has been full of life and recreation. Not one girl has gone but that returned for a day and night or a week-end. Happiness and congeniality reign supreme.

The Fourth of July was a glorious day on the camp. The rain didn't even stop the military tactics, which were in charge of General Willis.

The chaperons for the week have been Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wells, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Willis, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Ray, Mrs. H. J. Parks and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reese.

Committee calendar for the week:

The physical committee meets Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The house committee meets at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The social committee meets Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The finance committee meets on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Board meeting Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

Because of the junior picnic at Camp Kumback Friday, 13th, the Junior Business Girls' department of the war relief work will not begin their work till the following Friday.

YOUNG MARRIED LADIES' BRIDGE.

Mrs. W. S. Witte was hostess on Tuesday to the Young Married Ladies' Bridge club, with no outside guests present. Mrs. Irving Colgin scored high and was presented with a marmalade jar. Consolation fell to Mrs. Robert Montgomery, who received a French salad dressing mixer. A salad course with iced tea was served. The club's next hostess is to be Mrs. Ira W. Seley.

MRS. HARRY B. GORMAN BRIDGE HOSTESS.

Mrs. Harry B. Gorman was hostess to the Tuesday Bridge club, choosing the old Country club as her place for entertaining. Mrs. William Abeel won the guest prize, a white wicker basket. Mrs. A. J. Beville as winner of the club prize, was also presented with a wicker basket. Miss Ella Flewellyn was lucky in cutting consolation, winning two hand-embroidered dish towels. Candies were served during the games and sandwiches and punch afterward. Mrs. Robert Coleman is to have the club next Tuesday.

KILL KARE KLUB WITH MRS. LYONS.

Mrs. C. E. Lyons was hostess on Thursday evening to the members of the Kill Kare Klub and their husbands. The party was given on the lawn and on the porch, which was decorated with flags. Bunco were set for the usual game of bunco. Mr. Hervey Morgan won the high score for the gentlemen, receiving a clever character doll representing Uncle Sam. Mr. George Casey for low score received a tie. The club prize, a decorated scrap basket, went to Mrs. Hotchkiss, and Mrs. Joe Morgan won consolation prize, a pretty flower basket. A bugle call summoned the guests into the dining room, and then the Victrola further carried out the patriotic idea by playing "The Star-Spangled Banner." The dining table was decorated in red, white and blue flowers. Punch was served with red, white and blue squares of angel food. A picture of President Wilson had been draped with silk flags and hung over the dining table.

The next hostess is to be Mrs. Dr. King of Highland Place, who will entertain at 4 o'clock.

Those present were:

Messrs. and Mesdames—	Charles Bryden
J. C. Killgore	Whitehead
J. P. Boynton	H. L. Morgan
B. C. Daniels	Mrs. W. Y. Hotchkiss
George Casey	Mrs. Bostick
Joe Morgan

SOCIAL NEEDLECRAFT WITH MRS. KESTLER.

Mrs. L. J. Kestler was hostess on Thursday to the Social Needlecraft. The members spent most of the afternoon with their sewing, and then went into a short business session in which they decided to aid in the Red Cross work for the present, choosing Mrs. M. E. Gregory as leader. An election of officers resulted as follows: president, Mrs. G. D. Hay; vice president, Mrs. Junius Jackson; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Lee Bassett; chairman of domestic science Mrs. R. B. Teaff; reporter, Mrs. J. L. Stewart.

Punch and cake were served and musical numbers given by Miss Valleigh Kestler. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Teaff, Sanger avenue, next Thursday week.

BRIDAL BRIGE WITH MRS. ELI MARKS.

Mrs. L. H. Roddy was hostess on Thursday afternoon to the Bridal Bridge. Mrs. Isadore Segall won first prize, two boxes of perfumed powder. Mrs. Al Marks cut consolation, and received a piece of silk lingerie. Mrs. Sachs won the head prize for the guests, a Madeira handkerchief. Guests outside the club were Mesdames Jared Simmons, Sachs, Simon Friedlander. A salad course completed the hospitality of the afternoon. Mrs. Isadore Segall is named as next Thursday's hostess, the club to meet at three o'clock.

JULY MEETING OF THE DAUGHTERS OF THE REPUBLIC.

The Daughters of the Republic held their July meeting during the week with Mrs. Richardson. The chapter congratulated itself on the patriotism of its members in the size of its contribution to the Red Cross fund, and it was the oldest member present who comparing modern warfare and preparations for it with the early Texas style, remarked that the whole battle of San Jacinto took up but eighteen minutes time after the moment of its long-delayed beginning.

In view of the fact that Mrs. Edith Lessing is entitled to membership in every patriotic society but that of the Daughters of the Republic, to which she has given much kindly interest, she was made one of its honorary members.

The chapter hopes to have soon another of the interesting talks on Texas themes—the next subject to be the Waco Indians, their story, and the pronunciation of the name according to Spanish and early settler spelling.

SWIMMING PARTY FOR MR. CHARLES TRUDE.

Mr. Charles Trude of Houston who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Davis, was honor guest at a swimming party gotten up in his honor by Misses Jennie, Mildred and Polly Davis for Thursday afternoon. Swimming was enjoyed at Spring Lake and then the party motored over to the Fish Pond for a real picnic supper and dance. The party, which was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Will Mosely, Mr. and Mrs. Spark West, Mr. and Mrs. Shell Sparks, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Whitworth and Miss Susie Hickey was as follows:

JOINT MEETING PARENT TEACHERS.

A joint meeting of the Parent-Teachers associations of the city will be held Wednesday, July 11 at 4:30 o'clock in the public library. Mrs. W. L. Perry as president of the Mother's council requests a good representation from each club. Mrs. C. C. Shumway as president of the county association, asks that all the associations in the county be represented. Important new lines of work will be taken up.

CHAIRMEN OF CIRCLES TO MEET MONDAY.

At the request of the cutting committee, a meeting is called of the chairmen of all the knitting circles, this to be Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the library. The seven women who are devoting two mornings a week to cutting Red Cross supplies are Mesdames J. E. Boynton, Rosa Evans, C. W. Cotton, J. W. Barrett, Grace Wigley, V. V. Damon and F. E. Goodman. In order to have perfect uniformity in the work turned out, it is necessary that the leaders should know the correct ways of folding and finishing which have been learned at headquarters. Every leader is requested to bring all finished work assorted in dozens as it was delivered that we may make our first consignment to the Red Cross. The pajamas which were distributed singly may be returned in that way. After the meeting, work will be distributed for the ensuing week and it is hoped a supply of knitting needles will be on hand.

CIRCLES NEED OLD LINEN.

Each member of the war relief circles is requested to bring to her next circle meeting whatever she may have in the way of old linen of any size or quality. Old Turkish bath towels are also wanted. All these can be utilized for hospital supplies.

SHERIFF FLEMING IS CHAMP CORN GROWER

Samples of corn grown on the stock farm of Sheriff S. S. Fleming near Ocee, on Hog creek, were left Saturday by Government Demonstration Agent J. A. Pipkin, Jr., at the Chamber of Commerce.

It is a beautiful white field corn, and the stalks were cut at random in the field. Estimates of the yield per acre of this corn Saturday were around fifty bushels. The corn was carefully cultivated, and a record of the time of planting and cultural methods was taken by Mr. Pipkin.

Are You Too Fat?

If You Really Want to Reduce Your Weight, Follow This Simple Plan.

Mrs. Fallon sends a communication which is being printed here on account of the genuine interest manifested by many other readers:

"Tell those of your readers who would like to be free of the embarrassing, hindering burden of overweight without the objectionable following of drastic rules of eating and exercising, to try the sane, simple and safe plan of open-air deep breathing combined with the use of oil of korein and the other simple directions that come with it.

"A box containing a liberal quantity may be secured from any druggist.

"With a simple, inexpensive and dependable means such as this, why should anyone continue to carry around a great load of surplus fat?"

MRS. HUMISTON WOMAN SLEUTH CRUGER MURDER

HER EFFORTS FOUND BURIAL PLACE AND BROUGHT COCCHI TO JUSTICE.

Special to The News.

New York, June 30.—Up in the three-room office on the tenth floor of the big building at Madison avenue and Fortysecond street, Mrs. Mary Grace Humiston, who solved the Cruger mystery and is the power behind an investigation that may make over the New York Police department, said "Excuse me," to the reporter, reached for the jangling telephone, and continued as follows:

"Yes, this is Grace—that you, mother? Tut, tut, I am not overworking myself. No, really I'm not * * * Oh, mother, do you mind tucking away my gray dress; its on the chair nearest the dresser, and will you see that the plants are watered? * * *"

It was like dropping in at Baker street and having Holmes throw the pipe, the violin, and the hyodermic out of the window and begin to discuss how many strawberries make a shortcake. Frankly, so far as appearances go, Mrs. Humiston is badly miscast in the role of sleuth extraordinary, or as the program might say—"Mrs. Sherlock Holmes."

There was Kron—Kron the detective who dug with dogged persistance in the Cocchi cellar; Hungarian, dark and saturnine. Kron helped the picture. There was Morley, embryo lawyer and confidential clerk, suave and smiling, the office man of the Humiston organization. And there was the motley crowd of "clients," about forty, all come to tell the "lady" what they knew about vanished girls. Somehow every one seemed in the proper place, except the black-eyed, black-haired woman in the purple silk dress, who nervously arranged the roses on her desk and answered questions in a voice that was hesitant and low.

Possibly her nervousness under verbal fire was an evidence of the "home-is-the-place-for-girls" training which she had received in the household of her father, Ardoniram Judson Winterton, old New York merchant and lay worker in Baptist affairs, who lived in Greenwich Village when it really was a "village." Yet it is difficult to associate extreme diffidence with the Hunter College graduate, '88, who decided to support herself after she obtained her degree. Up at the Collegiate school West End avenue and Seventy-seventh street, there's a record which proves that Mrs. Humiston once taught there.

Her Early Start.

It did not take long for the teacher to find that the law had attractions for her which educational work had not, and so when the 1904 class of the New York Evening Law school went forth, Mrs. Humiston ranked seventh. A clerkship with the Legal Aid Society and admittance to the bar in 1905 were the next steps taken, and then followed the establishment of the People's Law Firm—a sort of 5 and 10 cent affair where the law, in defiance of all approved metheds, was made to fit the client's purse. Occasionally persons would drop in to see Mrs. Humiston and tell her about relatives or friends who had disappeared. She began to be interested in such cases, and when a surprisingly large number were reported in the South Mrs. Humiston was retained to go down there and discover the reasons why.

It did not take her long to ascertain that the turpentine camps of the south being in great need of laborers, had agents in the big cities to persuade persons to help with the sap buckets. It appeared that once a chap got down there he generally stayed—chained, if necessary. S. S. McClure heard about Mrs. Humiston's investigations and offered to finance her on a trip through all of the camps. She accepted, and, disguised, penetrated many places.

After a year of wandering from camp to camp, Mrs. Humiston went to Washington. Attorney General Bonaparte appointed her an assistant on his staff that her findings might bear and official stamp. When her work was finished, peonage in the south had been done away with, and to the young lawyer went full credit. Two years later Mrs. Humiston traveled in the Holy Land, Egypt, Germany, Austria, Turkey, Italy and other countries which have been sources of much of our immigration. She found, incidentally a curious little practice of some of the steamship companies of luring folk overseas. She established that these steamship companies distributed literature to peasants which pictured America as a land so rich that life was one round of "sweet doing nothing"—the idea being, of course, for the steamship men to collect the fares of the peasants, while the peasants came over and lost faith in the printed world. Once again, when Mrs. Humiston finished her little investigation, the marine fictionists were permanently out of luck.

It was while she was in Lima, the capital of Peru, that the lawyer-investigator married Howard Humiston with whom she had been associated in the People's Law Firm back in New York. Established in the home life, which she considers "the greatest, dearest thing in the world," Mrs. Humiston abruptly retired from a "career." It required the sad cases of Mrs. Antoinette Tola, Italian woman condemned to death in the spring of last year for murder of her husband to lure her back into professional life. A reprieve, then a pardon for Mrs. Tola were obtained through hard work, and the successful outcome of this case brought her attention the case of Gennaro Mazzella, who was in the death house of Sing Sing. She secured the acquittal of Mazzella.

Wealthy persons who were convinced that Charles Stielow was not guilty asked her to take his case. Though twice threatened with death, she fought step by step against political power and keen legal adversaries, and on the morning of December 4 last Governor Whitman commuted Stielow's sentence to life imprisonment.

Her "Happiness."

From that date until April 9 Mrs. Humiston was "happy"—she was back in her home.

Although the newspapers between February and April were full of the story about Ruth Cruger, Mrs. Humiston was not professionally interested. True, she was "absorbed in it," but merely as a reader of the news. One day Mrs. Felix Adler, who was greatly interested in the disappearance of the Cruger girl, asked Mr. Humiston to assume the duties of an investigation.

"I started out with the conviction that Ruth Cruger was a good girl," said Mrs. Humiston, "and I knew that one of her training and character never would figure in an elopement or anything of that kind. Working on this conviction of mine, I knew that the police theory of 'waywardness' was all bosh and that Mr. Cruger's repeatedly expressed belief that his daughter was being forcibly detained was correct—or at least partially so.

"I say partially correct, for, while the father clung to the hope that Ruth was alive, I never for a minute thought so. I somehow felt—just what made me, I don't know—that Ruth had been murdered. For my part, therefore, I went to work first to find the poor girls' body and then to discover how she met death.

"I soon found that the various angles of the investigation required more than my own slight detective ability and so I hired Kron. He was an agent of the Federal department of justice when I was with Mr. Bonaparte—in fact, I was instrumental in getting Kron into the department. It happened thus; when I was working on the peonage cases I needed a detective who could speak Hungarian, and in New York I asked the editor of a Hungarian newspaper if he could suggest an honest many for the job. He recommended Kron and within a week I had evidence of his honesty when he came to me with proof that he had turned down a bribe of $500.

"Well with Kron, and his employer, Martin Donnelly, on the Cruger case, we started on the theory that the girl had been buried somewhere in the suburbs. While we agreed that the murderer would employ interment as a means to cover his crime, we were not disposed at the outset to think the body would be buried at the same place where the girl was last seen alive. Frankly we did suspect Cocchi, but we were a bit unsettled as to whether he did the murder alone or had accomplices from among the hangers-on at his shop.

"The next step was to check up as far as possible Cocchi's manner of living. From April 9 until well into the middle of May we subjected the man's record to the closest sort of scrutiny. Of course you know there are some things I cannot reveal about our case because much of it has become evidence in the hands of the district attorney; still I am free to say that for more than five weeks we clung to our investigation without having a single clue to work on. We were simply convinced that sooner or later we would find the body, and, although there were times when the task grew heavy our little band managed to keep cheerful.

"Then we decided to narrow our search to Cocchi's house or, rather to his shop. No, we did not get an anonymous tip that the girl was buried there. Yes, I'll admit that Kron said something about a letter, but he made that statement on the day of the discovery, and—well, he gave that out merely to conceal something else. No, we went after Cocchi just because that was the common sense thing to do after we had established his horrible reputation. I've noticed that some folks are saying that I found the body because I followed my intuition. Every time a woman does make a discovery somebody pipes, 'Intuition.' Let me say that, in this instance, it was just plain everyday common sense on the part of Kron. Donnelly, and myself, backed by a determination to keep going until the case was cleared up.

"There never was a time when we felt like giving up. We knew that Ruth was a model girl, that she had disappeared, that she had been murdered, and we intended to prove to others—yes, the police among them—that we had the correct view. There was only one unpleasant feature in connection with the search and that was the vile slanders about Ruth that kept cropping up again and again. It may be interesting sometime to ascertain just where they all came from.

"It was then that we localized our quest to the vicinity of Cocchi's 127th street shop that things began to happen. First we found any number of persons living around there who testified to a character for Cocchi that should have caused his arrest within an hour after the girl had disappeared. Then Kron and Donnelly were fortunate enough to dig up a couple of men who had actually witnessed Cocchi's emergence from the cellar at midnight. This gave us enough to make us desire to excavate the cellar.

"But when we tried to get permission from Mrs. Cocchi we got an angry refusal. Finally the board of health gave a permit for us to dig under the sidewalk. Though we were constantly being threatened with civil suits, supposedly to be instituted by Mrs. Cocchi, this search brought out the corset cover and bag identified as belonging to Ruth. At this juncture Mrs. Cocchi sold the shop, and the new owners immediately gave permission to dig up the cellar.

"That day we started to dig I knew that our search was ended. Hole after hole was made, and although nothing came to light, we were convinced that every time a shovel went into the earth it might disclose what we sought. What happened you know."

That is all that Mrs. Humiston cared to say about herself and her work. But—

Never Read Holmes.

"No, I never read Sherlock Holmes. In fact, I am not a believer in deduction. Common sense and persistence will always solve a mystery. You never need theatricals nor Dr. Watsons if you stick to a case.

"Who said I worked eighteen to twenty hours a day on this case? I may have done that occasionally, but as a rule I put in only fifteen or sixteen.

"No, I am not a suffragette, but I certainly am not an anti. If giving the vote to women could abolish white slavery or the other nefarious practices, if it could make better the lot of womankind, then by all means let us vote. As a matter of fact, I'm much too busy to ally myself with any organization for or against suffrage.

"As between a professional career and home? Assuredly, I prefer home—possibly that sounds old-fashioned? Well, to me there's nothing like my home."

This led to a discussion of how far the proper home environment went as a combatant influence against the immoral enslavement of girls. And incidentally it disclosed that Mrs. Humiston's great ambition was to scour the city clean of immorality. Already, as the result of things she learned while searching for Ruth Cruger, she is contemplating what might be called a bureau of moral health. It is a—but let her tell about it.

"Vice conditions here in the city are astounding, but whether they are worse than ever before I cannot say, because I am not aware of previous conditions. The 'good people' of New York are as much asleep to the nastiness of their city as the nation appears to be to the seriousness of our war. The records of the police department show hundreds of girls disappear every year. There must be many whose vanishing is not reported to the authorities because of the notoriety. It is my desire to reach the relatives or friends of such girls and assure them that no publicity will result if they leave the search in my hands.

"What I think is needed is a bureau, supported by voluntary contributions, that would prevent girls from getting into the hands of these beasts, rescue them if they were already snared, and then cure them of their moral ailment. Do you know that no girl of the streets, if rescued before she reaches the age of 25, ever continues her shameful trade? And that in every white slave case or individual seduction, the man, in my opinion, is always the criminal, always the leader?

"Why, had I the power, I would cause to be inserted in the laws of every state an act that would make the tempting of a girl a serious offense, punishable by an adequate penalty. I would call such practices 'criminal persuasion' and I think that if the white slaver knew he violated the law at the very beginning of his 'trade' there would be fewer girls in the underworld.

"In connection with this bureau I have in mind I would have agents throughout the city, but the headquarters of the organization would be out of town—on a farm best of all. Once the girls were rescued I would send them out to the farm, where their environment would be entirely different. Secluded there even from their own kind, with light work to do, placed where nobody except the attendants—all women—would know of their past, the girls would start life anew. When their period of moral recuperation was ended I would have an employment branch of the bureau where work would be found for them. This employment shop, by the way, would have no public connection with the bureau, since that would make for the embarrassment of the reformed women.

"If funds are provided, I think the best plan would be not to have the bureau part of the police department, but, of course, to work in full sympathetic co-operation with it. If this bureau is made powerful enough it can do something the police and public sentiment have as yet failed to do—wipe out immorality in this city.

"As yet nothing has been done toward the establishment of this organization because I have been utterly tired out by work on poor Ruth. Let the public show that it wants something of that sort, however, and I am willing to drop everything and begin the work."

The Skeptic About Corns

Some years ago a famous chemist invented the Blue-jay plaster.

In a bit of red wax he combined ingredients which no corn can resist.

Through us he offered to all people this sure ender of a corn.

But people said, "We've heard such claims before." They had used harsh, old-time methods which proved inefficient.

The same folks tried this Blue-jay, and each told others. Since then this method has removed some 80 million corns.

Here is a way that's gentle, scientific, sure. It is applied in a jiffy. It costs but a few cents per corn.

It stops the pain instantly. It ends the corn in two days—that is, nine corns in ten. The stubborn ones need a second application.

It makes corns forever needless. Corn aches become unknown. For your own sake, prove this. Stop paring corns. Learn how easy it is to end them. Prove it tonight.

To Ward Off Summer Complexion Ills

To keep the face smooth, white and beautiful all summer, there's nothing quite so good as ordinary mercolized wax. Discolored or freckled skin, so common at this season, is gently absorbed by the wax and replaced by the newer, fresher skin beneath. The face exhibits no trace of the wax, which is applied at bedtime and washed off mornings. Greasy creams, powders and rouges, on the other hand, are apt to appear more conspicuous than usual these days of excessive perspiration. Just get an ounce of mercolized wax at any drugstore and use like cold cream. This will help any skin at once and in a week or so the complexion will look remarkably young and healthy.

Sun, winds and flying dust often cause squinting and other contortions which make wrinkles. You can quickly get rid of every line, however caused, by using a harmless wash lotion made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel.—Adv.

"OLDS" WHEELS ARE NOW MADE FROM HICKORY

Wheels finished in natural wood are not only a thing of beauty but they are the strongest possible recommendation of the car on which they are found.

Mr. Ward, of the Ward & Phillips Motor company, local dealers in Oldsmobiles, is justly proud of this distinctive and characteristic feature of Oldsmobiles. "The wheels are to an automobile what the foundation is to a house," said Mr. Ward, when seen recently, "and if the quality is there, there is mighty little probability of a wheel breaking down through skidding or other undue strains."

"A cheap wheel finished in natural wood is such a tell tale affair that no concern using them dare finish them in that way and so they are painted up and any defects are covered in that manner. It takes a genuine selected hickory wheel to stand the critical gaze of the public when finished in natural wood and that's just what you can readily see on Oldsmobiles. Needless to say such wheels cost a great deal more and the temptation is strong to substitute something cheaper. For instance, suppose only $10 per car is saved on a set of wheels; this means $300,000 added to the year's profits of the factory that turns out 30,000 cars. There isn't a manufacturer in the business that will not seriously consider a $10 per car saving at this time, when the cost sheet is the most closely watched proposition in his care."

Back in the Buggy Days.

"Back in the buggy and carriage days the selected hickory wheel was universally demanded on a quality job, but since good hickory timber has become so expensive, many makers conveniently overlook any mention of wheel stock. But all the while good wheels are of much more importance on automobiles than on carriages because automobiles are so much heavier and travel at such greater speed, and when the wheels are called on to stand the stress exacted in emergencies, the strain on them is simply terrific.

"I only wish that the good materials in Oldsmobile bodies could be shown up as the wheels are," continued Mr. Ward, "because their frames are of the same high quality construction."

VETERANS SEE QUAD CLIMB 70 DEGREE INCLINE-BEATS MULE

The army mule has lost caste in its greatest stronghold. Even the G. A. R. veteran, who recalls that in '61 the pack mule was the last word in army transportation, has transferred his allegiance to the more modern motor truck since witnessing a Jeffrey quad climb up a 275 per cent grade at a special demonstration held during the Wisconsin state encampment.

A pile of heavy lumber 15 feet square by 5½ feet high was erected. On one side of the pile two 12x4 uprights 5½ feet long were nailed securely to the top of the pile with the bottom ends resting on the ground. These two uprights formed an angle of 70 degrees.

A stock Quad two-ton truck loaded with 4,000 pounds of pig iron and piloted by O. A. Eskuche of the Nash truck engineering department, was then driven up to the lumber pile the two front wheels barely touching the uprights. Speeding up the motor and slowly engaging the clitch Mr. Eskuche started the big truck on its steep climb and with a roaring motor the Quad crept to the top of the pile. On reaching the top the truck was locked by the brakes which apply their power to all four wheels.

Many regular army officers who witnessed the demonstration declared it to be one of the most spectacular performances they had ever seen. Mr. Eskuche, who has probably seen more actual warfare than any other truck engineer in this country, having spent several months in France, Russia and England, supervising the installation of Quad trucks furnished these governments for military purposes, merely smiled and said that this was nothing when compared with some of the problems this truck has solved successfully on European battle fronts.

Seed Waster.

"There's a man planting potatoes," said Farmer Corntassel, "when he ought to be playing golf."

"You don't approve of gardening?"

"Yes, I do. But if he'd go ahead and play golf he wouldn't be spoiling good potatoes that somebody could use."—Washington Star.

FRISCO AD CLUB WAGE BATTE ON OVERLAND DRIVE

The fifteen-day "drive" of the San Francisco Ad club along a 2,400-mile front reaching from that city to St. Louis, proved to be one of the fiercest battles ever waged by motor car against the elements.

With the big advertising convention at St. Louis, as the club's objective, the party of about fifty members, in fourteen automobiles, began the tour with weather conditions ideal and prospects bright for a record trip. And it proved a record trip, but in an entirely unexpected manner.

After one day of sunshine, storms of every description were encountered in rapid succsion. A teasing rain inaugurated this "spell of weather," followed by hail, then a snowstorm which soon assumed the proportions of a blizzard, then more rain and more hail, and topped off by an old-time tornado, which performed in characteristic style.

Eleven of the crusading cars deemed it the part of prudence to refrain from resisting the poundings of nature and retired from the tour, but three of the cars pluckily determined to see it through. These Goodyear tire-equipped cars experienced no tire trouble despite the frightful road conditions which necessitated the use of chains for more than 2,000 of the 2,400 miles. During the tour these three cars wore out fifteen pairs of chains.

But by driving fifteen to twenty hours a day these mud-swatters were able to adhere approximately to their schedule and reached their destination on the date planned. Through a portion of Wyoming it required seventeen hours of the hardest labor for both cars and men, to advance forty-five miles, the last nine of which were made in seven hours.

But the magnificent welcome accorded the three battle scarred cars in the monster pageant held in connection with the convention at St. Louis, compensated the weary travelers for all the hardships.

OVERLAND SAYS RAINS AN AID

The Overland Sales company reports that the rains of last week stimulated their business wonderfully over their entire territory of twelve counties. Many Overland and Willys-Knight cars have been taken out the past week by the dealers under the Overland Sales company. Among these the little "Country Club" and the "Model 90" are proving to be the best sellers at the present time.

The Overland Sales company has recently installed a modern equipment for handling all elecrical work on magnetos, generators, etc. These people were able to secure the service of Mr. Chester Stone to handle the electrical work. Mr. Stone is from New York and is an expert in this line of work. This latest addition in connection with their already first-class and unexcelled service station makes a complete department to meet the autoists' needs.

But the pride of the Overland Automobile Sales company will be shown to the public about the middle of the coming week. It is the Willys "Six," a seven-passenger touring car. This will be the first time that this new car has been exhibited and in the words of Mr. Zarr of the Overland Sales company it is "a automobile." They will also show this six cylinder car in the "Country Club" model. Again, it is emphasized that this car will be on exhibition about the middle of the coming week.

PREPARING CAR TRACKS FOR INCREASED BUSINESS

Officials of the street railway are doing quite a lot of work which will come in handy when the army camp is located here and in full swing.

New passing tracks are being put in here and there, the switches in the business section are being put in excellent condition, and tracks are being reballasted and new ties laid.

FINDING HOMES FOR EMPOYES IS HARD TASK

Finding homes and providing entertainment for its 13,000 employes in "the city of standing room only," is the task set for itself by the Firestone Tire & Rubber company of Akron, Ohio.

Hundreds of new workers pouring into the city which has "run away from itself" as one magazine writer describes it, have presented a gigantic problem in housing. The Firestone company early saw the difficulties of getting men to stay at their jobs unless they were given clean, pleasant places to live, and immediately set about the solution of the problem. A huge allotment has been opened by the company not far from the plant, and lots are sold to employes on easy payment at low prices. A house may be built at cost by the employe and paid for 5 per cent down and 1 per cent a month.

How About These Employes?

But this does not take care of the hundreds of employes who are constantly coming to Akron from distant cities, attracted by the eight-hour day and ideal working conditions. Many of these men have no money when they arrive and frequently leave their families behind until they can forward them money to pay their transportation.

For these workers the company has built a little village of temporary homes on the ground surrounding its plant. In this village, where the dwellers live a simple life, there are accommodations for 1,600. The community is governed by the strictest sanitary and police regulations enforced by the villagers themselves. The company doctors and nurses make weekly inspections and report that the village is the most healthy community in Akron. Within a stone's throw are the Firestone war gardens where employes are raising sixty acres of vegetables for their own use.

STOP
Throwing Away Your Worn Tires!

Right here in Waco many users of Gates Half Soles have obtained 10,000 more miles from old Tires.

It is a needless and extravagant waste to throw away your treadworn and rutworn tires after getting only 3,000 to 5,000 miles of service out of them.

OLLIER BRIMFUL OF OPTIMISM

Upon his return to South Bend, last week, L. J. Ollier, vice-president and director of sales of the Studebaker corporation, was brimming over with enthusiasm in regard to the business conditions throughout the territory he visited. While absent from the factory Mr. Ollier called upon Studebaker branch managers and dealers in the eastern and New England states, making a careful investigation of present trade conditions.

"I cannot make it too emphatic," says Mr. Ollier, "that trade conditions are unusually bright for the coming year. Our dealers and branch managers tell me that there is every indication of increasing confidence among the buyers in their territories, and give me every assurance of a thoroughly successful summer season.

"I personally believe prosperity will overwhelm us within the next few months, and unless we all get busy now it will find us totally unprepared. With the tremendous resources we have in this country and the seven billion dollars to be expended by the government, there is going to be a new era which will eclipse that of 1915 and 1916.

"True, there has been considerable depression in business over the uncertainty as to what conditions are going to be. But with every prospect of good crops throughout the great agricultural districts of the west and the high prices the farmer will receive for them, and with all of the big manufacturing centers of the east reporting production at top speed, money will be plentiful and buying is bound to become brisk in most every line.

Helps Business Man.

"The business and professional man in town finds his motor car well nigh indispensible. It increases his efficiency, too, saves much of his valuable time and adds years to his life.

"With the first shock of actual war over, the motor car buying public has about recovered its natural frame of mind, and I look for increasing sales from every part of the country. In view of conditions in general, I do not think I will be questioned when I say that I look for the greatest automobile shortage this year that the industry has ever seen.

"Because of the big drain made upon steel and other raw material used in the manufacture of motor cars, by the United States government and her allies, it is not unreasonable to suppose that the prices are liable to be advanced now at any time."

SPLINED INSTEAD OF SQUARED SHAFTS NOW

One of the salient superiorities of the Lexington is found in the use of splined instead of squared ends for propeller shaft and driving axles.

The splined shaft has key-ways cut in its periphery and the corresponding member has key-ways cut in its inner circumference. The splines in the one fitting into the key-ways of the other.

The criticism of the squared shaft is that both in the driving axle and the propeller shaft the wear causes back-lash and noise and, whenever the car is started, or there is a change of gears, there are strains and shocks to the driving mechanism.

The splined shaft not only gives greater bearing surface and consequently longer life to that particular portion of the car, but does away with the back-lash and noise and permits of the free and easy movement of the shaft within the universal joint.

HERRICK HARDWARE IS OPTIMISTIC OVER TRADE

The Herrick Hardware people are also very optimistic concerning the automobile business. They report that business is not only "as usual," but is very much better. They have been very successful in their sales, and their stock is in excellent condition. They have a large number of the "old reliable" Buicks on hands, and also many Chandlers. But with the continuous shipments of Chandlers that are being received in addition to the large number this popular firm already has in stock, it makes one of the most complete automobile lines to be found anywhere.

LEXINGTON ELECTRIC WIRING.

The time is not far distant when the insurance companies will not insure a car where the wiring is carelessly or improperly done. The same rigid examinations of automobiles will be made as are now made in dwellings and other buildings to see that the wiring complies with the standards of the boards of insurance underwriters.

Anticipating this action by the underwriters, the wiring of the Lexington is so installed that it will pass the most rigid inspection of the examiners.

All wires, after being thoroughly insulated, are enclosed in metal tubing. There is a fuseblock on the front of the dash where all the circuits are separated so that there is no possibility of trouble in one circuit being communicated to another. In case of trouble with the lighting circuit, the starting and ignition circuits would not be disturbed. If both starting and lighting circuits should develop trouble, this would not effect the ignition.

The electric system in the Lexington is the last word in equipment of this kind.

UNCLE SAM IS RIDING IN DORT

As war comes nearer Uncle Sam places more and more dependence on the motor car and the motor car makers. Already the government has accepted the service of the automobile in obtaining recruits, and in mobilizing the militia and before the present tension is over the motor car no doubt will play the role of hero countless times.

Uncle Sam, literally, has chosen the Dort. It happened this way. When the United States recruiting officers for the army wanted to attract the thousands on Market street, at the ball park and where the crowds gather it was decided to adopt a striking means of calling attention to the fact that the army needs men. Uncle Sam in all his idealistic dignity was impersonated by a regular in the service and with a lettered suitcase and an escort of buglers he started from headquarters on Market street his appeal supplemented by interesting literature on the advantages of U. S. service.

At the curb stood a beautiful blue Dort car of the Victoria type, with the Stars and Stripes flowing from the radiator cap to the back bumper. Uncle Sam needed no urging to commandeer this striking car to aid him in his appeal and the driver, First Lieutenant J. C. Galeoto, of the Seventh field hospital corps, just returned from the border and ready to serve again, said he would be delighted to drive wherever Uncle Sam might order. J. W. Frawley, his employer, was willing to pay him for all the time Uncle Sam might need, explained Galeoto. From the back of the car was flying a pennant bearing the words, "Men Wanted for the United States Army."

Down Market street went this striking equipage. Uncle Sam towering over the classy looking Dort, and bowing to left and right in answer to the plaudits of the crowds. At the corners, stops were made while Uncle Sam left the car to aid the buglers in distributing literature to the reaching hands. Unusual interest was shown everywhere and this did not stop with Uncle Sam and the spirit he represented, for the beautiful Dort car came in for a big share of compliments. At the ball park the Cubs and Seals surrounded the Dort and cheered Uncle Sam. Major William H. Brooks was highly pleased with the response to this recruiting novelty and Lieut. Col. John H. Gardner addressed a letter of thanks to J. W. Frawley.

The blue car was sold to W. H. Patterson of Visalia five minutes after it came back to the shop. The following day there were four calls for this specially equipped car.

HERRICK-M'LARTY CO. SAYS BUSINESS BETTER THAN USUAL DESPITE WAR

The Herrick-McLarty company reports that business is "extraordinary" notwithstanding war times, etc. They succeeded in selling about ten car loads to their dealers the past week. This firm has also been laying in large supplies of cars for future business. A large number of Chevrolets and Oaklands were shipped to them last week.

Mr. Humphrey, general manager of that progressive automobile concern, attributes much of the recent business to people's foresight in purchasing cars before the advance the 15th, at which time the Chevrolets will advance $85 and the Paige $100.

NEW MACCABEE REVIEW FOR WOMEN ORGANIZED

A new review of the Woman's Benefit association of the Maccabees has been organibed here by Mrs. Annie Polson, district deputy, the name of the new organization being the Central City Review.

The review has nineteen members and nine transfers. Officers were appointed until the official election in September, as follows: Commander, Mrs. Harriett Christian; lieutenant commander, Rachael Dickens; past commander, Jennie Meers; record keeper, Lilliam E. Huff; finance auditor, Bertha Rasp; lady-at-arms, Rosa Harris; sargeant, Wylie Brodrick; sentinel, Willie May Wilkins; picket, Mrs. Enore Jane Meers.

Miss Lane was named as musician of the review, and Mrs. Jennie Holt as official adviser. In recognition of Mrs. Holt's services in getting the new review started she was awarded a trip to the Supreme Review at Port Huron, Mich. Meetings of the new review will be held at the Knights of Columbus hall each Friday afternoon except on fifth Sundays.

PRINT PAPER IS HELD IN SWEDEN

By Associated Press.

Stockholm, Sweden, July 7.—Although American newspapers are in great need of newsprint paper, not less than 200,000 tons of woodpulp is stored at Swedish ports awaiting sale or shipment and Swedish woodpulp manufacturers have agreed to restrict production one-third. This means the closing of their mills for four months. Much of the pulp held in storage has been bought and paid for by British dealers, but cannot be delivered owing to the Swedish embargo on shipments of woodpulp to that country.

American buyers who have been here endeavoring to purchase the surplus of the Swedish mills have abandoned the effort and all but one of them have returned to the United States. The one buyer still here says he is doing no business and doubts whether he will be able to do any in the near future.

This is due to an extreme advance in the price of woodpulp which has increased in some cases to the equivalent of $94.50 a ton, against a normal price of about $37.80 per ton at the mills. Another reason is that the Swedish government has demanded a guarantee from every exporter that the pulp shipped out of Sweden would be used only in the country of original destination. A deposit of about $60 a ton was required, this to be forfeited if any of the pulp found its way into another country. This was the final straw that broke the back of the Americans who were trying to do business with Swedish pulp-makers and they gave up the effort.

"There is no use of trying to do any more business under present conditions and I am going home," declared one foreign buyer for a large American woodpulp concern. "I hazard the prophecy that if the war continues and the present policy of the Swedish government is not changed the Swedish woodpulp manufacturers will find that the times when they sold America upward of 100,000 tons of pulp a year are gone forever."

Sweden was, for many years preceding the war, the most important source for high-class chemical newspulp exported to the United States, Europe, England and Germany. The United States imported 165,351 tons of it in 1914 and made heavy contracts for its delivery in 1916, but the manufacturers protested against filling these contracts at the prices fixed, and in some cases more than doubled them.

The American buyers at first declined to pay the advanced prices and negotiations were in progress when the Swedish government in January last placed the American importers at the mercy of the Swedish manufacturers by prohibiting exports of woodpulp except by license. These licenses could be issued only to the sellers of pulp, not to the buyers, and the manufacturers refused to ask for licenses unless the prices they demanded were paid.

Some American buyers gave in and met the advance. Then came another blow. The Swedish authorities discovered that England was buying Swedish pulp in America, Spain, Italy and France in order to circumvent the Swedish embargo on the shipment of woodpulp to that country. English buyers were paying as high as $125 a ton, it was to prevent England from making these purchases that the Swedish government demanded the guarantee that Swedish pulp would be used in the country to which it was first shipped.

Since the American buyers left the Swedish market Germany may have taken some of Sweden's surplus but the exact figures are not available. The remainder is acuumulating in Swedish ports.

SHORT TALK ON AUTO PAINTING

Most people have the idea that in the application of protective coatings to an automobile, the greatest attention is given to the body, while the mudguards and running gears are called finished after a superficial daubing.

This is an erroneous impression, for the process of "japanning," more properly termed enameling in high grade work, entails a vast amount of expert workmanship.

In the application of enamel to mudguards or running gear parts, the greatest obstacles are encountered when the metal is of aluminum. Take for instance the steel mudguard as compared with that of aluminum. The former comes from the presses with surfaces smooth, requiring little or no dressing up, while the latter needs great attention because of its porosity and ductility. Filling, rubbing and sandpapering must be resorted to, and in this progress fully one-sixty-fourth inch of metal must be removed with the greatest care to prevent dents and scratches, which the enamel could not hide.

When the mudguards are received in the enameling department, they are cleaned by compressed air and gasoline. Then follows the dipping and dripping process over the japan vats. Next the parts go on trolleys to the drying ovens, where they are baked for two and one-quarter hours at a gradually increasing temperature that reaches 375 degrees Fahrenheit. Following this treatment, the guards are cooled and sent to the rubbers, who give them a sandpaper and oil finish. This process of dipping, drying, sandpapering and cleaning, is repeated twice and then the finishing coats of enamel are applied.

Franklin One of Few.

In the Franklin Automobile company, which is one of the few that apply japan to aluminum, the Gehnrich baking ovens are used in this three-fold process of toughening and drying. No draughts ever enter these ovens, so that dust is not a contending factor. Burnt gases cannot act on the enamel, for the combustion products are carried up the sides in tubes.

The enamel used will only dry when subjected to this intense baking process and when dried is so tough that paint removers or torches cannot remove it. Only sandblasts can disintegrate this enamel.

Then, Perhaps.

"Are you of the opinion, James," asked a slim-looking young man of his companion, "that Dr. Smith's medicine does any good?"

"Not unless you follow the directions."

"What are the directions?"

"Keep the bottle tightly corked."—Tit-Bits.

NEW LENS NOW AUTO SENSATION

The Macbeth-Evans Glass company of Pittsburg, one of the largest and oldest glassware manufacturing concerns in the country, is now adding to its extensive line of products a new scientfic motor car headlight lens which has already created a sensation among the motor car manufacturers who have seen it.

The lens is known as the Macbeth lens and it is the result of four years of experimental work in the laboratories of the big Macbeth-Evans institution.

This new entry into motor car accessory circles is original in its construction. One of its outstanding features is an attractive green enameled glass visor, built intergral with the lens, by which all upward rays of light are redirected down, thereby making good use of otherwise wasted light.

Front Surface of Lens.

The front surface of the lens is divided into five horizontal prisms. Each is inclined at an angle scientifically determined so that the light is bent at just the correct angle. The inner section of the lens is made up concave sections which spread the light laterally, thus providing the side lighting essential for country driving and for turning corners.

The Macbeth-Evans company has turned all of the Macbeth Lens advertising over to The Martin V. Kelley company of Toledo and New York City. It will be handled in the Toledo office.

"As soon as I saw a demonstration of the lens, I knew that it would fill a long felt want in the motor car trade," said Martin V. Kelley. "It is so far ahead of anything of its kind, which I have seen, that its success is certain."

For many years the Macbeth-Evans company has been regarded as the leading manufacturers of scientific lenses. For example, they are the only producers in America of coast lighthouse lenses, in which each prism must be ground to the thousandth part of an inch. They also turn out important railroad signal glasses, in which inferiority would be fatal, and the marvelous lenses for our battleships are also produced in their plant.

Economy With an Auto.

Something happened to the steering gear and his machine dashed across a crowded sidewalk and into a jeweler's store window. It cost him heavily to settle everything and after that he didn't drive his car. Next he hired a chauffeur to tool him down town. Soon some trouble developed. He hailed the driver:

"What's the matter?"

"Steering gear gone wrong sir! What shall I do?"

THE THREE BEST WARTIME SELLERS

The most severe test of the merit of an automobile is how it sells when business conditions are unsettled and men and women hesitate to buy—fearful of what "may happen." When there is not a cloud in the business sky cars are often bought without careful investigation. Then cars are bought purely for pleasure—"because they look pretty" or because the upholstery is so nice and soft. But in WAR TIMES—when economy is urged as a patriotic duty—a different standard prevails.

TODAY the cars which sell best are those which best combine all desirable and essential qualities—cars whose Beauty and Luxury is only incidental to, and an outgrowth of, the finest construction and design. The three cars in their respective price classes which the public says (by their patronage) best combine Beauty, Luxury, Safety and Comfort with Economy and Super-Efficiency, are the

PRACTICAL AMERICA— AND THE FRANKLIN CAR

AMERICANS are at heart a practical people. There is something in them that responds to Thrift; something that makes them ashamed of extravagance and waste.

They may get off the track occasionally, but they always come back to the main road of efficiency and common sense.

$300,000,000 Wasted in Gasoline and Tires Every Year

The average American is busy. Outside his business he lets others do his thinking. He thinks with his crowd.

He did this on motor cars. He bought dead weight and rigidity, ponderous machinery and big wheel-base.

He lugged around radiators and plumbing, a water-cooling system of 177 parts.

He paid the price in upkeep and depreciation, tire destruction, gasoline waste.

It cost him in a year about $600,000,000 and did not give him the comfort of the flexible, easy riding Franklin, with its world's record of economy in cost of operation.

There is no middle ground in this thrift question.

A car has it—or it has not.

Like easy riding comfort—if thrift is there it proves itself.

Take the tire question, for instance.

If the owner of a heavy machine uses his car as freely as the Franklin owner uses his scientific-light-weight car, in three years he will buy four sets of tires to the Franklin's two—and the tires alone will cost him nearly three times what they cost the Franklin owner.

There never was a more complete demonstration of a principle than the way every thrift-record in the fine car class has been established by the Franklin Car.

Efficiency Standards Established for Motor Cars

Gasoline! Franklin National Economy Test, May 1, 1914—94 Franklin cars in all parts of the country averaged 32.8 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

And again May 1, 1915—137 Franklin Cars averaged 32.1 miles to the gallon.

And again in the Yale University Fuel Economy Test, when Professor Lockwood and Arthur B. Browne, M. E., established the fact that the Franklin Car uses less gasoline per mile than any other car with six or more cylinders.

Oil! In the New York to Chicago Oil Test the Franklin Car ran 1046 miles on one gallon of oil.

Power! Efficiency Test by the Worcester Polytechnic Institute demonstrated that the Franklin delivered 84.4 per cent. of its engine power at the rear wheels.

Tires! The National Tire Average of Franklin owners for five years is 10,203 miles.

Investment Value! If you find a used Franklin for sale, you will pay twenty per cent. more for it than for any other fine car in proportion to its first cost and the use it has had.

American Motor Cars Carry More People than the Railroads

The more this country gets down to stern realities the bigger place there is for the Franklin Car.

There is nothing new in the Thrift of the Franklin—only more people are recognizing it.

The Franklin owner has nothing to change, nothing to explain or excuse.

He is using his car more instead of less, because it is primarily a car of utility, owned and operated on a Thrift basis.

It must be gratifying to him that he saw these things before the call to the National Thrift.

HUDSON SUPER'S ARE FAVORITES WITH TOURISTS

"More people are touring America this year than ever before," said Percy Willis. "This is due in a measure to a larger ownership of automobiles, but I think even more than that is the awakened interest Americans have in their own country since the declaration of war.

"This really surprising activity in touring has had the effect of greatly stimulating sales. The Hudson Motor Car company within the past month was forced to again enlarge production. And they are selling cars as fast as they can be made.

"Undoubtedly the Hudson Super-Six is favored by tourists above all other cars, because of its hill-climbing abilities and endurance qualities. People who are going on extended tours want the security that they will reach their destination; that they will not be troubled by hill-failures and breakdowns. The Hudson Super-Six has established its supremacy indisputably by such performances as driving twice across America in one continuous trip in ten days and twenty-one hours, breaking the transcontinental record in both directions; by driving 1,819 miles in twenty-four hours, beating the next best performance by 317 miles; by the non-stop record of 403 miles, made by a Hudson Super-Six Special, beating the next best performance by more than 100 miles. The endurance qualities of the Hudson were further proved by Ralph Mulford's performance in breaking the American Speedway records for 150 and 200 miles in a Super-Six Special at Chicago June 16, when he averaged 104 miles an hour.

Pike's Peak Hill Climb.

"In the Pike's Peak hill-climb, the greatest of all tests of this character, the Hudson Super-Six established its supremacy, as well as in scores of local contests held by dealers throughout the country. And the tourist wants a car that will not fail on the hills.

"These Hudson qualities undoubtedly are responsible for the unusually large demand for Super-Sixes at this time of the year. More than 37,000 Hudsons are now in the hands of owners. And this number is increasing each month by hundreds.

"It is indicative of the prosperity of the country that many of these cars are being bought for touring. It shows that war-time prosperity has begun to percolate, and that the hesitancy and doubt, which for a while made business nervous, has been replaced by confidence."

Evidently Not.

Hubb—I wonder why they call an ironing machine a mangle?

Batch—My boy, evidently you have never sent anything to a laundry.—Chaparral.

SUCCESSFUL MAN DEPENDS ON MOTOR CAR TO STAY SO

"The more successful a man becomes, the more he depends on his automobile to keep him so," says J. I. Rouse.

"To him the purchase of an automobile is a means of maintaining his personal efficiency.

"He knows it enables him to do more and better work. In fact, he has found that, by owning a car he can do maximum work in the minimum time, and today, it's the time saved, not the time spent, that counts.

"With only sixty minutes in an hour—it's up to everybody to make each minute count. If the average man and woman will figure up the many hours an automobile will save them, and then think of the many things they can accomplish in that time—they will see why the automobile is one of the necessities of the day."

BUICK HAS OLDEST "WAR HORSE" RECORD

Of the many cars of old-fashioned lines, modestly but steadily plugging about our towns and cities, wearing out tire after tire and speedometer after speedometer, with nothing in the steady hum of their motors to indicate anything more than mediocrity of performance, the old white Buick, now known as the "Hyatt Roller," owned by F. E. Slason, Plainville, Kansas, holds the longest verified mileage record reported to date.

This old "war horse," which has now piled up the phenomenal mileage of 264,000, mostly on Goodyear tires, first came to light in a contest instituted to obtain data concerning the farthest distance travelled on a single set of Hyatt bearings.

Since its inauguration in 1909 it has been used for touring, as a service car, for trucking, and in livery service. It has been driven by more than twenty-five employed drivers as well as by the members of the owner's family. In fact, for eight years this old timer has been well known throughout its native state. During this time it has travelled a distance equal to more than one hundred transcontinental trips from New York to San Francisco.

On one trip it travelled 890 miles with a load of 900 pounds; on another one 347 miles were covered in twelve hours and thirty-two minutes from Denver to Plainville; and from Colorado Springs to Plainville, about the same distance, but over better roads in eleven hours and two minutes. Many times it has been driven steadily for twenty-four hours. This is the car that won the Hyatt contest for the greatest mileage run on a single set of bearings.

And nearly all of this remarkable mileage has been piled up on Goodyear tires, which helped mightily in bringing the old car from its undeserved obscurity into national renown.

Christian, From Waco, Asks and Receives Answer From War Veteran How "Under Fire" Feels "Over There"

Note.—To a member of the staff of the Morning News, W. Roy Christian, former Y. M. B. L. secretary in Waco, has written this letter. It will be of interest to all in Waco.—Editor.

Camp Funston, July 4.

Dear Friend:

I wish I could give you a carbon copy of a facsimile somehow of the smile which adorns my cherubic face this morning at 8:10. Positively, it would be refreshing. At least it is to me, and my smile is merely a pluribus unum. You understand that "cherubic," as I use it, means a clean shave and the absence of skirmish line dirt from behind your ears. Such a pristine condition during these strenuous, belly-crawling days, is attained only on holidays and the Sabbath.

For the first time since I have been in camp I did not go to sleep last night at 9:45, or immediately thereafter. A little knot of newspaper men got together last night back of the barracks after tattoo in that near mysterious way in which God's chosen ones seem to congregate and we discussed men of the craft and measures of the day in the way that mightier-than-the-sword folk do. It was a tonic to the soul. My typewriter fingers began itching, and I suppose that is the reason I am flirting with the Corona on this time-killer now.

And this morning! Reveille did not come until 6:15. It would be absolutely impossible to make you understand the difference between 5:45 and 6:15. To those who tarry long and lazily under the luring maze of comfy coverlets on a Sealy mattress there is no comprehension of this ecstacy of late reveille. Only those who fall dog-tired onto olive drab, coarse wool blankets, can appreciate the deep pleasures of body rest. When we awoke at the first note of the bugle, we were ushered into the spirit of the Fourth by the stirring march of the cavalry band parading the company street.

Pep! Ye gods. That old Highlander who used to go out and slay a few Englishmen before breakfast for an appetite would have had nothing on this bunch. The latent enthusiasm in this crowd, as inspired by our brilliant young commander, Warfield, is only circumscribed by the flight of the Spread-Eagle itself.

I want to tell you a merry little tale which I overplayed not a tremolo and true to the commas. I would put into orthodox form, but the chap doesn't talk much and he has a half dozen letters in his pocket from sheets asking for the yarn. I give merely the skim, but there's cream to it, for he used to work in Waco in a certain office in the Amicable building.

He was transferred to our company recently. A chap fully six feet two, sunken-eyed, with a face that haunts you and compels speculation. His eyebrows are shaggy black and his eyes blue, and there is a quality in his expression that must only come from supreme experiences. He is quiet; reticent almost. Apparently 35, actually he has just reached 22. He gives the semblance of an absorbing story in a foreign language.

Howard is his name and he was born in the little town of Jasper, in East Texas. A matter of two years ago he was a youngster wandering around the face of the world looking for anything. Life, say. Happening one day into London he "joined up" in a fit of boyish daring. Maybe the band was playing down the street.

For obvious reasons he was enlisted as a Canadian, 25 years old, and because he was from Texas they placed him with the Coldstream guards—a veteran regiment since '58.

For a year he served with the hardened of English veterans. For five months he slept with Death as the rule and Life as the exception.

His first fight was the initial Battle of Loos when the infantry struggled four mortal days and nights toward Houge, after the artillery had bombarded the Boches incessantly thirty-one days and nights. His regiment charged through their own clouds of gas, which went awry, because the thing was newer then. They were gaining, when the dreaded counter-attack of the Germans came, headed by the emperor's own death-dealing Hussars. Reinforcements were scheduled, but somebody higher up bungled and only a handful of Irishmen came. The shattered guards were crushed back over their blood-washed five-mile gain. Paris was sitting up at nights for the final reports.

That was the beginning. When it ended there was one other man left in Howard's command.

His people secured release through Secretary Lansing. Howard returned home; his own sister did not know him.

He doesn't talk much, but this man of all the tried soldiers in camp has been where we are likely to go, and I wrestled with him for the "straight goods."

I wanted to know how it feels to "go over thetop."

"Like you were the first man who was going to get killed—at first. You hear the crack and screech of the bullets by your head and you keep sticking your hand up between your eyes to see if there isn't a bloody hole there. Shrapnel burst around you like bedlam and you dodge instinctively."

Later, he says, one hardens and quits feeling parts of the body for bullet holes. You begin to feel like you have a charmed life. Your bunkie within four feet of you may have his head blown off, and you feel no fear—only a smothering lump in your throat.

They tell us that the bayonet, "the cold steel," is the hardest test, I suggested.

"Well, you just simply forget that you're human when you close with the Boches in the charge. You're just a stabbing machine," he obliged.

I asked about the feelings of the fellows when resting from the firing line.

"Oh, you just think about the thing at hand—trench soldiers get out of the "t'morrow" habit."

I wanted first-hand information bad and I still pumped: "How about that barage fire?" We rookies have gotten the idea that the devil could improve his thermal apparatus with this piece of military perfection.

Howard has a sense of humor. It's not boisterous, but it invariably comes to the surface in talking of, what is humanely, the deadliest features of trench hell.

"Yes, I've seen the bloody curtain—not where I was, but where I had been," and he laughed frankly.

Steeped in newspaper sophistication, as a veteran, you may yawn at this epistolary hash, but I dare you to distract your attention when the fellow tells it who has barb-wire cuts and shrapnel abrasions to illustrate the tale.

GASOLINE ITEM BIG FEATURE OF MOTOR CAR THRIFT

According to reports from the Oklahoma oil field, the gasoline production of 1917 will not be sufficient to last through the year, unless radical conservation measures are taken. Dr. Burton of the Standard Oil company told members of the society of Automobile Engineers recently, that as close as could be estimated, 1917 production would reach 2,500,000,000 gallons, of which American automobiles would use 2,000,000,000, leaving 500,000,000 gallons, for use by military trucks, to be exported to the allies.

Among the manufacturers, the Franklin Automobile company is doing much to promote the idea of motor car thrift. Strange as it may seem, the twenty odd years of motor car design have never produced a universal standard of gasoline efficiency. The Franklin company, however, has always encouraged demonstrations of the low gasoline consumption of its cars, and also kept a very careful record of owners' results, which for 1917, have averaged better than twenty miles per galon.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CAR

There is always a public waiting somewhere for more of Dodge Brothers cars than the works can deliver.

That situation has existed now for more than two years.

People rarely ask questions now about the mechanical construction of the car.

Performance, material and construction are taken for granted.

It will pay you to visit us and examine this car.

The gasoline consumption is unusually low.
The tire mileage is unusually high.

Studebaker

A Performance That Proved

This is the story of one of the most gruelling tests to which an automobile was ever subjected.

Remember as you read it that the car was a Series 18 Studebaker taken from a dealer's stock, that there were no trained service-men at specially established "controls" to care for it, that the trip itself was not "factory planned," that it was just an ordinary tour.

No Special Preparations

On May 20th last, this Studebaker car left San Francisco as the pilot car for a caravan of advertising men going to the St. Louis convention.

No special preparations were made as far as the car was concerned. The trip was to be a long one—but nothing unusual was expected.

The first two days were pleasant and the roads were good.

Seas of 'Dobe Mud

The third day found the party at Lovelock, Nevada, in a pouring rain.

The harder it rained, the stickier and more tenacious became the 'dobe mud. In places the pools were hub deep. This mud was cement-like in its consistency—it took a pick and shovel to remove it from the wheels. Yet the Studebaker car pulled sturdily along and showed ample reserve power for conditions even more difficult. This lasted for three days until they reached Salt Lake City.

Over the Rockies in a Blizzard

Leaving Salt Lake City they started for Evanston, Wyoming, traveling the latter half of the distance through one of the hardest rainstorms imaginable—the road was washed out and the car had to find its own way over rocks and along ledges that seemed impassable.

Starting from Evanston for Fort Bridger they ran into a blizzard, which at lower levels turned into rain.

The road was a veritable canal.

At one point they only made nine miles in five hours (the picture above shows why).

More Rain and Mud

All the way through Colorado the rain continued—and kept up as the car struggled through the gumbo mud of Western Kansas.

Even between Topeka and Kansas City the roads were in awful condition.

Arrived in Perfect Running Condition

At Kansas City the clouds lifted, the sun shone and the rest of the run to St. Louis was made without incident.

Despite its all but unsurmountable difficulties the Studebaker car arrived in St. Louis only 2¼ hours behind schedule in perfect running condition and having only changed one tire during the entire trip.

So well had it come through its terrible experience that the car was driven on to Detroit to the Studebaker factories without any overhauling whatsoever.

This performance is further proof of the remarkable durability of Studebaker cars—a durability that is due to one thing only—the mechanical perfection of this splendid automobile.

Any car that will come through a test like this in perfect running condition—any car that will perform as this one did is worth your serious consideration—you owe it to yourself to get a Studebaker demonstration before you buy any car.

There will be no change in Studebaker models this year, but the increased cost of materials and labor may force Studebaker to make an advance in prices at any time without notice.

KISSEL FLYER HARD TO BEAT DEALERS STATE

"Never before has the Kissel Motor Car company offered such a wonderful line of quality trucks selling at prices that emphasize their unusual value," J. I. Rouse, in speaking of the new line of Kissel trucks which his company has just announced.

"From 'The Flyer' the new light delivery car to 'The Dreadnaught,' a brute for heavy work, the built-in quality that has always characterized Kissel trucks for ten years is emphasized more than ever.

"The unusual uses of the present day to which motor trucks are put, have been carefully analyzed with the result that new and important additions and changes make the new trucks fully competent to cope with them.

First Time in History.

"Never before in the history of the motor truck has its efficiency been so fully recognized and used accordingly. This fact caused us to put the new trucks to tests unknown and unthought of a couple years ago and the truck maker who does not take them into account when designing and constructing his models, is piling up a lot of trouble for himself.

"There are five different sized models in the new line up—thus providing a truck for every purpose. 'The Flyer' is built for the retailers and merchants quick delivery; 'The General Utility' will prove the right-sized truck for wholesalers and jobbers; 'The Freighter' is designed to meet manufacturer's shipping schedules; 'The Heavy Duty' will prove highly efficient for industrial highway work, contractors and similar semi-heavy work, while the 'Dreadnaught' is a giant in strength and power and is built for dependable service in the iron, steel and the metal working industries.

"All fve models have the famous Kissel-built engine, Pierce motor governor, Stromberg carburetor, Remy electric system which costs $150 extra.

Strength Is Assured.

"Durability and strength are assured by the scientifically constructed chasses being tested under loads that would have put out of commission trucks of lower quality construction.

"Another exclusive feature is that of the all year cab, without the winter attachments, being standard equipment on four of the new models.

"Owners of the new Kissel truck models can now insure all-year protection and comfort to their truck drivers by providing their trucks with the all-year cab winter attachment at a slight extra cost.

"Without a doubt the new Kissel line will prove popular with those business men who appreciate the necessity of employing trucks of known efficiency and economy while selling at prices that emphasize their unusual value."

HOT HEADS AND COLD FEET LOSE MANY AUTO SALES SAYS MOTOR CAR MAN

To hot heads and cold feet are chargeable most of the failures in automobile salesmanship.

Personality, courtesy, poise, tact, mastery of the subject and enthusiasm all count immeasurably in success—still I have known successful salesmen who lacked one or more of these qualities.

But I have never known of a consistent producer who did not possess both patience and persistency—who could not take an apparent rebuff without a mental explosion or ignoble retirement.

The Average Buyer.

The average buyer of an automobile has been at least fairly successful in his own business and as such has cultivated combativeness. He is not usually going to close a deal without argument, even though he may be technically unfamiliar with the subject in hand.

Don't forget that he, having been successful in his own line, is somewhat a student of human nature and is likely to purposely attempt irritating you in order to see how you will handle yourself. Let him try it but do not "spill the beans" by taking him too seriously.

Give him the facts forcefully and affirmatively—never negatively where avoidable. Listen to him if he wants to talk—it may be trying but bear it gracefully.

Always Tell the Truth.

Tell the truth—that's always good salesmanship. Exaggeration and misrepresentation is bad policy as well as bad morals. It doesn't pay for the very simple fact that most people think before they invest important money.

The most that any prospective automobile buyer expects is value. When you tell him that he is going to get more than that, he is skeptical. Some very good cars, worth every dollar asked for them, have failed in the market because superlative merit was claimed for them, when in fact they were just what could be reasonably expected for the money—all that any purchaser had the right or disposition to expect.

DODGE BROS. CAR TO DRAW PLOW IN MASSACHUSETTS

Patriotic citizens who are planning to plant and take care of vegetable gardens this summer are facing the acute problem of being unable to have their ground plowed, on account of the shortage of experienced farm labor and of horses. The great difficulty has been in obtaining horses, the purchases of the allies having reduced America's surplus to a deficit and the average horse owner being unwilling to work his horses in the evening.

A. H. Long, an experienced truck gardener of Belmont, Mass., solved the labor and horse problem in a unique and simple manner. He hitched his plow to his Dodge Brothers motor car, wrapping the springs with burlap and equipping the rear wheels with tire chains to insure traction in the soft earth. With a friend at the wheel, Mr. Long turned over approximately two and one-half acres the first day, while his average with a team has been less than half as great. A gang plow used in the same manner would have enabled him to prepare practically five acres a day.

A speed of six miles an hour was used in the experiment, and although twelve miles an hour was maintained for some time, the possibility of danger due to the presence of stones in the soil is responsible for Mr. Long's opinion that the former speed is best suited for breaking up turf.

BRUTE STRENGTH OF RUBBER WILL ASTONISH MANY

"Few people realize the downright brute strength of rubber," said C. H. Smith of Chicago, sales manager for the Diamond Rubber company, Inc. "They are apt to judge rubber strength by the rubber articles they handle every day—pencil erasers, overshoes, and the kind of rubber bands that always break in the wrong place and at the wrong time.

"They would be surprised to see some of the tests conducted on the rubber that goes into the tread of a Diamond tire here at the factory. We will give any man a cord or strip of such rubber and let him try his strength on it. He will be surprised to find that it is only after quite a tussle that he can break it, if at all.

"And as for its wearing qualities—well, we just stacked it up against steel a short time ago by blowing a sand blast under enormous pressure on a piece of rubber and a piece of steel. The rubber actually outwore the steel, three to one.

"This remarkable strength in rubber is not by any means the result of haphazard methods nor guesswork in the laboratory. Ten years ago the strongest rubber that they could make would today be instantly discarded for use in a modern tire. It has been found that certain ingredients mixed with rubber under certain conditions of wear, strengthen it by many degrees over its natural strength. And more remarkable still is the fact that rubber can be thus strengthened without losing any of its original elasticity and bounce.

Try to Produce Substitute.

"We frequently hear of some Don Quixote or would-be scientific Christopher Columbus who is trying to produce a "substitute" for rubber. While we may be wrong, and while there is a remote possibility of somebody surprising us, still nothing makes us rubber men laugh so well as the synthetic rubber Johnny. When it comes to a substitute for rubber, ask yourself the question, 'Why a substitute for rubber any more than a substitute for steel?'

"There ain't no such animal."

TRAIL BLAZER OPENS ROAD IN MOUNTAINS

In addition to blazing the trail for the proposed National Boundary highway over the Cascade mountain east from Spokane, the Saxon roadster trail maker broke the way for summer motor traffic across the mountains.

Two feet of snow, the tail-end of the winter's covering, was encountered in the mountains and the roadster was the first car to pass it, making the narrow, treacherous paths without difficulty.

Now that the Saxon trail blazer has turned eastward it is expected that exceptional time will be made in mapping the boundary highway along the Canadian border. Summer weather should make ideal motoring conditions and the drivers of the car do not anticipate the slow travel that bad roads caused in the early stages of the trip this spring.

The next point of importance in the car's itinerary will be Helena, Montana, which will soon be reached. From there the car will proceed eastward and probably will strike the region of the great lakes some time in July. The trail blazer was one of the features in a patriotic parade in Seattle, having the honor of being the only motor car in the procession.

The Consumer Governs

The manufacturer makes tires and sells to the dealer; the dealer buys tires and sells to the consumer; the consumer buys tires and uses them.

Short-sighted business would say that there are here three conflicting interests.

But Goodyear and Goodyear Service Station Dealers say there is only one interest—the consumer's interest—governing and defining both the others.

We express it this way:

"Whatever is best for the consumer is best for the manufacturer and the dealer, too."

With us that is not a slogan. Probably you never saw it before in a Goodyear advertisement.

But it's the way we run our business.

It's the foundation principle to which we refer for settlement of all our problems.

It is voiced frequently in conferences among ourselves, written into letters from executives to salesmen, from the factory to the service stations and back again, passed to and fro among departments scores of times a day and acted on all along the line—from the first buying of crude rubber to the delivery of the finished tire, or other product, into the hands of the consumer, and then on until the tire or tube or accessory has lived its full life and served its purpose well.

We know that the men who make Goodyear Tires, the men who sell them and the men who use them all have an identical interest in the goodness of Goodyears.

Knowing this we do not try to serve ourselves more by serving the public less. And the public has responded to this principle by making the business of Goodyear and Goodyear Service Station Dealers the largest tire business in the world.

MISS RANKIN IS AIDING WOMEN IN U. S. EMPLOY

Special to The News.

Washington, D. C., July 7.—Miss Jeanette Rankin, congresswoman from Montana, closed her first quarter of a year in congress by making her thirteenth week in Washington one of the greatest for her sex that has taken place since she came here.

Monday while the house of representatives was droning over the rivers and harbors appropriations bill, Miss Rankin laid aside her congressional identity, and as "J. Rankin, Californiast City," wormed herself and her secretary, Miss Belle Figelmann, into the bureau of printing and ingraving to find out the real truth about the dispute as to whether women plate printers were working under reasonable and lawful conditions in getting out the liberty bonds and other work which is now rushing that bureau to the utmost.

Women workers in the bureau have been working long hours, and complaint has been made that they were too long.

Director Ralph of the bureau challenged the veracity of the complainants, and said the bureau was working its women in relays.

Miss Rankin, as voluntary sleuth, found the truth to be: The women are working 12 hours a day and are paid overtime for the hours over eight. The trouble arises from the fact that the 12-hour day is too long a strain on many of them, but they are afraid to give it up for fear they will lose their jobs to some one younger and stronger. Miss Rankin found one woman in tears because she was not allowed to get off to go home to get some food for her children.

Restores 8-Hour Day.

Director Ralph, when he found that "J. Rankin, California-st, City," was Miss Jeanette Rankin, congress-First she voted with the minority (141 to 139) to recommit the rivers and harbors bill to the committee, and then she voted again with the minority (132 to 20), against the final passage of the bill. A third time she voted with the minority (76 to 156) to recommit the bill to enlarge the interstate commerce commission to the committee with instructions to amend it so as to empower the commission to suspend proposed rate increases pending hearings, but on the fourth roll call she at last was on the winning side for once in the day and voted woman from Montana, and that her purpose was to lay what she had found before W. G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, immeadately issued an order to the regular eight-hour working day basis.

Tuesday the house spent in dreary debate on the river and harbor bill and the mercury in Washington touched 96, giving the new congresswoman her first touch of real summer.

Wednesday the mercury outdid Tuesday, scratching a mark of 100 1-2 for itself, its first sally aboxe the century mark for the 1917 season, and all that day Miss Rankin was confined to the house where she was insurging, with the ajority (229 to 12) on the final passage of the bill.

Committee Member.

Thursday the house devoted to the president's preferential shipment bill and the bill to allow homesteaders who enter the army and navy credit for their service in lieu of residence and actual cultivation. Miss Rankin is a member of the public lands committee which reported the bill for passage.

Friday the house passed a bill making similar provision for owners of mining claims and desert land entrymen who enter the military service. This, likewise, was reported by the committee of which Miss Rankin is a member.

Saturday the house took a part holiday, baseball teams of members playing Republican against Democrat, for the benefit of the Red Cross. Miss Rankin tossed out the first ball to the umpire and she and "Uncle Joe" Cannon were designated as official scorers—which was quite some job.

NORTHCLIFFE IS ONE BRITON WHO HITS THE MARK

Between Arthur James Balfour, the first head of the British commission to the United States, and Alfred Harmsworth, Lord Northcliffe, his successor, there is all the difference in the world in character, thought, opinion, expression and action. One is old England, the other is England up to date. One is the inheritor of the pride, the poise, the subtlety, the philosophic aloofness of the Cecils, the proudest family in England, with a lineage running back to the time of Henry VIII; the other, like Napoleon, is his own ancestor, the inheritor of nothing except his own temperament, a climber from poverty to fabulous wealth, a man of action, who makes the firstlings of his mind the firstlings of his hand, outspoken, unfearing, intensely modern and efficient, cosmopolitan in his points of views, a man who thinks big things and does them and gets them done. Balfour is John Bull "seeing things through," Northcliffe is John Bull putting them through.

Once Cordially Hated.

Less than three years ago Northcliffe was the most cordially hated man in England. Not vials, but tons of conservative wrath were emptied out upon his head. He was araigned as a traitor to the nation, accused of giving comfort to the enemy. Asquith, the politician, was then at the zenith of his power, with Kitchener, the idol of the British people, at the head of the war department. The army was at the front, "inspired by its traditions," full of enthusiasm, eager to get at the Boches and avenge Belgium. Confidently and almost serenely the British people were awaiting results—was not K. of K. at the helm? Then the results came—terrifying results. Disaster followed on the heels of disaster and the British armies retreated and retreated almost to the verge of annihilation.

Something was wrong. The government organs took to explaining and urging a continuance of confidence. But the explanations and the soothings did not satisfy—at least they did not satisfy Alfred Harmsworth, the owner of the Daily Mail and the London Times. He took a run over to the continent to see about things himself and when he came back there was an editorial explosion that shook the British government to its foundations. Harmsworth found the truth and told it to the people. The army was unprepared, unequipped with ammunition, following outward systems of strategy.

"Lord Kitchener," said the Daily Mail, "has starved the army in France of high explosive shells. His record in the South African war, as a fighting general, apart from his excellent organizing work as chief of staff, was not brilliant. Nothing in Lord Kitchener's experience suggests that he has the qualifications required for conducting a European campaign in the field, and we can only hope that no such mistake will befall the nation as that he should be permitted to interfere with the actual strategy of this gigantic war. He has persisted in sending shrapnel, a useless weapon in trench warfare. He was warned repeatedly that the kind of shell required was a violently explosive bomb which should dynamite its way through the German trenches and entanglements and enable our brave men to advance in safety."

A storm of protest and indignation followed the publication of this editorial—never had British pride received such a shock. Public meetings were called to denounce Northcliffe, his paper was burned in effigy, votes of confidence were passed for Kitchener. But these little things did not disturb Northcliffe. He kept hammering away. He kept on telling the truth, until finally his bitterest enemies had to admit that it was the truth. Then down toppled Kitchener, the idol, and with him the Asquith cabinet. And up rose Lloyd George and Alfred Harmsworth, today reckoned the two most forceful men in England.

Wonderful Career.

The career of Lord Northcliffe is one of the most wonderful and romantic in the annals of public men, as his personality is one of the most distinctive and compelling. To make comparisons at all suggestive, we have to fall back on our old friends Aladdin and Napoleon. But none of the genii gave him a lamp to rub—he made his own lamp. And the Napoleonic comparison will only suffice to illustrate his passion for achievement and his impatience with inefficiency. The Northcliffe luck has been Aladdinlike, but the spirit with which he has followed his "hunches" has been truly Napoleonic. It is typical of the man that the first thing he did when he landed in this country upon his mission was "to open up offices in New York." And you may depend upon it that they will be equipped with all modern conveniences and interconnecting telephones in every room—in his residential mansions at home, he has one in every room, includng the bathroom.

Northcliffe today is one of the richest men in England—worth, it is estimated, from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000. He is past 50 years of age, married and childless. And yet, hardly twenty-five years ago he was hard put to borrow a five-yound note to finance his first venture in journalism—the now widely read Answers of London. He was then just turned of 21. He had served his apprenticeship as editor of a school magazine at 16 and later as an all-around reporter on a cycling paper at Coventry, where he learned the whole newspaper job from composing room to editorial. Today Northcliffe owns and manages more than sixty magazines and newspapers with a total weekly circulation of 20,000,000, handled by 50,000 news agents throughout the world, and included in his publications is that ancient bulwark of English conservatism, the London Times—the Thunderer, now, really, for the first time in its career fully worth of its familiar title. He owns also the Daily Mirror, the Weekly Dispatch, the Evening News—and they all talk Northcliffe talk and print Northcliffe news. And to feed all these molders of opinion that he owns, he has built up one of the largest paper mills in the world at Grand Falls, Newfoundland, with a capacity of 120 tons of white paper each day.

If there is one definite rule in Northcliffe's scheme of life that he adheres to more rigidly than another it is that his work for the day ends with the dinner bell. From that time on, save in a great national emergency, Northcliffe plays. Isaac F. Marcosson, the magazine writer, who was his house guest and wrote a critical interpretation of the man in a recent number of Everybody's, gives this intimate description of his methods of work and living:

Method of His Own.

"He has a method all his own, because he divides the day into two scientific halves. He begins his labors at 5 o'clock in the morning in summer and 6 o'clock in winter. From his bed he dictates plans and policies. Before the average Englishman is out of his morning tub, Northcliffe has done a day's work. He has read all his own newspapers and marked them with criticisms; has outlined the program for his evening paper; he has talked over the telephone with members of his staff and picked up the thread of things that have happened through the night. At 11 o'clock, when he is in the country (and he does much of his work there) he knocks off and plays golf until luncheon. Whenever possible he sleeps from 2 until 4. After that he sees people. He works just as he walks and talks—swiftly and eagerly. Nothing ruffles him. He dictated his book, 'The Rise of the Daily Mail,' in the garden at Elmwood, while a German airplane was dropping bombs in the neighboring town of Margate.

"No guest in any of Northcliffe's houses will hear shop talk from the dinner hour on. Then you will see Northcliffe the boy—the dynamic Peter Pan who will never grow up. I like to recall an evening at Elmwood, the smallest of his country places, but the one to which he is most attached by sentimental ties, because he bought it out of his first earnings. There were only a few of us down there. After dinner Northcliffe said: 'Let's have the phonegraph. He stretched himself on a huge couch, puffed away at a big cigar of the dreadnought size, and luxuriated in American ragtime that ranged from 'Down in Tennessee' to 'Alexander's Ragtime Band.'

"Go behind the curtain which masks him and you find a many-sided individual. I have seen Morgan, Ryan, Perkins, Harriman—all the human dynamos of the frenzied power plant of American energy at work. None surpass Northcliffe in galvanic effort or in concentration He speaks French like a native and is as much at home in Paris as in London. He has edited his papers from Palm Beach, Fla., and dictated his policies from Newport as well as from Margate. He has studied American newspapers and adopted American newspaper methods. He knows the inside workings of American politics like one to the manner born and when he writes for American publications, as he often does, he expresses himself life an American—he talks to America in terms of America. When he uses American slang, or talks in vernacular, he employs it like an American—not like the average Englishman, half wrong and half apologetically. He is not one of the 'Hands Across the Sea' Britons—he knows what the average American looks upon that slogan as 'bunc'—he doesn't hesitate to tell an American where he thinks America is going wrong, any more than he hesitates to tell his own countrymen the same truths. He believes that the interests of the two countries are fundamentally identical in this, at least, that they have the same love of individual freedom and the same respect for fair play. Perhaps there is no Englishman living today who understands American thought, and American ideals as well as Northcliffe. He may tell us a good many things that we may not like to hear—it is certain that he will talk as frankly as the bonds of diplomatic discretion will permit him—but Americans will be less inclined to resent anything he may say than they would the same things coming from any other Englishman, because they long ago voted him a 'good old scout.'"—Kansas City Star.

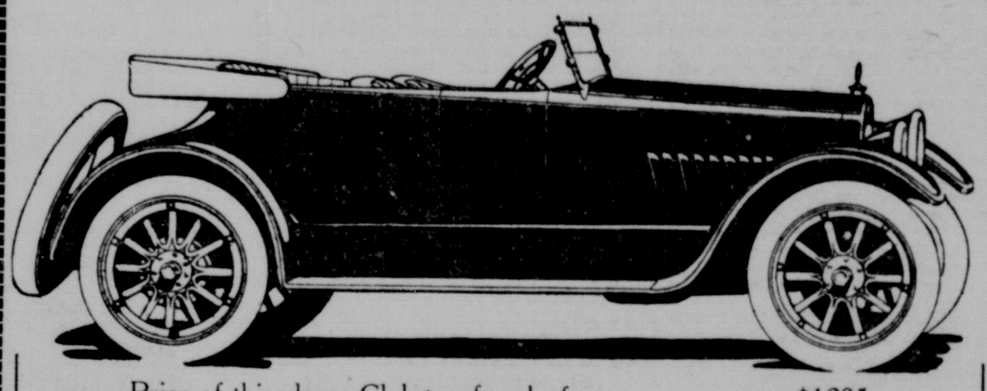
MINUTE MAN SIX

"An Ocean of Proof—Not a Desert of Promises"



Price of this classy Clubster, f. o. b. factory.....$1285

Option of four beautiful colors as follows: Brunswick Green, Cobalt Blue, Auto Green and Blue Black. Wheels are optional as follows: White, Cream and Natural Wood. White Wire Wheels furnished at $100 extra.

Touring cars have same equipment and prices are the same.

The Lexington Minute Man Six is not only the classiest car on the market in its price class, but it is unusually well built and very powerful, developing over 22 per cent more power on less gasoline than any other car equipped with a similar size Continental Motor, due to the Moore Multiple Exhaust System. This car is by no means an experiment, this factory having built automobiles for the past twelve years, and their product has always been of the highest quality.

These cars ride so much easier, perform so much better and look so much classier than others of a similar price that they create widespread attention everywhere, and have been unusually popular wherever shown It is better for you to investigate the Lexington before you buy than afterwards, as you will be much better satisfied.

URGE CONSCRIPTION FOR MATRIMONY—TO MARRY BEFORE GOING

Special to The News.

Kansas City, July 6.—A group of Kansas women would use the conscription law to furnish husbands for a lot of deserving young and old women. They would see to it that the eligible young men within the draft ages are married before they go to war and that those exempted from the draft for any reason but physical and mental disability are conscripted into matrimony. Here is a copy of a letter that came to J. L. Bristow, editor of the Salin (Kan.) Journal and chairman of the Kansas Public untilities commission:

"Won't you give me some space in your paper to let me express what I think is the big problem confronting this country today. Thousands of marriageable and worthy young men are going into the war in a few months. They are not only the best of the country's youth but practically all of it.

"What's to become of the young women and girls about to become of age in Kansas? Has anybody thought of them? Where will they find husbands after the war is over? Men who would otherwise consider matrimony have forsaken the idea. You can't find more than ten or twelve young fellows today of the conscription ages out of a thousand that want to get married or will get married. They are afraid of what their friends will say. They are afraid that some chucklehead will call them 'slackers.' I know of two myself who had expected to ask two girls and now they do not even think of marrying.

"We have army conscription, food conscription and conscription of national resources. Why not matrimonial conscription? Is there any other thing that can be done right now more patriotic than marrying to save the race?"

The letter then proposed that public sentiment be aruosed and a demand made to carry out the proposal by taking the lists of men registered under the draft, find out why they are not married and bring about a meeting with girls who are willing to become war brides, if necessary. Mr. Bristow thought the letter a fake. A name was given and a street address so he sent one of his reliable young men around to find out something more about the new conscription idea which had been put into effect to some extent in Germany at the outbreak of the war.

The young men found not only one but a dozen women of Salina and other cities back of the scheme. They had perfected a preliminary organization. The women, for the present, at least, will not disclose their names. All of them are married and have families. Several of them have eligible young men within the draft age. Some of them would like to see their sons married before they go to war. Others have eligible daughters.

Until they get their scheme formulated the women insist that their organization remain a secret and the names of the promoters be not made public. But they have lock box No. 201 at the Salina postoffice, where mail will reach them.

The government realizes that such

NORWAY INDIGNANT AT ACTION FROM GERMANY

By Associated Press.

Christiania, Norway, July 7.—There is a great indignation along the northwestern Norwegian coast over the action of Germany in practically prohibiting Norwegian coastwise traffic in that region through its declaration of a danger zone in the Arctic.

This entire district is without railroads and must be served wth the necessities of life by means of seaborne traffic. But it is impossible for the coasting vessels to sail from one port to another without coming out into the German danger zone, and thereby risking ships and lives. The result has been the practical abandonment of this very vital traffic, with a considerable part of Norway threatened by starvation as soon as the present stocks of food for man and animal, fuel and other necessary articles are exhausted.

Germany, while making no move to enable Norway herself to serve the district thus cut off, has been prompt to take commercial advantage of the situation by putting a line of German boats, which are immune from U-boat activity, on the route from which competition has been thus eliminated. These German boats expect to have an absolute monopoly of sailing to and from the northern Norwegian ports and the principal Norwegian fishing markets, where they can exchange German goods at war prices for fish, ore and fish oils.

The German company has even been daring and impudent enough to offer its service to the Norwegian government, desiring to enter into a special agreement with the government here for the maintenance of regular freight and mail routes. Thus far the government has refused to have any dealings with the company, but it may be forced to accept the German offer in order to save its own people in the north from famine.

WILL TAKE JUNK TO THE CITY HALL

In a determined effort to stamp out some of the abuses which have grown up in the handling and sale of junk in Waco, Chief of Police Guy McNamara has just issued instructions to his men which will be in the form of a complete departure from the old method of handling junk thieves.

Chief McNamara has decided to have all the boys or other persons who are caught with junk and who cannot give a perfectly clear account of themselves, shall be brought to the city hall and the junk deposited there, for identification of owners.

Junk thefts have reached a serious stage, McNamara says. On Saturday boys were caught in a barn emptying the feed out of sacks in order to get the sacks to sell.

Our Policy, "The Public Be Pleased" Established in 1873

REPORT IS MADE BY COUNCIL OF NATION DEFENSE

VALUABLE PLANS HAVE BEEN MADE AND GREAT WORK ACCOMPLISHED.

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 7.—Accomplishments of the Council of National Defense, its advisory commission and its committees since the council was finally organized last March are set forth in a comprehensive report made public recently by Director Gifford.

Only eighty persons, according to Director Gifford's report, are drawing salaries, and most of these are clerks and stenographers.

More than 100 highly-trained men, says the report, are giving their entire time to the council without remuneration. Several hundred more, it says, are giving free a large part of their time. The chief accomplishments of the council are summed up by Mr. Gifford as follows:

"Mobilization of the 262,000 miles of railroad of the country for the government's defense.

"Close-knit organization of the telephone and telegraph companies of America to insure to the government the most rapid and efficient wire communications.

"Settlement of the recent threatened national railroad strikes.

General acceptance by labor and capital of the suggestion of the council that existing labor standards should not be changed until the need for such action had been determined by the council with the steadying influence on industry growing out of such action.

"Procurement of 45,000,000 pounds of copper for the uses of the army and navy at less than one-half of the then current market price—a saving to the government of approximately $10,000,000.

"Similar accomplishments as to steel, zinc and aluminum.

"Completion of an inventory, for military purposes, of 27,000 American manufacturing plants.

"Money saving to the government through appointment over the country of committees of business men to assist the quartermaster's department of the army in the economical and efficient purchase of supplies.

"Saving to the government of millions of dollars by the co-ordination of purchases through the agency of the general munitions board.

"Creation, under the medical section of the council, of a general medical board, of many of the most highly qualified surgeons and physicians of the country.

"Selection by the same section of thousands of doctors specifically qualified for membership in the medical officers' reserve corps, and the standardization, for on its way to completion, of surgical instruments and supplies.

"Creation by the council of the aircraft production board, which is setting out to make 3500 airplanes and to train 6000 aviators this year.

"Definite results obtained by the council's committee on coal production in the procurement and expeditious shipment of coal, both in the civilian and federal interests.

"Successful initiation of a movement to co-ordinate activities on the part of the states of the union for the national defense, brought to a clear and workable focus by the conference of states held recently in Washington at the call and under the auspices of the council.

"Organization of a railroad committee to send to Russia and enlistment of reserve engineer regiments to aid in rehabilitating the railroads of France."

Besides the many things done by the council, Mr. Gifford enumerates in detail the work of the boards and committees. He begins with the general munitions board, of which Frank A. Scott is chairman, which, according to the report, has the following accomplishments to its credit:

Development of the capacity of small arms factories to supply one million men with arms; contracts signed for small arms ammunition to meet all requirements; artillery ammunition supply developed; sources of machine guns supplies developed; raw material obtained for gun carriages and caissons; standardization of motor transports; supply of material for ambulance bodies obtained and satisfactory production of armored cars assured; reduction in price of machine guns obtained and increased production arranged; arrangement of sufficient supply of surgical instruments; development of an improved optical glass for military instruments; recommendations made as to fair and equitable prices for army and navy contracts; arrangements made for taking over British small arms plants in this country; establishment of priority in manufacture of machine tools to assure government of proper supplies; compilation of list of munitions manufacturers for guidance of army and navy in making purchases.

"The general munitions board, the report declared, "has, since its organization, throughout the co-ordination of purchasing alone, saved many millions of dollars to the government."

The work of the aircraft production board is set forth at length. Some of the main things it has done are:

"Assisted in organization of aircraft manufacturers into an association.

"Negotiated with aircraft companies and others to obtain a basis for settling patent disputes and helped put through an agreement.

"Evolved, in co-operation with the chief signal officer, a training plan for aviators; assisted in starting schools for preliminary training of aviator cadets; arranged for sending professors to Toronto for instruction in this work.

"Developed in cooperation with the signal officer and the aeronautical division a standard type of aviation school building, and equipment of buildings; assisted the aeronautical division in selecting sites for aviation schools.

"Investigated the production facilities of airplane factories in the United States and made recommendations covering orders that should be placed immediately.

"Arranged for standardization of training type of machine between English, Canadian and United States service.

"Developed plans for battle types of planes, orders for which are being placed now by the military authorities."

The medical section, under Dr. Franklin Martin and Dr. F. F. Simpson, has spent much of its time selecting civilian physicians for recommendation to the army and navy, public health service and the Red Cross. The work has been done through committees named in each state. Selection of 21,000 physicians has been completed and the men have been given application blanks which they have been asked to file with the surgeons general.

Mr. Gifford's report emphasizes the work of an inter-departmental committee, whose purpose is to prevent duplication of war work in the various government departments.

The council has in the naval consulting board a board of inventions, which just now is investigating plans to combat the submarine. The board is headed by Thomas A. Edison and numbers among its members some of the country's most noted scientists and inventors.

A commercial economy board, with A. W. Shaw as its chairman, is studying means by which commercial business may best meet demands made on it during the war, and how large quantities of supplies may be diverted to government use without upsetting the essential services of trade. This board is studying a plan to economize on city delivery systems and is investigating measures of economy for adoption by retail stores.

The coal problem is in the hands of a committee on coal production, headed by F. S. Peabody of Chicago. It is assisting the war railroad board in expediting the movement of coal and is taking measures to stimulate production.

A woman's defense committee was created in April, with Dr. Anna Howard Shaw as its chairman. Its activities will be directed along the following lines:

Organization of state committees, registration of women for service with the food administration, home and allied relief work, food production, conservation and thrift; educational propaganda, protection of women and child workers, conservation of the health and welfare of women, conservation of the moral and spiritual forces of the nation.

Scientific research is being conducted by the National Research council. The work is under the direction of Dr. George E. Hale and Dr. R. A. Milliken. The research council is co-ordinating the research activities of the country in the fields of science and engineering. It is now engaged in studying devices to detect submarines and mines, investigating range finders and instruments to detect invisible aircraft and improving wireless apparatus.

A committee on shipping is working with the shipping board on the problem of increasing the country's merchant tonnage.

The work of state defense councils is co-ordinated through a department headed by George F. Porter. It has assisted in organizing state councils and is giving them advice as to what the federal government expects of the states in assisting the conduct of the war.

Transportation questions are studied by a committee on transportation. Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, is its chairman. It operates through a war railroad board, of which Fairfax Harrison, president of the Southern Railway, is the head. This board is running the various transportation lines as on continental system.

The railroad board has given preference to fuel and is moving coal ahead of all other commodities. Food probably will be the next commodity given preferential shipment. Coal is moved in this order: Fuel for the government, for the roads on which the mines are located, for other steam roads and finally for general purposes. The committee recommended the personnel of the railroad commission now in Russia. It is engaged in discontinuing passenger trains not considered essential and expects to discourage conventions and other meetings that would require unusual train service.

Other accomplishments of the railroad board are given as follows:

"Enlistment of nine regiments of engineers to rehabilitate the French railway systems; an arrangement for moving coal to the Pacific coast in box cars to prevent an uneconomical haul-back; expeditious movement of food products."

Telephone and telegraph committees of the council have arranged a system of co-operation between the wire companies and the government. Government calls are given preference.

Much army and navy purchasing has been done by the committee on supplies, of which Julius Rosenwald of Chicago is chairman. The committee is composed of six business men chosen from different industries, who are giving their entire time to the work. This committee is said to have saved the government millions of dollars in the purchase of supplies. All army and navy contracts, before signed, are submitted to the committee for approval, and the committee in many instances has instituted new purchasing systems. Associated with the committee are a large number of subcommittees made up of experts on various commodities.

The committee on raw supplies, headed by Bernard M. Baruch of New York, has organized the purchase of raw materials. It saved the government, according to the report, $10,000,000 on the purchase of a supply of copper.

Samuel Gompers' committee on labor is engaged in settling industrial disputes and maintaining labor standards.

The committee on industrial preparedness has obtained 27,000 detailed reports from the country's large manufacturing plants as to capacity to meet the government's industrial and military needs during the war. This information, the report declares, will prove invaluable in placing orders for supplies.

Engineering problems are being studied by an engineering committee under Dr. Hollis Godfrey.

A CHILD DOESN'T LAUGH AND PLAY IF CONSTIPATED

LOOK MOTHER! IS TONGUE COATED, BREATH FEVERISH AND STOMACH SOUR?

"California Syrup of Figs" Can't Harm Tender Stomach, Liver, Bowels.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

LAND OWNER AIDED THE SOLDIER CAMP

In connection with leasing of the land which is wanted for the army camp site north and northwest of the city, one tract has just been purchased outright.

The owner had a chance to sell it to private parties for more money, but learning that the party who wanted to buy it probably would not sell or lease it for army camp purposes, he decided to let the Waco military committee have the land.

The owner had bought the land and had taken his wife there for her health, and was not in financial condition to lease the land.

About a score of Waco's enterprising men put in a hundred dollars each and bought the tract, so that it might be turned over to the government as a part of the camp site.

MUSTER OFFICER IS TO BE HERE MONDAY

Battery E, Second Field artillery, (Waco Battery), is to be mustered in on Monday, and all who have not been examined must attend to this immediately, stated Capt. E. J. Clark Saturday.

Captain Clark received instructions Saturday from Houston, stating that Col. J. T. Stockton would be here Monday for the mustering in as indicated. The question of medical examination for any men who have not given this attention now becomes paramount, in view of the brief length of time which this may have attention.

FARMERS STILL TAKING FEED SEED FROM WACO

Another big day's run was enjoyed Saturday by the Chamber of Commerce on seed ordered for the benefit of farmers in this section. Farmers began coming in and telephoning early Saturday morning, asking eagerly about seed for feed stuffs. The chamber of Commerce is selling the seed at actual cost, transportation added. Much June corn was in the lot of seed sold.

FRANK HOLCOMB, FORMER WACO RESIDENT, DEAD

Funeral services of Frank Holcomb formerly a resident of Waco, were held Saturday afternoon in Dallas from the residence of his sister, Mrs. Herbert Lockwood.

Mr. Holcomb was 42 years of age. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary Holcomb, and his sister, Mrs. Herbert Lockwood of Dallas, his sister, Mrs. Alice Strait, and a small son, Frank Holcomb, Jr., of Waco.

C. H. HESTER AND MISS WHATLEY MARRIED

C. H. Hester and wife have returned to Waco and are receiving congratulations of friends. They were married in Calvert a week earlier than had been announced on account of the condition of the health of the bride's mother.

The bride was Miss Margaret Whatley. Mr. Hester is employed at the Turner-Coffield company in Waco.

Coming, next Sunday, Douglas Fairbanks in "Wild and Woolly."

"THE LITTLE AMERICAN" AT HIPPODROME.

"The Little American," a spectacular war drama, in which little Mary Pickford plays the leading role, will be screened at the Hippodrome today and tomorrow. Staged under the direction of Cecil B. DeMille, creator of "Joan the Woman," this production, it is generally felt, will surpass the wonderful achievements of that great picture.

"The Little American" holds a stirring appeal that will awaken enthusiasm in the breast of every patriotic spectator. Its theme is especially timely, having to do with a plucky American maid's adventures on the western battle front in France. Mary Pickford, as the girl who has been separated from her German officer-lover at the beginning of the war, presents a heroic and convincing characterization. Critics agree that it is her greatest dramatic effort.

Beginning with spectacular battle scenes, "The Little American" seizes the spectator's attention in a grip that does not relax until the last shadow figure has faded from the screen. One of the most striking scenes is that of the "Little American" telephoning the range to French gunners so they may shell the chateau in which she is held prisoner.

Marriages may be made in heaven, but lots of them end in the other place.

SOUTH DAKOTA IS BONE DRY SINCE ELECTION

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 7.—With the closing of saloons throughout the state at 9 o'clock Saturday night, South Dakota for the second time entered the column of prohibition states of the nation. It is estimated that approximately 225 saloons as well as numerous wholesale liquor houses and breweries suspended business.

Under a constitutional amendment that was adopted in the election of November 7 and with the subsequent enactment of legislation by the 1917 legislature for its enforcement after July 1, the state entered upon an era of absolute prohibition. The South Dakota prohibition law, it is claimed, is probably the most drastic in the country.

The action of the electorate in adopting constitutional prohibition marks the second time in the state's history when statewide prohibition was adopted. In 1889, when South Dakota was admitted to the union, a prohibition clause was included in the constitution. However, seven years later the law was repealed, largely because lax enforcement had turned sentiment against it. While the fundamental law provided that the state should remain under a limited prohibition a local option feature was introduced which permitted communities to vote on the question at spring elections and if a majority were returned in favor of license, saloons might operate for one year. Unless another election was held and a wet majority returned, however, the town again became dry.

The attainment of state-wide prohibition ends a long campaign waged by dry forces and is the climax of a series of legislative steps which paved the way for the ultimate "bonedry" measure.

In 1908 and again in 1910 county option was submitted to the voters and defeated both times. Then the 9 o'clock closing law and additional measures regulating the liquor traffic or limiting some of its privileges were obtained. In 1914 the people defeated an initiated law of the liquor interests which would have reversed the constitutional law by permitting a town which voted "wet" to remain so until the "dry" forces brought about an election.

Five prohibition laws were passed by the 1913 legislature, which curtailed to a great extent the sale or liquor in South Dakota. One limited the number of saloons to one for each 600 or major fraction of the population; a second created a dry zone of five miles around every municipality which enjoyed prohibition; a third forbade the sale of liquor to minors; another made it a misdemeanor for any intoxicated person to drive a motor vehicle, while the so-called freeholders' law, defined the qualifications of freeholders who might petition for a license election. The operation of these laws, it is said, drove 125 saloons out of business. Early in 1915 railroads operating in the state prohibited the sale of liquor on trains.

Under all these restrictive measures, statistics show a substantial growth in the prohibition movement. In 1913 there were 179 towns which licensed the sale of liquor. In 1914 this number decreased to 132, in 1915 to 97 and in 1916 to 73.

Steps to compel submission of the prohibition issue to the voters of the state were taken in 1914 by the Anti-Saloon league. Initiative petitions were circulated and 8000 signatures were obtained in favor of the proposition. A bill to submit a constitutional amendment to the people was then brought before the 1915 legislature and passed. The amendment subsequently was accepted in the last election and a law passed by the last legislature put the measure into effect. Provisions of the prohibition act make it unlawful to manufacture, sell, give away or import intoxicating liquors in the state under a penalty of a fine of from $250 to $1000 and imprisonment in a county jail from thirty days to six months for the first offense. For a second offense and every succeeding offense the violator will be deemed guilty of a felony and liable to a sentence of not less than sixty days or more than two years in the state penitentiary. In case of a second offense, the judge may in his discretion impose a fine not to exceed $2000, in addition to imprisonment. Druggists convicted of illegal sale of liquor, under the law, in addition to imprisonment, would be deprived of their licenses.

The law prescribes that intoxicating liquors may be secured only for scientific, medicinal and sacramental purposes.

A state sheriff is designated to enforce the provisions of the act and power is granted to the governor to remove any officers who fail to carry out its regulations.

OFFICIAL CALL SENT TO PROHIBITIONISTS

The prohibitionists of McLennan county are to pass on the question of an election in this county, and have been asked to meet July 14, next Saturday, for that purpose. The following call has just been issued in that connection:

To the Prohibitionists of McLennan County:

At the meeting of the Federation of Churchmen of Waco, held June 25, 1917, the federation went on record as favoring the calling of a mass meeting of the prohibitionists of the county for the purpose of considering the advisability of calling a prohibition election for McLennan county.

In pursuance of said action we hereby call a meeting of all the prohibitionists of McLennan county to meet at the courthouse in the Fifty-fourth district court room, at 10:30 a. m., July 14, 1917.

Dr. Beck Says Hot Sun and Heat Weaken the Eyes

Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

New York, N. Y.—Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eyestrain or other eye weaknesses? If so you will be glad to know that, according to Dr. Beck, there is real hope for you. He says that exposure to sun, smoke, dust or wind often produces eyestrain, and people living in southern climates should frequently bathe the eyes and be careful to protect them from extreme light. This prescription will prove of great value to many eye sufferers. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully, now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seemed clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto Tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you even a little take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE—Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in Waco by W. B. Morrison.

PARTIES WANTING PIGS MUST COME ON SATURDAY

"Those boys and girls who want pigs from the Chamber of Commerce supply must come for them next Saturday, and they should let us know at once whether they will want the pigs," said Secretary H. D. Driscoll Saturday afternoon.

The pigs will be housed in the garage of the Chamber of Commerce for Saturday, and the McLennan county boys and girls will get them there on liberal terms.

GARDENS YET TO BLOOM IN TEYDEN

By Associated Press.

Haarlem, Netherlands, July 7.—Fully five or six weeks late owing to the prolonged cold spell, the glories of the Dutch bulb fields once more unfold themselves to the delighted eye of nature lovers, and the famous bulb country, between Haarlem and Layden, is ablaze with daffodils and narcissi, while hyacinths in their variegated shades, have again woven "nature's own carpet." The tulips are yet to come.

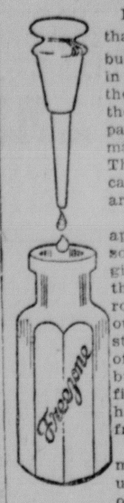
Rarely has the advent of these spring flowers been welcomed with more genuine enthusiasm. The people of Holland, nerve-strained as they are owing to the constant war peril by which their little country is from all sides menaced, find some measure of solace in the reflection that as surely as the spring flowers have come again the blossoms of peace will once more descend upon this disturbed world.

The usual invasion of week-end visitors from the neighboring big cities has set in, and crowds wander through the scented fields garnering the blossoms. The evening trains disgorge their thousands, all laden with the day's spoils, and give the grim railroad stations an unwonted air of gayety. The roads are alive with hordes of cyclists carrying big posies on their handlebars, and crains of flowers slung across their shoulders.

Figures just published show that exports to the United States and Canada rose from 8100 tons in 1915 to 11,014 last year. American gardeners have in these years of war been more and more drawing on the product of the long line of famous bulb-fields that lie just behind the sand dunes, skirting the coasts of the provinces of North and South Holland. Last year's exports to America and Canada were more than double the total of 1913, the year immediately preceding the outbreak of war, and constituted nearly half of Holland's entire exports of 23,883 tons.

High Heels Put Corns on Toes

Who cares? Corns or calluses lift off without any pain.



Because style decrees that women crowd and buckle up their tender toes in high heeled footwear, they suffer from corns, then they cut and trim at these painful pests which merely makes the corn grow hard. This suicidal habit may cause lockjaw and women are warned to stop it.

A few drops of freezone applied directly upon a sore corn or tender callus gives quick relief and soon the entire corn or callus, root and all, lifts off without pain. Ask the drug store man for a tiny bottle of freezone, which costs but a few cents, but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

Freezone dries in a moment and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Women! Keep a bottle of freezone handy on the dresser and never let a corn ache twice.

WACO LEADS IN FIELDING WHILE JAMES IS NOTED STAR HITTER OF LEAGUE

Special to The News.

Fort Worth, July 7.—Official Texas league batting averages issued from the office of President J. Walter Morris today show that Berton James of Waco is out in front among the hitters of the league with an average of .344. The Waco right fielder has a lead of 41 points over the next batter. Five regular players in the .300 class are closely bunched. Leslie, Waco, is hitting .322, Sharman, Fort Worth, .322, Bernsen, Fort Worth, .320; Mattick, Dallas, .319; Perry, San Antonio, .318. These averages include games of July 1.

Of the nine men hitting above 300 two are pitchers who have been in comparatively few games. Leslie, Waco, is the leading slugger, having a total of 108 bases. Manager Perry of San Antonio leads in the number of two-base hits with twenty-six. Sicking and Baggan of San Antonio and Dodd of Fort Worth have each made nine triples. Leslie leads in home runs with nine, while Litschi of Dallas is second with seven.

James is the leading score-getter, having scored more runs and earned runs than any other player in the league. Miller of Waco and Callahan of Dallas lead in stolen bases, with twenty-three each. Kircher of Fort Worth and Nye, Shreveport, have each made thirty sacrifice hits. Five players have drawn more than fifty bases on balls: Litscol, Dallas, 59; McCarty, Houston, 57; Baggan, San Antonio, 54; James, Waco, 53; Miller, Waco, 51.

Of the players who have taken part in more than half of the games played by their club, Syd Smith of Shreveport is the hardest man to fool at the plate, having fanned but eight times in seventy-six games. Manager Atz of Fort Worth has fanned six times in 47 games, and Bobo of San Antonio six times in fifty-two games. At the other end of the list of strike-out victims is Leslie with 68, Callahan, Dallas, with 50.

In the following table the batting averages of released players and those who played with the Beaumont and Galveston clubs but not now in the league are not included:

CONLEY LEADS THE PITCHERS.

Though two pitchers who recently entered the league have not been charged with a defeat and are nominally leading the Texas hurlers, John Conley of Dallas is the real leader, as his nineteen victories and three defeats give him a winning percentage of .864. Jones of Shreveport has won three games and lost none, while Petty of Waco is credited with two victories and no defeats. Conley, who pitched more innings than any other pitcher in the league, leads in number of strikeouts. Thirteen pitchers have allowed more runs than the Dallas star and twelve have yielded more earned runs.

Of the pitchers who have worked the equivalent of ten or more full games, Perritt and Dillinger of Fort Worth have been the most effective in holding down earned runs. The former has allowed but 21 in 95 1-3 innings and the latter 22 in 96 innings. More earned runs have been scored off Napier than any other pitcher in the league and Duffy has yielded the greatest number of hits.

Eddie Donalds of Waco has shown the best control, having walked but 32 batters in the 174 innings he worked. Compere of Dallas has walked 15 men in 68 innings and Jacobus of Dallas has passed 31 in 131 innings. Lewis of Dallas, who ranks next to Conley in number of innings pitched and in strikeouts, has walked more batters, 85, than any other pitcher in the league. Gleason, Shreveport, has issued 82 passes.

The official records of all pitchers now in the league, through the games of July 1 are shown in the following table (the figures after the hyphen in the column showing the number of innings pitched indicate thirds of innings):

Ivan Olson is the ugly duckling of baseball.

The much abused shortstop of the National League champions has blossomed out at last into a brilliant ball player. At least he has been a brilliant ball player this season.

Olson was the goat of the last world's series. The awkward, bow-legged Swede was accorded about as much abuse as any player ever took. Maybe he deserved it. There is no denying that he played very poorly on quite numerous occasions. The fans thought so little of him that they demanded his removal and attached such affectionate bits of nomenclature to his name as "Ivory" Olson and "Ivan the Terrible."

This season opened with Ivan on the bench—and glad to be even there. Fabrique, a new shortstop, was put in his place, but "blew" after a brilliant start.

Once again Olson was given the job. Witness his rejuvenation! He has fielded marvellously—an unusual thing by the way—and, as for safe blows, look at the averages. Olson is hitting over .320 and crowding the leaders. He has been the sensation of the 1917 season.

JESS WILLIARD NOT FIGURING ON QUITTING

By Associated Press.

Chicago, July 7.—Jess Willard is not figuring on quitting the ring. Denying reports of his retirement, the heavyweight champion, in a letter to Chicago friends said that he would be raidy to defend his title as soon as the circus season is finished in October.

The champion said he was entirely through with Jack Curley and Tom Jones, his former managers, who have threatened to sue him.

"As long as I was working on a salary, Jones and Curley got their percentage on my earnings," Willard wrote. "But the war and bad weather hurt the show business and I received notice that my contract was to be cancelled. This would leave me out in the cold so I bought the circus.

"As owner of the show, and not an employee, I couldn't see where Jones and Curley should be entitled to any part of the gross receipts. So I discharged them."

Willard confided that he weighed in the neighborhood of 260 pounds, which is about thirty pounds above his usual fighting weight, and that with a little training will be able to defend his honors in a 20-round contest.

"It isn't true that I have refused to box either Carl Morris or Fred Fulton," Willard's letter continued. "Why should I bar them if the public wants me to meet either of them. It is true that I do not like Morris, but that doesn't mean that he's barred."

The big aKnsasan has amassed a fortune since he became champion. It is said that he has between $400,000 and $500,000 planted away in Chicago banks.

FAY ENORMOUS PRICE.

St. Louis, July 7.—The price the St. Louis Nationals paid for Marvin Goodwin, a pitcher purchased from the Milwaukee club of the American association, is declared to be the highest ever paid by a St. Louis club.

Branch Rickey, president of the Cardinals, said he gave cash and players approximating a total value of $15,000 for Goodwin. Six other clubs were outbid by Rickey. Goodwin is scheduled to report July 15.

JAMES, LEADING HITTER IN THE LEAGUE, FANS THE BREEZE THREE STRAIGHT TIMES.

By the Associated Press.

Fort Worth, July 7.—Fort Worth defeated Waco 2 to 1 today by bunching hits off Zinn in the sixth inning. Redford pitched brilliant ball in the pinches and three times he fanned James, leading hitter of the league, when a hit would have won the game for Waco. In the fourth Waco runners were on second and third with none down, but the visitors could not score. A great throw by Smith to the plate and a good tag by Woodall kept Waco from scoring in the fifth:

SUBS TWICE DEFEATED

By the Associated Press.

Dallas, July 7.—Dallas' winning streak was broken today, when Shreveport won a double-header 2 to 0 and 3 to 1. Gleason and Jones both held the locals to three hits. Gleason, who was knocked off the rubber in one-third of an inning Friday, pitched a great game today. Jones was very wild, but unhittable in the pinches. After playing 47 errorless games at first base, Schliebner made a low throw to second in the second game. Scores:

STATISTICS SHOW COBB CLIMBING IN HIT COLUMN

DETROIT STAR IS NEARING THE .400 MARK AND SHOWING GREAT SPEED.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 7.—Ty Cobb is nearing the .400 mark. The Detroit star, piling up twenty-four points in his last ten games, is batting .383, according to unofficial averages released today. He has driven out 100 hits for a total of 153 bases. Three home runs, twelve triples and twenty doubles stand out in his remarkable batting performance.

In addition, the Georgian is showing daring speed on the bases. Overcoming a big lead, Cobb tied Weaver of Chicago for the honors in runs scored, having crossed the plate forty-seven times. He also has stolen twenty bases.

George Sisler of St. Louis, driving out thirteen hits in his last ten games, is tied with McInnis of Philadelphia for third place, with an average of .320. Speaker is trailing thirty-three points behind Cobb.

Chapman and Roth of Cleveland continue to show the way in sacrifice hitting and base stealing with 36 and 28 respectively. Roth has stolen home four times this season. Pipp of New York is in possession of home run honors with six. Detroit retained its lead in team batting with .251. The averages include games of Wednesday.

PROBE OF HINDU PLOT RESULTS AT 'FRISCO IN 41 INDICTMENTS

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, July 7.—Forty-one indictments were returned here today by a federal grand jury in the so-called steamship Sacremento neutrality case in addition to 98 indictments in the alleged Hindu plot. Among those indicted in this case were F. Von Papen, formerly military attache of the German embassy in Washington and a number of local shipping men.

PAPERS FOUND IN U. S. SAID TO HAVE LEAD TO CASEMENT'S ARREST

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 7.—Papers seized in the offices of Wolf Von Igel, secretary of Capt. Franz Von Papen, gave the government proof of German plots to foment uprisings in India and Ireland, it was learned here tonight. The information, it was said, also had an important bearing on the arrest of Sir Roger Casement.

RUSSIAN COSSACKS AND INDIAN LANCERS ON FRONT MAKE LONG DEFENSE LINE

By Associated Press.

London, July 7.—Russian Cossacks who had fought their way down from the Caucasus and Indian Lancers who had helped to drive the Turks up the Tigris valley and out of Bagdad, met in a casual manner at Kizil Robat, northeast of Bagdad, on April 2, reports the official eyewitness with the British forces in Mesopotamia. This meeting linked together the Russian and British lines into one long front from the Black Sea to the Persian gulf. Narrating the incident, the eyewitness writes from Kizil Robat:

"At noon on April 2 we met the Russians here. The officer commanding our column, seeing their cavalry with the blue and white pennant, called up the Indian Lancers, who pushed forward, wheeled into line, saluted and turned back, bringing the Russians into camp.

"Our allies had a hard task from Hamadan, through an inhospitable country, over snow passes trodden into the consistency of ice, down into the burning heat of ravines, but they pressed hard on the heels of the Turks.

"The road all the way from Hamadan was a defile between snow-clad ranges, which made a turning movement almost impossible, hence there was no opportunity of rounding up the Turkish rear guard; but owing to the relentless pressure of the pursuit the enemy suffered heavy losses in the retreat through artillery fire, sickness and exhaustion.

"All the way the road was littered with dead mules, horses, camels, asses and buffaloes. The Turks' ranks were thinned by typhus and their infantry were footsore, their light Hamadan boots only lasting a few days, and most of them were barefooted. The villages are full of deserters.

"The country between Kermanshah and Khanikin is an uninhabited waste. Seven armies have passed through it in ten months. Villages are abandoned, and supplies do not exist even in districts which are least exhausted.

"Many Turks fell from exhaustion, and the cemeteries of every village show signs of new graves. Nearly 2,000 were counted at Kermanshah alone. The Cossack horses were fed on dry leaves and shrubs.

"At lunch we drank the health of the Russian army. A motor convoy brought in bully-beef rations, biscuits, jam and dates for the Cossack squadron.

"The Cossacks, a hard weather-beaten, cheery crowd, were soon fraternizing with our troops. They ride with short stirrups, toes down, heels up, leaning forward, their weight thrown on the stirrups. They wore jack boots and sheepskin caps. Besides their rifles they carried knives and curved Caucasian scimitars without hand guards.

"They came in at a walk, their small horses being heavily laden and looking thin and spent. They had crossed the Persian frontier at Kaar-i-Shirin and bivouacked last night ten miles northeast of Kizil Robat. Their casualties during the whole march from Hamadan were not heavy.

"Persia is now clear of the Turks, and there are no enemy this side of the Diala river."

WILL TELL PHYSICIANS' VIEWS ON MODERN DANCE

Rev. H. L. Munger, pastor of Morrow Street Methodist church, has written the physicians of Waco for their opinion of the modern dance, and will give his congregation tonight the benefit of the replies. Another fifty members have united with the church making one hundred new members in eight months. Following the evening service tonight there will be a public reception for the fifty new members. This makes 284 members received during the twenty months' pastorate of Rev. H. L. Munger, and he confidently expects to reach the 300 mark this month.

LOWER BRAZOS DAM ON REPORT OF BIG RISE

Hearing that a rise of about four feet was coming down the Brazos river, in consequence of the rain of July 4, the dam below Waco was lowered temporarily, allowing the water here to recede. It was feared, it was explained by Captain Harris, that the rise might have a lot of drift logs and tree tops, as there have been few rises in the river for some time. The water will be backed up again when the rise passes.

BE HAPPY, SAYS TALOSOPHER AND THOUSANDS GRIN

BACKUS, OF CLEVELAND, IN NEW PHILOSOPHY WITH JOY AS ITS MOTTO.

Special to The News.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 7.—Is everybody happy?

It's mighty hard to be happy with the thoughts of war, high cost of living and revolutions wracking our brains, but William Varnon Backus, "talosopher," with his four-year-old "talosophic" Appreciation league has a way to make everybody happy.

Talosophy, the art of making happiness epidemic is the way. The Appreciation league founded by Backus and having a membership of 125,000 men and women, the means.

Backus is philosopher, psychologist, lawyer, lecturer and general disseminator of happiness. He has made people happy by his appreciation of their courtesy, and therefore is happy himself.

Happiness radiates from the man. His smiling face, his light, cheery voice make the atmosphere about him pleasant and agreeable. Even his hands move with that agility and freeness that only the real "talosopher" feels. They are a wonderful expression of his happy personality. Come to him with a "grouch" and you will leave in high and hopeful spirits.

In the employe's lounging room of the Conemaugh division of the Pennsylvania railroad, at the end of each month, the names of careless, unruly and fined employes used to be written on a blackboard.

"But the psychology of it was wrong," said Backus. "It was a negative condition, it discouraged and depressed the violator and his efficiency was impaired."

So the company changed the plan, following Backus' idea. An honor list was set up monthly.

SINGLE UMPIRING SYSTEM IS CLAIMED TO BE BEST

By Associated Press.

St. Paul, Minn. July 7.—Mike Kelly, manager of the St. Paul club of the American association, believes that under the present single umpiring system there are fewer protests than there were under the old system.

Kelly is entirely satisfied with the reduction of the staff from eight to four men. The best of the umpires were retained, he said, and they do not make many serious blunders. The staff was reduced to save the club owners $1000 a month.

RECOMMEND NEW ADMIRALS.

By the Associated Press.

Washington, July 7.—The navy board of selection composed of nine rear admirals will meet here July 16, Secretary Daniels announced today, to recommend new admirals for the list of commanders and fifty new commanders. Increase of the navy enlisted strength to its present war footing makes necessary the advancement of the officers.

OFFERED FRANCHISE.

By the Associated Press.

Battle Creek, Mich.—Battle Creek has been offered the franchise of the be ready to defend his title as soon as gue. As the local fans want a league team, and as Battle Creek's population soon will be greatly increased, there is a possibility of the club being transferred. Battle Creek has been chosen for a cantonment site.

The Central league has had a successful season thus far despite the fact that most of the minor leagues have lost heavily. South Bend's attendance has been poor and it is believed that the transfer would be a splendid move.

LEASE LAND IN WACO FOR AVIATION GROUND IF CAMP COMES HERE

Leases on one or two important tracts of land adjacent to Waco and west of the city have been placed under lease in connection with the proposition to secure an aviation school for this city.

The land has been offered to the committee of the Chamber of Commerce which has this matter in hand, and has been signed by the owners of the land, subject to ratification by the Chamber of Commerce. It is not definitely settled that Waco is to secure one of the schools, but plans are being laid just as though the school is to come, as the land must be secured to make the school possible if the government decides to place one here.

ST. LOUIS WOMEN DECLARE THEY SAVED 3,368,000 LBS. OF FOOD BY CONSERVATION

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Mo., July 7.—Prevention of the waste of 3,368,000 pounds of food in St. Louis is the result of a two months' campaign by the Woman's Food Conservation league.

Mrs. George Gellhorn, chairman of the woman's food conservation committee, says that in the first month of the campaign the records showed a decrease in garbage collection of 580 tons, and in the second month, 1,239 tons.

Mrs. Gellhorn estimates that the waste through American kitchens aggregated $700,000,000 a year and that the women, without waiting for the government to give them a food dictator, already were in line to reduce this waste to a negligible quantity. Summer schools for food conservation have been opened in every ward of St. Louis. A campaign to induce every woman to can 500 jars of food products during the summer has been launched and a cannery has been opened to help in this.

AMERICAN TENNIS LEAGUE TO PLAY BENEFIT GAMES

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 7.—In an effort to raise money for three ambulances the American Lawn Tennis association is arranging for exhibition matches throughout the country for leading players. Beginning about July 16 and continuing for six weeks these matches will be played before the larger clubs of the country.

CALLED "SILENT COACH" BY LOUISVILLE FANS

By Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., July 7.—William Clymer, manager of the Louisville club of the American association, is becoming known as the "silent coach" among patrons of association games.

Usually a determined fighter, ready to protest decisions instantly, Slymer resorted to deaf and dumb tactics because of his recent suspension. The fans always have known Clymer as a raving, roaring clown on the coaching lines. They want him to keep it up.

"That's a part of my work, but it costs me money to talk in this league," Clymer explained. "Everytime I say anything, some umpire chases me out of the park and then I am suspended and fined. I suppose I'll have to stand there like a dummy and try to win ball games."

"JITNEY BUS" IS BACK AGAIN IN LOUISVILLE

By the Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., July 7.—After a stormy career of two years the "jitney bus" will disappear from the streets of Louisville, after July 1, according to an announcement by the Louisville Jitney Bus company, the only organization still engaged in this method of transportation here. Individual enterprises quit long ago.

Soon after the "jitney-bus" appeared in Louisville ordinances were passed requiring each operator to post a large bond to guarantee payments of judgments for personal injury.

This proved prohibitive to individual operators and a large body combined forming a corporation to which each made over his machine, receiving in return stock to its value. Each driver, however, was the real owner of his own machine and his earnings were his intake less a small assessment for corporation expnses.

At the outset with ten cent gasoline cheap tires and other incidentals the business is said to have proved profitable. Then gasoline began to climb in price. The war came and the cost of tires was inflated. Other accessories advanced. The corporation's bond expired, July 1, profits disappeared and it was decided by the membership of the company that the time had come to liquidate.

EX-DEPUTY SHERIFF JOE CHADWICK IS NOW OUT WITH FACTS

"WE KNOW FROM ACTUAL EXPERIENCE WHAT TANLAC WILL DO," HE SAYS—WIFE'S TROUBLES END AFTER TEN YEARS' SUFFERING.

The imposing list of men now endorsing Tanlac who have held, or are now holding, some responsible public office grows longer day by day. To the large number of representative men whose statements have been published in the press of the country is now added the name of Joe Chadwick, formerly deputy sheriff of Bexar county, Texas, for fourteen years, and who enjoys the esteem of all who know him. Mr. Chadwick lives at 125 Krempkau street, San Antonio, and recently made the following statement detailing his wife's experiment with Tanlac.

"I've just come in to get another bottle of Tanlac for my wife," said Mr. Chadwick. "She has already taken two bottles and her improvement is simply wonderful. My wife has suffered for ten years from a disordered stomach that gradually got worse, and about eight years ago she noticed a distressing feeling of gas after eating and it caused painful smothering spells to come on. The gas seemed to press on her heart and cause palpitations that would nearly overcome her and she would lose sleep on account of it. She couldn't sleep on her left side at all, for the pain was simply unbearable when she tried to. She had a morbid appetite and seemed to be hungry all the time, but couldn't digest what she ate very well, and early in the mornings she would often get sick at her stomach and begin vomiting.

"Her condition got to be so serious I worried a lot about her till she started taking Tanlac, then she began to improve at once and I became more hopeful of her recovery. She sleeps like a top every night now and she can sleep on her left side just as restfully as on the other, and she shows no signs of her old trouble. Her nerves are quieter now and she eats better and everything seems to agree with her and gives no distress afterwards. She is stronger and has more life and energy than before and says she feels more like working now than she has in a long time. We know from actual experience what Tanlac will do and are telling all our friends about it whenever we see them.

Tanlac is sold in Waco by Morrison's Old Corner Drug Store under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative.—Adv.

SOLDIERS AT EAGLE PASS SHOOT AND KILL CONSTABLE

By the Associated Press.

Eagle Pass, July 7.—Salome San Miguel, a constable, died this morning of bullet wounds received last night when soldiers on guard fired at him. Military and civil authorities today investigated the shooting and found it a case of mistaken identity.

San Miguel is said to have dispersed soldiers who were fighting in the railroad yards here last night. Later, when he was returning home, a sentry commanded him to halt. Thinking the soldiers were seeking revenge for his interfering in their recent fight, it is said, the constable opened fire which was returned by the guards.

PLAN ANTI-SLACKER BILL TO REACH ALIENS IN U. S.

By the Associated Press.

Washington, July 7.—An anti-slacker bill, designed to reach men of military age born in Great Britain, Canada and Italy and other foreign countries who never have taken steps toward naturalization will be introduced Monday and urged for passage at this session by Chairman Burnett of the house immigration committee. It will propose that such men shall be given thirty to sixty days from enactment of the bill, to take out their first citizenship papers so as to be subject to military service here, and that if they fail to do so, within the prescribed period they shall be deported.

"GO TO WORK OR WAR" IS CITY'S EDICT TO LOAFERS

By Associated Press.

Oklahoma City, July 7.—"Go to work or go to war." This was the edict to loafers issued today from the county attorney's office. The sheriff was instructed to wage a vigorous campaign against vagrants, offering them the alternative of working the county roads if they did not care to enlist.

Without stopping his train an engineer can move a lever in his cab and open a recently patented switch to enable him to enter a siding, the switch closing when the last car has passed over it.

INHERITANCE TAX LAW HELD UNCONSTITUTIONAL SATURDAY ON TECHNICALITY

Austin, July 7.—The attorney general's department today held, in an opinion to Comptroller Terrell, that the act of the Thirty-fifth legislature relating to the collection of inheritance taxes is unconstitutional and void for the reason that it is an attempt, says the opinion, on the part of the legislature to authorize the comptroller to employ some person other than the officials designated by the constitution to sue for and collect taxes due the state; that the constitution makes the attorney general and the county and district attorneys the exclusive representatives of the state in the courts of the state while this law authorizes the appointment of private individuals to do that which the constitution shall be done by designated officials.

RENT CAR DRIVER IS FOUND DEAD AT WHEEL OF AUTOMOBILE SATURDAY

By the Associated Press.

Houston, July 7.—Guy Waters, a rent car driver, was found dead at the wheel of his automobile on the Galveston road this morning, his skull crushed and his pockets emptied. Waters left his hotel here Friday night, saying he was going to Galveston with some men in his car. A train crew reported passing the car, with the dead man seated in it, early this morning. County officials immediately began an investigation.

18-YEAR-OLD BOY IS CHARGED WITH ARSON IN DENTON FIRE CASE

By Associated Press.

Denton, July 7.—Worth Yantis, 18, was arrested today and charged with arson and burglary in connection with a fire here yesterday which caused damage estimated at $40,000 to the Williams Dry Goods store.

ADMITS GUILT IN FAILURE TO REGISTER FOR DRAFT

By Associated Press.

Fort Worth, July 7.—W. L. Phillips of Mineral Wells, accused of failing to register for army service, admitted his guilt to United States Commissioner Mitchell here yesterday. His bond was placed at $500, pending the opening of federal court.

JAP FARMER KILLED.

By the Associated Press.

Galveston, July 7.—S. Kurakawa, a Japanese farmer, was killed today on the Galveston-Hitchcock road when an automobile truck in which he was riding turned over. The accident occurred as the farmer was returning to his home in Hitchcock from a trip to Galveston and just after the car had passed over the Highland bayou bridge.

Complexion Lotion! Use Fresh Lemons and Strain Juice

Any grocer will sell you two fresh lemons and your drug store will supply you with three ounces of orchard white. Put these in a bottle and shake well. Here you have a whole quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon lotion at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams.

Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoother and beautifier.

Used by day, this sweetly fragrant lotion protects the skin from the evil effects of the weather and prevents roughness, redness, chafing and smarting. At night it works in the pores while you sleep, and is intended to bring a freshness and peace-like beauty that wins envy and admiration.

Just try it! Make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It naturally helps to whiten, soften, freshen and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It works marvelously on rough, red hands. Try it and see for yourself.

LABOR TROUBLE MAY RESULT AT SANTONE CAMP

ACTIVITIES OF UNION LABOR AGENTS RECEIVE ATTENTION OF DEPARTMENT.

San Antonio, July 7.—Reported activities of union labor agents in connection with the building of the new army cantonment at Camp Wilson were given official recognition today in a statement from southern department headquarters that the government of the United States "has never authorized the employment solely of union men on an army job."

Reports that union labor agents have been active in seeking employment of union men first to the exclusion of non-union men brought further statement "when attempts of this character have been made in other instances the government has found an efficient remedy for the situation."

MRS. EDWIN J. KIEST DIES.

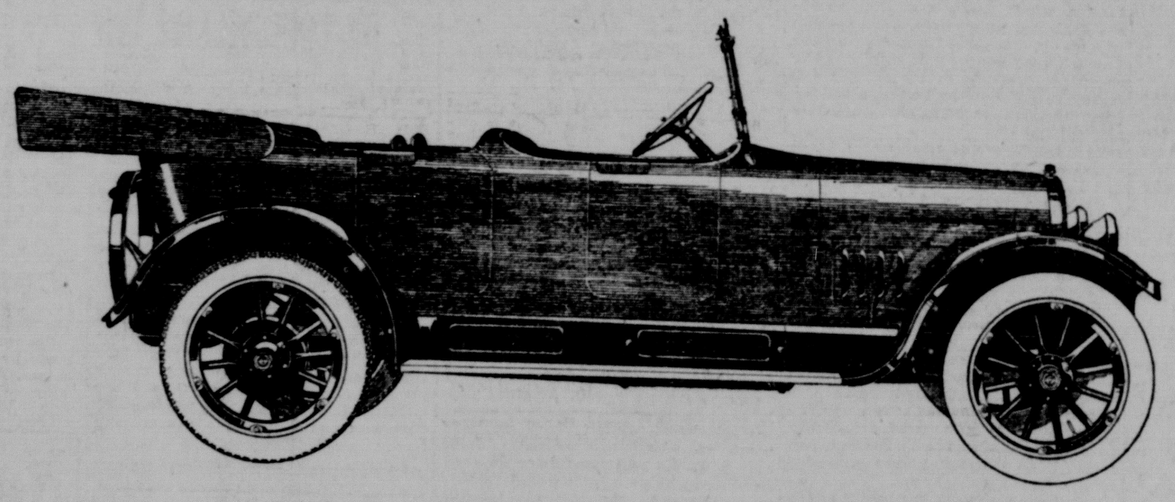
Willys SIX

TRADE MARK REG.

L Head Type of High Power



A New Wonderfully Balanced Six

Sturdy Light Weight—Abundant Power

This announces a brand new development in Sixes.

Here it is at last!

A popular priced Light Six with weight and power in scientific balance.

Think what that means.

Economy and durability in combination with six cylinder advantages at last—an accomplished fact.

Don't ask any more why you can't get a durable light weight six with real six cylinder peformance.

You can—it's this new Willys Six.

By scientific designing with the aid of our great experience in building Sixes, we have produced a lighter car without sacrificing sturdinesss.

Its forty-five horsepower motor, combined with its light weight, makes it a wonderful performer.

Quick as a flash on the getaway; speedy; surprisingly economical, yet with worlds of power and the sturdiness to support it.

—in greater gasoline economy
—in additional tire mileage
—in an easier car to handle.

Now let us demonstrate the wonderful performance of the New Willys Six—we want you to sense what this new balance between power and weight means in an economical, durable light Six.

We want you to know, too, what a wonder the New Willys Six is from the standpoint of easy riding and easy handling.

Also we want you to know what a beautiful car it is—long, sweeping graceful lines—one of the year's most advanced models—a perfect beauty.

And the price!—$1295 complete!

It's the Six you've longed for—come in and see it now—before we are loaded with orders for more Willys Sixes than we can get.

DRINKS, SMOKES AND PERFUMES PAY GREAT TAX

WAR WEALTH INCOMES ALSO HELP TO DEFRAY GREAT EXPENSE OF BIG FIGHT.

Special to The News.

Washington, July 7.—War wealth, incomes, drinks and "smokes" will pay the bulk of the first great war tax.

Of the $1,670,000,000 to be raised under the revenue bill drawn by senate finance committee and reported today $1,277,000,000 will be derived as follows:

From income taxes (incomes as low as $1,000 for single persons and $2,000 for married are hit), $532,700,000.

From excess profits, $523,000,000.

From distilled and rectified spirits, $111,000,000.

From fermented liquors and wines, $44,500,000.

From soft drinks, $10,000,000.

Tax Tobaccos.

From tobacco products, excepting the poor man's stogies, 56,000,000.

This schedule of taxes represents, authors of the bill insist, a heavier burned on the rich and a lesser weight upon the poor than the committee originally contemplated.

However, some senators insist that the rich and the big incomes are tapped too lightly and the purse of the poor man and the man of average means is hit too heavily in the proportion.

These senators hold theis belief on the premise that so long as the poor and the man of average means are in the great majority when it comes to fighting, the very wealthy should be more heavily responsible for the financial part of the war.

Minority Report.

Senator LaFollette, Wisconsin, has a minority report, signed by Thomas, (Colorado), and Gore, (Oklahoma), which would raise the entire $1,800,000,000 asked by the administration by hitting excess profits to the extent of more than $1,000,000,000 swollen incomes, more than $500,000,000 and the balance from tax incomes.

Every branch of the people, however, will be affected under the tax bill reported by the majority—from the man who will have to pay a 1 per cent tax for owning an automobile to those who will have to pay 5 cents on every telephone or telegraph message costing more than 15 cents, 5 per cent on amounts paid for Pullman seats costing more than 35 cents and everybody will have to pay 1 per cent more to mail a letter.

Tax on Cameras.

It will cost more to buy sporting goods; more to own yachts, the girls will suffer from a tax on cosmetics and perfumes; patent medicines will cost more and cameras, too.

But the tax that will hit the average household will be that on tea, coffee, cocoa and sugar. Some of these levies are:

Coffee, 2 cents per pound.
Crude cocoa, 3 cents per pound.
Sugar, ½ cent per pound.
Saccharine, $2.50 per pound.
Glucose, ¼ cents per pound.
Grape sugar, molasses and cane syrup from ½ to 2 cents a gallon.

10 Cent Movies Escape.

The average man and his wife may seek respite from high prices by going to the theater, but even there a tax amounting to 1 cents for each 10 cents worth of tickets pursue them, except in the case of movies where there is no levy excepting on shows over 25 cents.

The already high cost of drinking will mount still higher, owing to the complete lack of sympathy shown by the committee for the "assence of tra-la-la."

In addition to taxes already imposed on these beverages, the committee decided to put a prohibitive tax on spirits distillation and prevent their importation from other countres, to say nothing of minor taxes on red liquor now on hand.

Sweet Wines Hit.

Beer is hit $1.25 per 31-gallon barrel, in addition to the present tax and still wines are taxed double their present figure.

Sweet wines must pay an additional tax of $1.10 per proof gallon on the grape brandy or wine spirits used in fortifying them.

Syrups and extracts used in soft drinks and sodas will be taxed on a scale ranging from 3 cents a gallon for those selling at no more than $1 a gallon to 12 cents a gallon for those selling above $4 a gallon.

A tax of 1 cent a gallon on all fermented grape juice, ginger ale, pop and kindred thirst quenchers is imposed.

Parcel Post Tax.

It will cost 1 cent for each 25 cents or less paid to ship packages by express or parcel post.

Second rate postal rates are taxed ¼ cents a pound, and net incomes of all newspapers are taxed 5 per cent when exceeding $4,000.

MARKETS

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, July 7.—The cotton market was very nervous and irregular today after the big advance of yesterday. The opening was 25 points higher to 5 points lower, near months being relatively firm on a renewal of the buying movement promoted the talk of a better spot demand and diminishing local stocks, while later deliveries felt the influence of favorable weekly crop reviews. The weather map, however, showed generally clear weather in the southwest, where rains are still needed in some sections, and the general list was steady after the call with October selling at 26.06 and January at 26.24, or 6 to 21 points net higher. Trading was comparatively quiet and the buying was attributed partly to covering on the prospects for continued dry weather in the southwest over Sunday.

Realizing became more active during the middle of the session with active months breaking 13 to 16 points under last night's closing figures. After selling at 25.72 for October and 27.95 for January, however, the market steadied on reports of very high temperatures in the southwest, closing net 7 points higher to 8 points lower.

The close was steady.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

New Orleans, July 7.—The cotton market here was irregular in the early trading today, little business being done in the contract department, where trades were chiefly in October and December. On a moderate demand met by some small offerings prices of these two months were 26 to 32 points over yesterday's close at the end of the first half hour of business.

Selling increased toward the middle of the morning and prices fell off to a level of 12 to 15 points, under yesterday's close. Later the market steadied on the rise of 100 points in spot quotations, and toward the close of the day the active months were 3 to 7 points over yesterday's last quotations.

The market closed steady, 1 point up to 5 points down net.

GRAIN.

Chicago, July 7.—Active buying on the part of commission houses swept the corn market upward again today. Railroad advices covering a large section of important producing states were to the effect that the growing crop was fully two weeks late. This fact, together with the knowledge that there is virtually no stock of corn on hand here, tended to give renewed strength to the market.

Opening quotations ranged from the same as yesterday's finish to 1¾c higher, with September at $1.55 to $1.55¾c and December at $1.14½ to $1.16½, were followed by gains all around that carried December to $1.17½.

Subsequently the market showed more firmness, apparently influenced by the bulge in corn. The close was unsettled at 5c net lower to 2c advance, with July at $2.07 and September $1.94.

Wheat sagged owing to neglect. After opening 2c lower with July at $2.10 and September nominal the market dtscended to $2.09 for July.

Decided further gains were scored owing more or less to complaints of unseasonably cold weather. The close was nervous at 1⅜c to 3¾c net advance.

Scattered demand for lard and ribs lifted provisions a little, however.
